

Dr. Landros Will Discuss World Peace

A chance to air opinions and gain additional information on the San Francisco conference will be given students at the Westminster house forum at 6:30 p.m. Sunday. At that time Dr. Edna Landros, head of the classics department, will lead an informal discussion on the problems of the conference.

Dr. Landros, a member of the United Nations association, an affiliate of the Carnegie peace endowment, will, as a background for the discussion of the conference, briefly sketch the accomplishments of Dumbarton Oaks, and also mention the agreements reached at Bretton Woods. Her information on this last point will come from a U. S. treasury representative whom she recently interviewed in Portland on the banking system discussed at Bretton Woods.

Some of the problems to be discussed are: the zoning system to be used in Germany; the treatment to be accorded the German general staff; the attitude of the United Nations in the Greek situation, and the Polish question; the voting system of the security council; an outline of the Dumbarton Oaks proposal; and the attitude adopted by congress in the current discussion.

A social half-hour will precede the discussion, to which all students are invited to attend and participate.

San Francisco Ballet Troupe Will Perform in Igloo Tuesday

JOCELYN VOLLMAR and ONNA WHITE

Both of these young American ballerinas agree that though the life of a dancer seems a "hard lot" at times, no real artist would change her lot if she could. The two pictured above will be seen by campus and Eugene audiences Tuesday, April 10, when they appear with the San Francisco ballet at McArthur court.

FINAL TRYOUTS

Tryouts for this season's final University Theater production will be held next Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 4, Johnson hall. Plays under consideration include two Shakespearian comedies for possible out-of-door production and a modern Irish comedy. Mrs. Ottilie Seybolt, director, wishes all those interested to check in for tryouts even if it is impossible to stay for the entire tryout period.

Today's World

TWO AMERICAN and one British army rammed through nazi defenses along a 100-mile front to plunge within 17 miles of Hannover, 136 miles west of Berlin, and simultaneously flanked the great North sea port of Bremen in a drive across the north German plain.

BARON KANTARO SUZUKI struggled to form a "strong war cabinet" for Japan to meet the threat of Russian entrance into the Pacific war.

TWO RUSSIAN armies sought to close a giant pincers around Vienna as tank-led Soviet storm units knifed through a nazi defense belt at the southern city limits of the great city.

JAPANESE PLANES opened an assault against two U. S. carrier task forces off Okinawa island which has already cost them the loss of up to 161 planes.

THE GOVERNMENT is ready to seize some 200 soft coal mines in eight states to end a "wild-cat" strike that had cut production 35 per cent and threatened output of war-vital steel.

Stanford Chemist To Speak Thursday

Dr. Frederick Otto Koenig, professor of chemistry from Stanford university, will be the guest speaker at a public lecture Thursday, April 12, in room 207 Chapman at 7:30 p.m. His subject at the lecture, sponsored jointly by the University lectures committee and the University chapter of Sigma Xi, is "Origins of the Experimental Method."

Dr. Koenig will also speak at the joint meeting of the American Chemical society and the Pacific Northwest section of the Electrochemical society at Oregon State college April 16, which several members of the University chemistry department will attend. He will also talk at the chemistry seminar in McClure hall at 4 p.m. April 17.

Anyone Lose A Shirt, Etc.?

Strange things happen around the lost and found department, but one of the strangest occurred a short time ago. A complete suit of men's clothing was found and turned in to the department. Included in the collection were: trousers, shoes, socks, necktie, shirt, etc. Also found the same afternoon was the purple skirt of some Oregon coed.

The lost and found department wishes to warn the owners of these objects that they should call for them soon as the department will hold a sale in about two weeks to dispose of many of the lost items in the department's collection.

Director for the San Francisco ballet, coming Tuesday, April 10, to McArthur court, William Christensen, at one time headed a ballet troupe in Portland, performing at the Rose Festival, theaters, and at other affairs there. The San Francisco ballet, under Mr. Christensen, was founded over seven years ago as an outgrowth of the San Francisco Opera company.

This will be the ballet's first stop of their regularly-scheduled annual national tour of the country, and they will offer three distinct numbers in their performance. The first will be the second act of the beautiful "Swan Lake," with music by Tchaikowsky. The second number to be given is the perennial favorite "In Old Vienna" with music by Johann Strauss. The concluding number on the program will be the popular "Nutcracker" (Please turn to page four)

Shackrat King and Queen Rule Journalism Festivity; Turnbull Orates for Prize

By BETTY STEWART and WINIFRED ROMTVEDT

Triumphantly mounting their coronation platform, Jeanne Simmonds, Shackrat renowned as the Pennsylvania kid, possessor of the blooming personality, and dauntless newshound, and Shubert Fendrick, Shackrat renowned as book reviewer unorthodox, personality boy supreme, and navy recruit (yes, he really passed) seated themselves on thrones of green and gold, and were crowned "Queen and King of the Shackrats" by George (Milk-booster) Turnbull.

The journalistic dignitaries of Eugene and the University of Oregon breathlessly watched as crowns made of lead slugs and Emerald mastheads were placed on the slippery black crop of Fendrick and the wavy tresses of Miss Simmonds. The crowns were the handiwork of Managing Editor Marguerite Wittwer. Even the most seasoned journalist present was amazed at the beauty of the two white orchids which were pinned on Queen Simmonds.

A hula dance by Erna Gawehn started the party moving; Crooner Phyl Perkins sang, and Business Manager Annamae Winship drank a coke in 17 seconds to win a giant cigar. She competed against Editor Anne Craven and Oregon Editor Edith Newton.

Speaking extemporaneously on selected short subjects, Mr. Turnbull, acting dean of the school of journalism, George Hart, city editor of the Eugene Register-Guard, Carl Webb, manager of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers' association, (Please turn to page four)

Oregon Voters Must Decide New Programs

Voters of the state of Oregon will have the responsibility of a special election June 22 or determining whether or not the state system of higher education will get $4,000,000 for new buildings at the University, the state college, and the colleges of education. This matter was referred to them by the state legislature, which adjourned in March, and would provide a 5-mill, 2-year property tax. The property levy, also to raise $6,000,000 for new state institution buildings, would be cancelled by $10,000,000 in surplus income tax revenues, as are other state taxes.

If voters improve the measure the school system's 10-year building program of $5,000,000 may be carried out. The additional $1,000,000 was provided in the governor's (Please turn to page four)
