

By BOB CHAPMAN

Since the pace-setting Portland Beavers are supplying most of the sports interest on the campus and because "Oregon Sunshine" is more prevalent than ever, your writer decided to dig up available information about the proposed Erb Memorial Student Union building which might be of interest to sports enthusiasts. No doubt, everyone will be satisfied to know that "inusts" prepared by Will V. Norris for the $900,000 building include: bowling alleys, a pool and billiard room, a combination card and game room, a general hobby area, and an athletic ticket office. (Anse Cornell should feel great now that he has a new office in the offing. He'll probably double the capacity of McArthur court and Hayward field to take care of new orders). Other sidelights which might be of interest include a tavern and an outside club.

Of course one is looking into the future, but when that day comes Oregonians will have almost everything in the way of sports facilities except a nine-hole golf course such as Stanford has in its own back yard. One of the best student union buildings is that of the University of Minnesota. The Gophers have 16 alleys in the basement in addition to a huge billiard and game room. By the way, the main ballroom has floor space for 1,200 couples and an adjacent foyer for the overflow.

Speaking of golf, Harry "Doc" Somers really played a great game Saturday afternoon. Rain didn't bother him in the least but Doc wants to be a Byron Nelson of the fairways and scores are a touchy subject. Wonder if he made a 65?

WAA Softball, Tennis Matches Scheduled for Spring Term

In accordance with their usual program of spring sports, the WAA has scheduled the opening of the coed softball and tennis tournaments for April 19, when the first tennis matches of the season will be held on the courts behind John Straub and the first interleague softball game will be held on the diamond behind Gerlinger.

All houses wishing to enter teams are requested to submit by April 16 entry blanks containing not only the name of the house represented but also the special name chosen for the team. Softball teams should be entered with Esther Quier at the Alpha Omicron Pi house and tennis teams with Mary Anne Hansen at the Alpha Phi house. According to a new rule adopted this term by the WAA cabinet, once a team has been entered and games assigned, the house may not withdraw without due cause. The penalty for withdrawal is loss of the right to enter tourney sports sponsored by the WAA the following term.

20 Softball Teams

The softball teams will be organized as the volleyball teams were fall term; the 20 teams will be divided into four leagues and the winners of the leagues will meet in the finals. The game May 22 will decide the winner of the tournament, and on May 23 the two all-star teams picked from the outstanding players of the house teams will meet. Each tennis team is to consist of five members, trying their positions on the court according to ability. Each player will be pitted against the opposing team according to the position which she holds.

Defending champions of the tournaments will be Delta Gamma, holder of the softball crown, and Alpha Delta Pi, tennis titlists.

Dr. Moll Publishes Poem In Aussie Magazine

A long narrative poem written by E. G. Moll, professor of English and acting head of the English department, was published in the last issue of "Southerly," magazine of the Australian-English association. The title of the work is "Figure in Clay."

Experience Assured, Advancement Rapid

"If people want experience, the Emerald night staff's the place to get it," panted Chief Night Editor Shirley Peters in an exclusive interview Monday at her hangout atop the press. Vacancies are open every night of the week, especially Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, she announced, and may be obtained merely by picking up the phone daintily with one pinky and calling 1780. Ring twice and ask for Pete. "Advancement is rapid," she explained. "Look at me—two weeks ago I didn't even know what a linotype was."

Progress of War News On Display to Students

The progress of war news from the reporter until its publication, on display in a circulating exhibit provided by Time magazine in room 105 journalism building, will be open until Wednesday noon. Copies of all the processes involved are mounted on three extra-large cards nearly five feet in height. Sent to the University through Hunter Van Sicklen, former Oregon journalism student, now representing Time, Life, and Fortune in the Northwest, the exhibit has been on display since Thursday.

AD STAFF MEETING

An informal, informative discussion on advertising layouts and salesmanship will be given by Carl C. Webb, assistant professor of journalism, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in 104 journalism building. Annamae Winship, Emerald business manager, urges all members of the layout and ad soliciting staff to attend.

Inter-dorm Formal Slated for Saturday

The "Arabesque Ball," a spring dance sponsored by the Interdorm council for dormitory students and their guests, will be held in John Straub hall 9-12 p.m. Saturday, April 14. Art Holman's orchestra has been engaged for this formal dance.

The council urges men to date dorm women early so that more people may arrange to attend.

Because it will be difficult for service men to get corsages on short notice, it is requested that campus men omit them. There will be no admission charge at the door.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

There will be a meeting of all old members of the Order of O at 11 a.m. today upstairs in the Side.

All houseboys are to be prepared to accede to the wishes of Treasurer Ted Kent, when he makes the rounds for monetary advancement Wednesday.

JOB DISCUSSION

Alpha Kappa Delta, sociology honorary, will meet at 4 p.m. Wednesday, April 11, in the AWS room in Gerlinger. There will be a discussion of job analysis in the field of social work and allied occupations. Sociology students are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.
