Latest Excuse Given For Absence of Story

Past masters in the art of making excuses are college students. If it isn't one excuse, it's another. A sincere attempt to instruct students in the gentle (?) art of re-writing news events via the telephone have resulted in the most outlandish problems and excuses in the 9 o'clock elementary journalism class.

Half of the class was loaded with information and the other half of the class was assigned to call them to take down notes and rewrite the story. What would be the best time to call? It was virtually impossible to agree on a time suitable to all the members of the class.

"How about 8 o'clock?" the professor asked hopefully.

"Gotta study then," the students insisted.

"Well, then, 6 o'clock?"

"But we eat at 6," several ladies wailed.

The professor thought for a moment, then suggested, "You aren't supposed to be eating or studying at 11."

"Oh, but that's when we sleep."

Finally, perspiring slightly, the professor managed to persuade them to call at 10:25. The next morning he found a note in one of his boxes. It was the epitome of all excuses:

"At 10:25 I called and the line was busy. I keep call every five minets until about 10:50 when one of the fellows took the phone until 11:05 or 11:10 when I called again and this timed they answered and said she had gone to bed and they would not call her."

Shredded Wheat Co. To Award Prizes

The contest provides for prizes of $40, $30 and $20 for the three best presentations.

Coed: "I'm telling you for the last time, you can't kiss me."

Man on the campus: "Fine. I knew you'd weaken sooner or later."

First student: Let's cut class and take in a movie. Second student: Can't, old man, I need the sleep.

Year's Dates Set, But Not With Men

*Perhaps the matter of next year's academic calendar is far removed from the student's mind, but administrative circles in Johnson hall have had to look ahead, and the calendar for 1945-46 has been approved by the chancellor's executive council.

Freshman week and registration is scheduled for September 17-22, with classes starting September 24. November 22-25 will be allowed for Thanksgiving, and final exams will end December 18.

With winter term registration scheduled for January 2, the last examination will be March 22. Spring term will open on April 1, and exams will last until June 14. Commencement is set for June 16.

Seniors Must File Credentials for Jobs

All seniors, whether or not they are looking for immediate jobs, should have their credentials filed soon at the employment bureau, Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, has announced. Forms must be sent to former instructors and employers to give the student references which are the basis of confidential reports to prospective employers.

Dean Onthank stressed the importance of filing credentials while the student is in school, as later on faculty members may be absent. With a complete record on file, the graduate may write the University for necessary and valuable references.

References of students who plan to teach are handled through a placement bureau at the school of education.
