

POSTWAR BLUEPRINTS

Dr. Will V. Norris, head of the physics department, looks over architects' plans gleaned from a tour in December, 1944, to gather ideas for postwar buildings, including the long-awaited student union project, for the U. of O. campus.

Alums Eye Future

Former Students Will Help Sponsor Postwar Union Project

A discussion centered around the proposed Student Union building project will be held at the dinner meeting of the Eugene alumni at 5:30, February 10, at the Eugene hotel. H. Abbott Lawrence, Portland architect, and W. V. Norris of the physics department, will show a collection of slides and discuss several aspects of student union buildings throughout the country.

The ODT order restricting travel which was responsible for the cancellation of Dads' Day will not affect this affair because the meeting will be confined almost entirely to alumni living in and near Eugene. Since alumni generally are not being asked to attend, only a few alumni council members are expected to be present. Possible out-of-town guests will be the alumni committees appointed to work with students in co-ordinating student union efforts.

Alumni Committee

This committee was organized at the 1944 alumni meeting and now has the following members located geographically about the state: Clarence Coddling, Portland; Carl Nelson, Salem; Dr. Clarence Keene, Silverton; George Stadelman, The Dalles; Walter Durgan, Corvallis; Austin Brownell, Grants Pass; Sprague Carter, Pendleton;

Pacific To Be Program Topic

"The inadequacy of the University building program" was discussed last night by Audrey Holliday in a broadcast over KOAC. In her speech Miss Holliday stressed the necessity of a long-range point of view in the development of state higher educational facilities.

Questions concerning the Chinese and Japanese people and their cultures will be answered by Dr. L. S. Cressman, professor of anthropology, Dr. Harold J. Noble, chairman of the Pacific basin studies and associate professor of history, and Dr. W. S. Baldinger, associate professor of art, during the weekly radio program of the Pacific basin studies at 7:30 p.m. Thursday over KOAC.

Their discussion will bring out who the Chinese and Japanese are, their differences, similarities, popular misconceptions of the Orientals, the various aspects of their cultural patterns, their art forms, philosophical outlooks, their lan-

Dr. Sheldon to Compare Policies in Thursday Talk

Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, University professor of education and history, will be the featured speaker Thursday night when he presents the topic, "The Future of Political Liberalism," at the third of the University lecture series. The meeting is scheduled in room 12, Friendly, at 7:30 p.m.

A definition of political liberalism will precede Dr. Sheldon's lecture, and he will comment on conditions that led to totalitarianism in Italy and Germany, comparing them with liberal states like England, France, and the United States.

"The way to prevent communism is to beat them to it, so to speak, by protecting people economically as well as politically," says Dr. Sheldon, and his talk will further stress necessary factors to insure the workings of liberal government in the future. Future expectations of the public, such as guarantees to steady employment, health services, and inurance will be emphasized by the speaker. Examples of the progress of other countries will be cited. "The future of our kind of government will depend pretty largely on how we face these things and how the economic problem of distribution of wealth is handled," he stated.

Potentialities of future development in China and Russia, as well as in the older European states and in this country, will be considered by Dr. Sheldon, for he regards the character of the people to be of prime importance in conducting the affairs of a nation, rather than the established form of government.

War Rally Set To Unveil "It"

Complying with a flood of requests from many sources on the campus, the Citrus Mix, Saturday after-the-game dance in Gerlinger, will be a sport affair instead of the short silks as previously announced, according to Marguerite Wittwer, dance chairman.

The dance will be a no-date event with visiting parents, alumni, Oregon State college visitors, and all University students expected to attend. Tickets for 35 cents may be purchased from house representatives and at the Side during this afternoon. Time for the dance has been set between 9:30 and midnight with entertainment scheduled at half-time by Program Chairman Del McKay.

SECRET WEAPON SEEN AT RALLY

The radio-publicized "It" will be revealed at the war rally, Saturday, February 10 before the Oregon-Oregon State game at McArthur court, and "It" will be used as a secret weapon against the invading Aggies. Care has been taken to conceal the identity of the weapon for fear of spies being landed by the enemy. The rally is scheduled to last a half hour, and all living organizations should be ready to leave for Johnson hall at 6:30. A big program has been planned, revealed Lois McConkey, rally chairman, and all Webfoots are expected to "enlist" to make this the most successful rally in the history of Oregon.

If someone doesn't tell me what "It" is, I'll kill myself.
Signed,
Professor Igor Shmaltz

Bombing Mission Will Be Shown

The technicolor film, "Flight of the Dragon," depicting a recent bombing mission, is the main feature on the movie bill to be shown tonight at 7:30 in 207 Chapman. No admission will be charged.

A second feature, "The People of Canada" will show a pictorial survey of the races and nationalities which are conglomerated in the northern dominion.

"A Letter from Ireland," ostensibly written by one of the American soldiers shipped to the Emerald Isle as a jumping off place before the invasion of the continent, will present a GI view of the country. As though he were writing a letter home the dough-boy describes the land, its colleens, recreation facilities, and living accommodations.

Completing the agenda for the evening will be March of Time film covering the New England states.
