VOLUME XLVI UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, THURSDAY, APRIL 12, 1945 NUMBER 99

Kwamas to Number 30; Will be Tapped May 17

Thirty white Kwama sweaters, rather than the present 19, will appear on the campus next year, it was announced Wednesday by Audrey Holliday, ASUO president. At the same time, Phi Theta Upsilon, junior women's service honorary, will be diminished from 29 to 20 members.

The change in total membership has been made to interest more freshmen in participating in activities and thus become eligible for Kwama in their sophomore year. This will relieve the work load for Phi Thetas.

A second plan will separate the duties of the two groups to give the Kwamas more service duties such as ushering. The Phi Thetas will then devote more of their time to orienting and advising freshman women. The junior honorary will also act in encouraging scholarship.

The tapping of next year's Kwamas will take place at the ASUO nominating assembly May 17. Phi Theta Upsilon will tap its new members at the election banquet May 24.

As in the past, the responsibility of choosing new members rests with outgoing members.

Technique and Variety Of S. F. Ballet Reviewed

By MARILYN MAY

Dance technique, costuming, and variety of ballets presented by the San Francisco Ballet company highly impressed a capacity crowd of town people and University students at McArthur court, Tuesday night. William Christensen, ballet master and choreographers, was largely responsible for the success of this troupe.

Rude and sophisticated Vienna was interpreted by the ballet, "In Old Vienna," which was the most popular with the Eugene audience. Comedy was the predominate factor of the first scene. At a sidewalk cafe, a waiter, three haughty ladies, and Can-Can dancers added to the colorful confusion.

Onna White, highly acclaimed for her role as the ballerina of the second act of this ballet, personified charm and ballet perfection. The beautiful costuming gave this scene the richness of old Vienna.

Russian Dancers Acclaimed

The Russian dancers brought wild acclaim from the audience as they gleefully performed their complicated dance in the "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikowsky. The technique displayed in the seven dances of the short ballet was memorable. Gisella Caccialanza proved her rightful place as prima ballerina of the ballet company in the "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy." The audience marvelled at the gracefulness of all the performers and gave them a great ovation.

One of the most famous ballets,

Publication Managers Will be Chosen Friday

Editing the Emerald for the 1945-46 school year will be Louise Montag, junior in journalism. The appointment, subject to approval of the ASUO executive council, was made Wednesday at the educational activities board meeting.

Miss Montag has worked three years on the paper as a reporter, night staff and copy desk worker, and this year holds the post of associate editor.

Only other applicant for the position was Marguerite Wittwer, sophomore in journalism and Emerald managing editor.

The business managers of the Oregon and Emerald will be selected at a board meeting Friday, April 13.

Three More 'Dishes' Stirred into Ragout

Campus houseboys came through with three more selections for their "favorite dish." The following people were chosen: Lois Donham by the boys of Kappa Kappa Gamma; Lila Nevin by the dish jockies of Delta Delta Delta; and Edith Allen by the kitcheneers of Alpha Omicron Pi.

All "favorite dish" selections will be judged in advance, and the finalist will be announced at the Butler's Ball on April 21.

Applications for Aptitude Tests Due Immediately

Only six students have turned in applications for the premedical aptitude test to be given Friday, April 13, Dr. H. B. Yocom, head of the biology department, announced Wednesday. This test, sponsored by the Association of American Medical colleges, is a requisite for admission to a medical school. All pre-medical students who will apply for entrance to medical schools during 1945 or the spring of 1946 must take this test, and should send their applications to Dr. Yocom immediately.

The test will ascertain the student's potential ability in medical schools and will measure his general information and scientific background, enabling the committee to draw accurate conclusions from a given set of data.

Odeon Plays Due April 21

Any student who is anxious to have an original one-act play he has written produced at the third annual Odeon, student creative-art show on Monday, April 23, must hand it in to Peggy Overland, chairman, by the end of this week. Because of the difficulty connected with staging a play in the auditorium of the music building, and because of the time element involved, any play submitted must follow certain rules, Miss Overland declared. It must not exceed 25 minutes.

The scenery must require little or no staging due to the obstacles involved in setting up props on the stage of the music auditorium.

There should be few characters.

Second Attempt

This is the second time that an attempt is being made to present a play on the program of Odeon, Miss Overland said. Due to several difficulties, partly arising from war conditions, a play was not included on the 1944 program. In 1943, a one-act play, "Family Portraits" by Virginia Lippman, was produced. It received acclaim from students and faculty members, and from guest critics present, Miss Overland said. Any student whose play is chosen to be presented has the opportunity to receive constructive criticism from Oregon people who have achieved fame in the creative art fields.

Only one copy of the play will be necessary. The student whose work is chosen must be prepared to meet with the cast and the director and to work with them on the production.
