

At B.A. School: CPA Exams Soon, Review Out

By GEORGE LUOMA

The University of Oregon's school of business administration students and faculty have had a busy and public-spirited week in answering many requests from the community and state for their assistance and advice.

Professor C. L. Kelly reports three BA students, Elmer Sahlstrom, Gene Leo, and Leonard Ray, will take CPA examinations in Portland next week. The University's business administration school is noted for outstanding records made by its students on the accounting exams. It is a matter of common knowledge in accounting circles that a higher percentage of University of Oregon school of business administration students have passed the certified public accountant examinations than from any other similar institution in the United States.

The Oregon Business Review, a leading college business publication which is issued each month by the University school will appear on desks of Oregon's leading business executives within two weeks. The leading article about state mineral industries is written by F. W. Libbey, director of the state department of geology. An informative article on the personal income tax, by O. K. Burrell, professor of business administration, promises to be of special service to Oregon's many citizens in the higher-income brackets.

Dean Victor P. Morris of the school of business has carried his usual heavy schedule of off-campus speaking engagements. He attended a meeting in Portland Wednesday and delivered a speech at the Dallas Kiwanis club Thursday. Dean Morris attended the Portland meeting of the state civil service merit system council as chairman of the group.

Professor A. L. Lomax, also of the BA school, has been called by the Portland Junior Chamber of Commerce to discuss the Portland import problem May 22. Professor O. K. Burrell will talk to the Eugene Active club on inflation.

Employment Office Needs Wartime Help

"The need for some thousands of workers, both men and women, in the shipyard industries alone is urgent," Mrs. Virginia Hathaway of the University employment office declared today.

Draftsmen, stenographers, welders, salepeople, and child care workers are sorely needed for important war work, she said.

Because of the recent armistice announcement in Europe many people have left important war jobs which must be filled immediately in order for navy contracts to be filled to carry the war into the Pacific and final victory.

Washington Calls

Calls from Washington, D.C., have been received asking for more stenographers, and draftsmen. There are also jobs open to the travel-minded girls of 21 years of age or over in Pearl Harbor in the stenographic field. Permanent jobs for men are open in government ordnance plants. Plenty of summer and part time work is also available to the energetic student.

Office USES Branch

Mrs. Hathaway also pointed out that this office on the campus is now a branch of the United States employment office downtown, and that there is a civil service recruiter in Eugene until next Saturday, seeking new workers.

Students are requested to visit the employment office on the campus, located in the YMCA hut, and fill out the registration cards. Ask to see Mrs. Hathaway or Mrs. Winnie Hooker who will try to place students in their desired fields of occupation. Office hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Mu Phi Thanks Disc Patrons

