

Delta Gamma Winner of 'Sing'; Marilyn Holden, Scholarship

Delta Gamma's chorus, dressed in pale blue and white, and singing "In the Still of the Night," won first place and possession of the Panhellenic cup at the All-Campus Sing Friday night. Sherry Ross hall, the only men's organization to enter the competition, won the Interfraternity cup for their rendition of "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes."

Honorable mention went to Gamma Phi Beta, Susan Campbell hall, and Kappa Alpha Theta.

Also at the sing, Marilyn Holden, president of the junior class, was named recipient of the Schwering Memorial scholarship, which was established in honor of the late Dean Hazel P. Schwering. This $300 scholarship is the largest one to be given undergraduate students, and its continuance next year was assured when Mrs. Perrie L. Dolph, president of Oregon Mothers, and instigator of the award, presented a $300 check to Kathie Dunn, out-going president of Heads of Houses. The latter organization carried out plans for the scholarship. Mrs. Dolph also presented a $100 bill to Dorothy Godknecht, junior in journalism, as a scholarship award.

Emcee Bob Moran kept the audience entertained as minutes passed with no decision from the judges. Evans Cantrell crooned several numbers, and then, at suggestion from the audience, Moran accompanied himself in several novelty songs. Barbara Bentley, song leader for Alpha Delta Pi, was called from the audience to lead some Oregon songs. Moran next called Evans Sax from the top of the bleachers to help make waiting less tedious.

The interpretation of "In the Still of the Night" by the Delta Gamma group was exceptional, both in tone quality and group coherence. Jackie Kenfield seemed to have complete control of her group. The small solo portion as sung by Yvonne Prather was effective with the mood of the song. Susan Campbell's song "Let All My Life Be Music" also showed effective leadership and spirit. Gamma Phi Beta's "In the Autumn" was one of the outstanding numbers with regard to polish and unusual treatment. Maxine Cady did an excellent job of directing. "Were You There" as sung by Kappa Alpha Theta put a moving climax on the program. The balance and quality of tone was noteworthy, as was Nancy Kirkpatrick's leadership.

Judges were: Florence W. Hutchinson, director of music at the Oregon College of Education at Monmouth; Milo A. Wold, director of music at Pacific university; and Marjorie Scobert Wilson, music director at Roosevelt Junior high school in Eugene.

Judges for the scholarship were: Mrs. Golda Wickham, acting dean of women; Mrs. Perrie L. Dolph, permanent chairman; Mrs. H. H. Stapleton, Roseburg; Dr. Burt Brown Barker, vice president of the University; Mary Riley, out-going president of AWS; Martha Beard Bienvenue, president of Mortar Board; Signe Eklund, president of Phi Theta Upsilon; Martha Thorsland, president of Kwama, and Kathryn Dunn, out-going president of Heads of Houses.

She was only the censor's daughter, but she knew when to cut it out.

Sailor's Dream Swim Pageant Wins Applause

By LAVERNE GUNDERSON
Palms, stars, evergreens, and soft music formed the background for the annual Amphibian pageant given Friday afternoon in the women's pool. The theme was "A Sailor's Dream," and the sailor was Evans Sax.

The pageant began with Sax falling asleep at the pool's edge. When he awakened he found Mary Lu Welsh sitting cozily beside him and Doris Trask swaying to a hula rhythm. As he dreamed, the mermaids performed drills and routines, displaying their grace and ability. Every type of stroke and many clever formations were used.

Peels of laughter and applause arose when Miss Trask rescued Milo Woodward from "drowning" as she floundered about the pool in a suit a la 1900. The two clowns returned to interfere with the swimming tricks of other Amphibians.

As a concluding act, the swimmers, candles in one hand, presented a beautiful and impressive scene as they skimmed about the darkened pool in a variety of skillful formations.

After the show, Miss Dorothea Moore, pageant director, was presented with a corsage in appreciation of her efforts.

Drive to Open At Auction Tuesday

An auction, introducing the seventh war loan drive on the campus, will be held Tuesday, May 8, at 4 p.m. in front of the College Side inn. Bob Moran and Evans Sax will officiate as co-auctioneers. "We have several surprises, including SOMETHING which has never before been actually auctioned on this campus," promises Pat Percival, chairman.

In addition to this "SOMETHING," there will be one article of value from each house given to the highest bidder in war stamps. Included in this group are a pair of skis, a clock, and a huge cut-glass cologne bottle. Autographed pictures of Joann Holstad I and her court will also be auctioned.

All students are urged to participate in the auction as the money will help fill the campus quota of $108,000 in the current bond drive.

Weekend Church Notes

Stopping in Eugene this weekend, the Rev. Ralph D. Hyslop, minister to students for the Congregational church, will be entertained informally Saturday, and Sunday will be a guest at the morning service and speaker at the College Fireside at 8 p.m. at the First Congregational church. His discussion will center around the attitudes of college students toward the various churches, as represented to him in his contacts throughout the United States.

Preceding the meeting he will be honored at a dessert at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Calvin Crumbaker, 1031 Mill street. Assisting Mary Kay Williamson, student director, will be five hostesses: Pat Howe, Elsie Ball, Ellen Sutherland, Sylvia Jensen, and Marjorie Silvis.

Wesley House

Wesley house invites all students and their friends to an open house 3:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Refreshments will be served by Alice Prather, Marilyn Servas, and Evelyn Diamant, and hostesses are Velita Durland and Betty Lou Cramer.

At 7 p.m. Sunday Alice Pepion and Charles Grey will discuss "The Bretton Woods Proposal" and the "Church's Attitude Toward the Dumbarton Oaks Plan as Expressed at the Cleveland Conference." The Cleveland conference was held by the American Federation of Churches to discuss Dumbarton Oaks.

Wesley house is located at 1258 Kincaid street.

Westminster House

Mrs. Golda Wickham, acting dean of women, will be guest speaker at the Sunday morning discussion at Westminster house at 9:30 a.m. Sunday morning. Coffee and rolls will be served, and visiting mothers are especially invited to attend. Westminster will be open day and night during Junior Weekend for the use of students and visitors.

Law-BA Baseball Game To Feature Mystery Ump

By GEORGE LUOMA

Unanimous vote of the law school student body Friday turned down the selection of an umpire for the annual law school vs. BA school softball game today, 1:30 p.m. at Howe field. Allegations of bias and prejudice were made against Jim Lund, the one-man committee, appointed by Junior Weekend officials, for management of the traditional athletic event. Evidence presented at the student body meeting, by a committee on sportsmanship, consisting of Catherine Crombie, Alva Granquist, and Kay Hill, indicated Jim Lund is a student of the school of business administration.

Law students advised Junior Weekend officials that only one person on the campus is capable of interpreting rules of softball in keeping with the intricate strategy "plays" that the law students employ annually in completely befuddling their B.A. adversaries.

Said Selection Important
Law students stipulated their playing would be considerably handicapped unless proper selection of an umpire was made. Furthermore, the law students pointed out, attendance at previous lickings of the B.A. students was sufficient evidence that the crowd expected to attend the game would be satisfied only with the same selection of an umpire.

Rules of the game, according to Don Turner, commissioner of athletics, and Harry Skerry, student body president, prohibited revealing the name of the person recommended to be umpire. However, a three-man committee on interpretation, including John Hathaway, Elmer Sahlstrom, and Rollin Wood, stated that the person recommended was a big man in west coast athletic circles.

The pre-game strategy meeting closed with unanimous approval of a resolution formulated by Gene Conklin for the law school to extend a public invitation for all students, their friends and families, to witness this annual sports event between law and B.A. students.
