

ROTC Non-Com Cadets Assigned

Effective February 16, two appointments and assignments of cadet noncommissioned officers, company "A," ROTC, University of Oregon, were ordered by Major W. S. Averill, head of the military science department.

Assigned to be corporals are Pvt. Carl A. Gutmann, assistant squad leader, first squad, second platoon, relieving Cpl. Wallace K. Reid; and Pvt. Harvey A. Humphrey, assistant squad leader, third squad, second platoon, relieving Cpl. William L. O'Hearn.

The assignments are to be held until March 24, 1945, unless the officers are sooner relieved or reassigned.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

All house representatives for the Red Cross drive who were not present at the Side meeting Wednesday evening should pick up their material from Phyllis Donovan at the Alpha Delta Pi house before Saturday, February 24. This is important as the drive begins Monday, February 26.

House WAA representatives must turn in basketball participation checks by 5 p.m. today at the cage in Gerlinger.

Dr. John C. Merriam, for 24 years president of the Redwood league, will speak at 8 tonight in room 207 Chapin hall on the "Story of the Redwoods." The lecture is open to the public.

Cast Revealed

The entire play is under the direction of Ottilie T. Seybolt, associate professor of speech and dramatic arts. Anne Hardenbrook is in charge of costumes.

Badminton Final Games Scheduled for Next Week

Alpha hall and Sigma Kappa will vie Tuesday in the women's badminton tournament, and the winner of that game will meet Susan Campbell hall Thursday in the championship game. Grace Edwards, head of badminton for the WAA, has announced.

Play-offs within the three leagues were completed this week. Each of the four teams in each league played three sets of games. In league 1, Alpha hall was victorious over Gamma Phi Beta, Alpha Xi Delta, and Kappa Alpha Theta; league 2, Sigma Kappa, over Highland house, Chi Omega, and Pi Beta Phi; league 3, Susan Campbell, over Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Gamma Delta, and Delta Gamma.

Clips and Comments

(Continued from page two) instructing the novices in the delicate art of balancing themselves on skis. The head of winter sports remarked that many had already learned how to do snow plows, stem turns, and side slipping. "Also, sitzmarks," she added after a slight pause.

The old women's gym at Washington State has been opened as a roller rink, and the students seem to enjoy this new variety of entertainment. An added incentive for WSC coeds to write home for their skates was a sentence in the Evergreen to the effect that there were more men than girls present at the opening last week.

Kerensky, Exiled

Shortly after this, having subdued Lenin's first revolutionary uprising, Kerensky became president of the provisional government, only to see it overthrown five months later by Lenin, who made a separate peace with Germany.

Hunted by the Bolsheviks, he escaped from Russia in June, 1918. Since then he has devoted all his energy to the fight for freedom and democracy in Russia.

Kerensky will give a public address, open to students and faculty, Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the auditorium of the music building. His subject will be "Russia and the International Situation."

Globally Speaking

(Continued from page two) Our foreign policy has veered like the commie party line since 1789. In the early days of the republic our future as a sovereign state depended upon the adroitness of our diplomacy.

Washington Misunderstood Washington's farewell address is the most misunderstood state paper in our history. His plea against entangling alliances was not directed against ties with other powers, but against the perpetual alliance with France that threatened to involve us in the wars of the French Revolution.

Jefferson and Madison waged a constant struggle to maintain our independence during the Napoleonic wars. The American ship of state almost foundered, caught as it was between the Scylla of English Orders-in-Council and the Charybdis of Napoleon's continental system.

After the congress of Vienna our concern was the threat of the Holy Alliance to restore Spanish misrule in the countries south of us. Czar Nicholas' Ukase of 1822 was the ostensible reason for issuing of the Monroe Doctrine. The Monroe Doctrine was powerless if it had not been backed up by a tacit understanding with Canning to use the British fleet to prevent the ships of the Holy Alliance from reaching South America.

U. S. Concentrates on Home Our western expansion and the slavery question caused us to forget foreign affairs until 1861. The diplomacy of Charles Francis Adams was the greatest single factor in the preservation of the Union. He prevented English intervention on behalf of the south that was desired by the aristocracy, the "Times," Mr. Gladstone, and the city.

Reconstruction and the changing of America from an agrarian to an industrial country occupied our minds for the next three decades.

The Spanish-American war changed us from a colonial to a world power. John Hay's "open door" notes involved us in the Chinese puzzle. T. R. "the real" Roosevelt arbitrated the Russo-Japanese war and had America participate in the Algeiras conference of 1906. We believe if T. R. had been president in 1914 the World War would not have occurred. It is one of the "ifs" of history.

Paris Trip a Mistake Wilson's idealism was too much for a world made nationalistic by the last war. He should never have gone to Paris. The "Tiger" and the Earl of Dwyfor were too much for the one-time professor of political science. "Wilson talks like Jesus Christ and acts like Lloyd George," said Clemenceau.

The election of 1920 brought Warren Gamaliel Harding into power. "Normalcy" was the slogan now. For the next decade we were more interested in the stock market than in the state of the world.

The rise of dictators brought us into the stream of power politics again. Mr. Roosevelt realized we would have to resort to force to stop the Axis but the parochialism of the middle west made him afraid to state the true case.

It is up to us to use our power both military and financial to insure a durable peace. Upon America depends whether the world has security and prosperity or the World War III that will mean the end of western civilization.

Coed Teams Enter Finals In Basketball

After Thursday's league play-offs in women's intramural basketball, Delta Gamma and Susan Campbell found themselves semi-finalists. Winners Monday will play Gamma Phi Beta Tuesday to determine the championship. The all-star game is scheduled for Wednesday at 5 p.m. in Gerlinger.

Delta Gamma was led in their 17-12 victory over Sigma Kappa by Martha Berg, who scored 5 points. Others on the Delta Gamma team were Marilyn Glenn, Jackie Kenfield, Ann McGillicuddy, Shirley Gray, Janet Field, Jean Hall-ing, and Beatrice King. Bernice Reese, who led Sigma Kappa by 6 points, was teamed with June Rogers, Jackie Bogan, Joy Willard, Zona Zanders, Georgia Liskey, and Corine Fadden. Timekeepers were Peggy Powell and Jill Leachman; referees, Grace Scully and Wanda Lu Payne.

Susan Campbell maintained its halftime lead of 15-11, and won over Rebec house 34 to 20. Lorraine Petterson led Rebec scoring with 15 points; and Betty Crabb, Susan Campbell, with 16 points. Catherine Jones and Jean Bray were referees.

Other Susie players were Beverly Bennett, Nancy Hoerlin, Thelma Chaney, Barbara Adams, and Betty Jean Waite. For Rebec, Miss Petterson was backed by Thelma Wick, Phyllis Byers, Lois Hemmy, Grace Edwards, Dorothy Currier, Volney Smelecer, and Doris Hemmy.