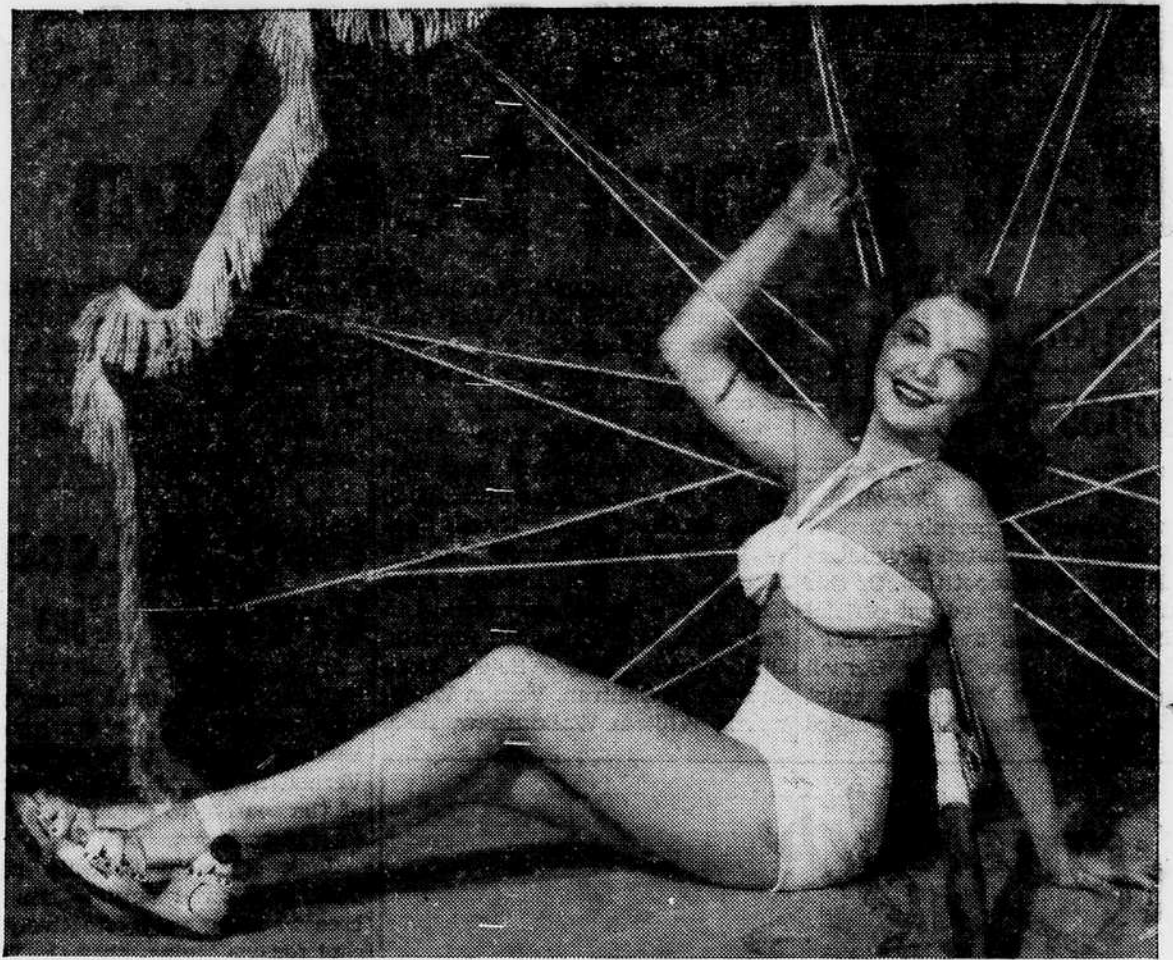

Appreciation for the cooperation of various campus and town groups for their assistance and cooperation in presenting the library recorded concerts has been expressed by the patronesses of Mu Phi Epsilon.

The group especially wishes to thank Miss Clarice Krieg, acting librarian; the library committee which includes Miss Bernice Rise, chairman; Miss True Morris, Mrs. William Chilcote, Miss Ella Carrick and Miss Elaine Holmes; Kappa Kappa Gamma for use of its recording machine; the Oregon Daily Emerald and the Eugene Register-Guard; Betty Bennett of Mu Phi actives; Mrs. J. Murry Wiltse of Mu Phi alumni and all those who gave concerts and loaned records.

We could go on paraphrasing Longfellow's line, but luscious Barbara Bates' lines are much more interesting, don't you think? Green-eyed Barbara, a former Denver model, graces the cast of Walt Wanger's Technicolor production of "Salome, Where She Danced." Babs has been tagged the "B a B Girl," which initials accentuate their positive qualities of boundless "beauty and bounce."

Annual Motar Board Ball Set May 18

Friday, May 18, will see the University campus go in reverse as far as dating is concerned for that is the date for the annual formal Mortar Board ball. The girl-date-boy dance is planned this year with the theme, "Midsummer Night's Dream," featuring Evans Cantrell's orchestra.

According to tradition it is up to the girl to first of all date the boy then take him to dinner the night of the ball, give him a corsage, provide transportation, arrange checking and in general take over the responsibilities that generally are the man's job.

The dance is planned in honor of Mortar Board pledges, Signe Eklund, Janet Douglas, Louise Montag, Charlotte Calder, Phyllis Evans, Bernice Granquist, and Mary Corrigan.

General chairman of the ball,
