

ARMY FIELD AMBULANCE

When University students have reached their quota in the current war stamp drive, they will have enough funds to purchase one of these Red Cross vehicles.

Stamp Sales Climb Slowly

Each war stamp purchased at the Monday night "Dime Dinners" means that the University is nearer to its goal of purchasing a field ambulance. By February 1 a total of $516.93 worth of stamps had been purchased toward the $1950 goal. The project is sponsored by the war stamp committee of the war board, and credit to the University will be printed on the war board. Returns of sales at games, in the Co-op, and other campus activities will all be added to the amount needed to reach the goal.

Monday at their "Dime Dinner" Alpha Gamma Delta sorority topped war stamp purchases by putting $23.05 toward the goal. Susan Campbell hall ran close behind with purchases totaling $22.50.

Sales in other houses were as follows: University house, $8.20; Pi Beta Phi, $8.15; Hendricks hall, $8.00; Chi Omega, $7.20; Kappa Alpha Theta, $7.00; Alpha Chi Omega, $6.25; Delta Gamma, $6.00; Alpha Omicron Pi, $5.50; Highland

Return Unused Tickets

Students who have reserved tickets for their fathers for the Saturday, February 10, Oregon-Oregon State basketball game, and whose fathers will be unable to come, are requested to return the tickets to the educational activities office in McArthur court.

Tickets for the Oregon-Oregon State game at Corvallis, Saturday, February 17, are now on sale at the educational activities office. No more than a total of 125 tickets will be available to UO students.

'Blue Room' Production Opens

Program Will 'Rouse Shades Of Prewar Days

Armed with the as yet unrevealed secret weapon known only as "It," with battle banners and a new type of non-dangerous torch, the entire campus is expected to turn out as one army for the pre-game maneuvers at Johnson hall Saturday night. After the Oregon-Oregon State basketball game in McArthur court Webfoots and Beavers together will celebrate the victory at the Citrus Mix dance in the Gerlinger gym.

The rally at Johnson is being sponsored by the rally squad and is under the command of Field Marshall Von Lois McConkey and Wac General Evan Sax. Two new members of the squad, recently appointed as substitutes, will make their debut at the rally. They are Sally Mann, freshman in liberal arts, who is also the lieutenant general in charge of the banner contest in which all living organizations are participating.

According to the high command, the prewar maneuvers will climax with the junction of the Southern and Northern armies which will begin their campaigns from the Delta Delta Delta, Gamma Phi Beta, and Sigma Kappa barracks.

An official communique from Webfoot headquarters stated that the spectacle will inject potent portions of fear into the hearts of the

Counsellors Needed

Miss Elizabeth Blair, secretary of Portland Camp Fire Girls, will be in the social room of Gerlinger hall at 10:30 p.m. today to interview girls who are interested in counseling girls at Camp Namanu next summer. She will not be in Alumni hall, as yesterday's Emerald stated. The social room is located next to the office of Miss Helen Petroskey on the second floor of the building.

Heart Race Adds 'Chic'

By GEORGE LUOMA

At a five and one-half minute emergency meeting called Wednesday afternoon by law school student body president, Harry A. Skerry, Jr., law school students unanimously "directed" their freshman colleague, Eugene "Chic" Cecchini, to enter King of Hearts competition now being held on the Oregon campus.

The directive, however, expressed the condition that the law school candidate be referred to as "Emperor of Hearts," as Mr. Cecchini's qualifications are unique, and should be distinguished from ordinary qualifications requisite for candidates in the heart throb contest.

In extending Mr. Cecchini a vote of confidence and sympathy, his fellow students paid particular note to the fact that at the recent

Play-goers Will See Comedy On Rug Stage

"Heaven Can Wait," Harry Segell's famous "riot in reincarnation" opens tonight at 8, in Gerlinger hall. Directed by Horace W. Robinson, "Heaven Can Wait" is the first intimate style production of the present organized University theater.

The "stage," is a medium-sized rug with the seats for the audience beginning two feet from the edge. Actors find their on-stage positions in the dark and the two stage entrances are merely aisles through the audience.

Trinity Lead

A three-lead is carried by John Moore, Annabelle Davis, and Edward Lyons, with the story centering around a Brooklyn-speaking prize fighter who tangles with an overzealous heavenly messenger 50 years too soon.

Guest artist is Kay Lo, captivating Pekingese pet of Mrs. A. L. Ramsdell, Eugene. Kay Lo has become an accomplished actor in a few rehearsals, although Properties Manager Marjorie Allingham will admit that sweetened dog biscuits work wonders in refreshing Kay Lo's memory of his exits and entrances.

Liberal Trends Of Past Told

Personal liberty, equality of opportunity, and the necessary machinery to bring public opinion to bear upon self government are the three elements involved in political liberalism, said at the University lecture, Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, lecture Thursday night.

Tracing the history of western Europe, he showed how liberalism was apparent in the countries of western Europe until Hitler began to take over. Totalitarian policies, which paralyze liberalism, came in as a result of humiliation.

The future of liberalism, said Dr. Sheldon, will depend upon the frequency and severity of war, and the opportunities for economic equalities among the different countries. The prospect is not bright in Europe, particularly in Germany and Italy, but the professor thinks Russia, China, and Brazil have chances for its development.

If the allies win the war, liberalistic policies will prevail, Dr. Sheldon predicted, but should the totalitarian powers win, all liberalistic tendencies will cease.

John Locke was the first to develop the theory of liberalism, he explained. Beneath the carrying out of the liberalistic policy are the elements of Christianity and science. Christianity represents the ethical side; and science, the intellectual side, the belief that man has the intelligence to carry out liberalistic ideas, and to solve the problems of the universe, Dr. Sheldon said.

"GIVE 'EM THE AXE"
