

Lone Letterman Reports

Tex Busy Working New Men

King Football has returned to Oregon and Coach Tex Oliver is whipping into shape a very inexperienced Lemon and Green squad this year.

The bright spot in the picture is the return of ex-Webfoot letterman halfback Bob Reynolds. The rest of the squad will be made up of 4-Fs and freshmen without varsity experience.

Oregon's first clash will be with Washington in Seattle Sept. 29. The Webfeet will play successive Saturday afternoon tilts against Idaho in Eugene, Oregon State at Corvallis, Washington State in Eugene, UCLA in Los Angeles, Washington in Portland, WSC at Pullman, and California at Berkeley. Thanksgiving week will be vacant before the final big game against Oregon State here December 1.

The potentialities of the Webfeet cannot be known until the first game—possibly later.

Two candidates for end are on the sidelines with injuries, Dale Warberg and Abe Hathaway. Fullback Walt Donovan and quarterback Terry Metcalf also have been slightly injured.

Thirty-one candidates reported for the first workout about two weeks ago, and they have shown marked improvement in succeeding sessions. Fifty-eight candidates have appeared so far.

Four new men, two guards, a tackle and an end reported on Tuesday, and six had turned out Monday.

Entrance exams have conflicted with practice times this week and have robbed the squad of valuable training.

Despite the lack of experience, Webfoot fans predict the squad will make a creditable showing. At least early predictions point out that the Lemon and Green will meet teams that are up against similar odds in the northern division.

Moore, Former Student Will Publish Newspaper

Hal Moore, a former journalism major at Oregon, has announced his plan to launch a new newspaper centering in cultural activities. Coming off the press October 12, the paper, "Moore's Oregon Weekly," will cover such fields as music, education, books and writers, art and social problems.

An employee of The Oregonian for 13 years, Moore has also worked at Astoria and Albany.

OSC Prepares for First Football Clash Sept. 29

Our country cousins at Corvallis are preparing their squad for their first football game which is scheduled for Sept. 29. This game is a home contest with the Camp Beale Bears so the Beavers have the spirit on their side.

However, the Army team will have the benefit of older, more experienced players, and they won't be hampered by any manpower shortage.

Lon Stiner is starting his campaign with only one returning letterman, Bob Stevens, who is slated for the fullback position.

Helping Stiner at his job are Quentin Greenough and Bill Howard. Greenough is an ex-all-coast center with the Beaver eleven back in '41. Howard is an ex-player from the University of Southern California where he filled in the fullback position.

Two former Rook football men have turned out for practice—Lew Hassman and Harvey Cutts. Hassman was a numeral winner as a guard on the 1942 Rook eleven. And Cutts played center on the 1939 freshman club.

Hal Puddy, a basketball letterman, is a leading candidate for end, and John Becharas is out for quarterback. Becharas played in that position on the Wolves in the campus army football league in 1943.

The rest of the squad is composed of former high school players and discharged war veterans who are getting their first taste of college football.

Contrary to early expectations, Stiner won't be able to use any of the men in the NROTC unit on the campus. A navy rule forbids their taking part in intercollegiate athletics until they have been in the corps on campus for a term.

New Student House

A new student house on the campus this fall is Judson house at the corner of Alder street and East Eleventh avenue. This new organization occupying the old Kappa Sigma house is sponsored by the First Baptist church of Eugene, of which Dr. Vance H. Webster is pastor. Although the majority of the girls living there are Baptist, the house is not limited to girls of that denomination.

Mrs. Walter O. Van Atta is the housemother and there are now 44 girls registered.

Oregon Alumni Visit Campus

Within the last few days the school of journalism has had as visitors two majors in the service—Winston Allard, 1936, M.S. 1939, who has just returned to civil life after four years in army public relations including two years in the "Aleutians," and Douglas W. Polivka, 1938, who has spent six years in the marines.

For one year Major Polivka, then a lieutenant, was editor of the Marine Recruiter, national magazine of the U.S.M.C. Accompanied by Mrs. Polivka (Josephine Rice, law '36) the major was on his way to Camp Pendleton, near San Diego.

Major Polivka was in charge of the news coverage of the Iwo Jima campaign for the marines.

Major Allard got into "civvies" for the first time in four years while in Eugene last weekend. He has gone to the University of Missouri, where he is to be assistant professor of journalism.

Faculty Committee Appointments Made

President Harry K. Newburn announced appointment of several student members of faculty committees. The assembly committee will be composed of Jean Kirkwood, Marguerite Wittwer, Douglas Moore, and Bob Moran. A newly-organized committee, it will have charge of all assemblies during the school year and make arrangements for assembly programs and entertainment.

New members of the educational activities committee are Signe Eklund, D. Lu Simonsen, and Ed Allen. On the athletic committee are Gil Roberts, Jack Craig, and Ed Allen. Gordon Bennett, Janet Douglas, and Mary Corrigan are new members of the student discipline committee. The judiciary committee will have as members Gene Conklin and Alva Granquist. Don Turner has been appointed to the military education committee.

Honor Students

Students who are reading for honors have been requested to register with D. Ray P. Bowen as soon as possible, according to recent faculty announcement. Dr. Bowen's office is in 116 friendly hall. Dr. Bowen has also asked that all students registering for undergraduate reading and conference courses 305, 405, or Thesis 303 and 403, contact him in order to clear these registrations with his office.
