

Opening Assemblies Welcome Fresh; Highlights of School Year Presented

Freshman women students were given a glimpse into the activity side of college life at the AWS assembly Thursday afternoon in the music building, climaxing a full week of course-planning, major meetings and assemblies.

AWS president Signe Eklund announced a new freshman big sister counseling program for freshman women to go into effect during registration. Each big sister is responsible for one room in the dormitory and will help orientate new students to college life at Oregon. The girls will be identified by arm bands.

Several prominent campus figures were introduced by Signe Eklund. ASUO president Ed Allen welcomed new students and Dean Golda Wickham and Dean Karl Onthank addressed the assembly. Mary Corrigan, YWCA president, Gay Edwards, WAA president, Janet Douglas, Mortar Board president, Margery Skordahl, Phi Theta president, and Ann Burgess, president of Kwama, were introduced, and each explained the activities of her respective organization.

Office Open

The newly-painted AWS office is now open in McArthur court, Miss Eklund announced. She expressed the hope that new and old women students would drop in "for a chat" and for special information. The AWS officers will be on hand at different periods to greet all students.

The ASUO assembly for all University students, held Wednesday night at McArthur court, featured a program of entertainment and inaugurated freshmen into college life. The various campus officers were introduced by ASUO president Ed Allen.

Freshman week began officially Tuesday night when a major's meeting acquainted students with their chosen fields of study. Members of the faculty were present to guide newcomers in planning courses, and to aid in discussion and answer questions.

COOP HAS BOOKS

Due to early ordering of textbooks, an ample supply will be available for students registering, Marion F. McClain, manager of the student Co-op, announced Thursday.

To accommodate students during the first week of classes, the Co-op will be open from 7:45 a.m., to 5 p.m., resuming their regular hours of 8:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. the following week.

Rushing Period To Begin Soon

A short rush period for entering students and for students who have not participated in rushing or pledging previously will be held shortly after the beginning of this term. Mary McCandless, Panhellenic president, announced Thursday.

Rushes are instructed to pay their original rushing fee at the cashier's office for this period, scheduled to begin three weeks after the commencement of fall classes. Prospective pledges are asked to place their names on the rush list at the office of the dean of women. Mrs. Audrey May is the new executive secretary of Panhellenic.

Duck Tracks

Here we are back again on the same old beat. During our vacation we were surprised by the good news of V-J Day, thus insuring the football and the regular pre-war athletic set-up.

A great many students were wondering if they were going to graduate without seeing a football game or any kind of the big rallies and festivities associated with King Football.

Now that the King of Sports has returned to the campus we can also expect the return of many of the old traditions that faded into the background with the coming of the war. With victory came the return to a peace time sports basis.

When we have our rallies we will be expecting to see you all out there giving the team your best support. It takes lots of enthusiasm and pep to show the fellows that they are fighting in the right direction.

With our return to peace time enrollment we should have rallies and a cheering section that will surpass any of the pre-war efforts that Oregon produced. We of this department will expect to see you all out for the home games and really put your heart into the rallies and cheering.

In succeeding issues of the Emerald, we'll be able to give you a preview of what to expect from the varsity squad this year. Their first conference game pits them against the experienced Washington Huskies in Seattle next Saturday.
