

YW To Give Party Tonight At Bungalow

By Phyl Perkins

The doors of the "Y" Bungalow will swing wide this evening at 6:30 and the mellow notes of records pour out while scores of curious freshmen pour in. The look of anticipation in their eyes has been prompted by rumors that within the Bungalow hides the future of each and every unsuspecting frosh girl on the campus. The rumor, which Major Skordahl and Ann Scripter, cochairmen, are spreading as rapidly as possible, has a semblance of truth, for the evening's program follows Clarabelle Alphadelta, the typical UO female frosh, through two other most important years at college.

Ready To Win

Clarabelle the Freshman, enacted by Jeanne Lichty, comes up to the University glowing with vitality ready to win the hearts of all Eds and Coeds with her renditions board in room 207, Chapman of "Romance" from the Desert

President Newburn Will Meet Upperclassmen Today at Mac.

By Betty Stewart

Presenting your new president, Dr. Harry K. Newburn—a man who likes fishing, gardening and athletics. Upperclassmen of the University will meet him for the first time at 11 a.m. today in McArthur court and freshmen will have a chance to get better acquainted after their brief introduction during freshman week.

Newburn is a versatile man according to an account given by one of his Iowa colleagues. Before his academic life as dean of the liberal arts school at the University of Iowa and now as Oregon's president, he served as a coach following his junior year in college. He played three years of varsity football and basketball. During his vacations he was a lifeguard and a member of road and bridge gangs.

Sold Papers

Still further back in his life he sold papers in Cuba, Illinois, and organized the carrier boys there. He has always been keenly interested in business. Another interest which he still maintains is the study of the history of ideas.

The story of his achievements includes the development of a new liberal art curriculum designed for the students' needs, service on many national educational boards, work on war education and a trip abroad to study European public education methods.

Allen To Preside

Ed Allen, ASUO president, will speak briefly before introducing

Jobs for Vets' Wives

Wives of veterans attending the University who are "in the market" for full or part time employment service, located in the YMCA building.

A number of positions are now open in downtown stores and offices as well as in several of the administration offices on the campus.

Traffic Situation Worse; Campus To Be Patrolled

By Joan Beckman

University of Oregon students, in spite of the warnings of Police Chief L. L. Pittenger, have continued to violate speed limits, the all-night parking rule, ignore stop signs, carry passengers on running boards and disregard parking regulations. The danger zone of the campus traffic is Thirteenth street, as every student crossing from class to class has found. According to Pittenger, the traffic situation has grown steadily worse during the past two weeks, and as compared with the same problem last year, due to the increase of cars owned by campus students. Oregon law sets the speed limit by any school at 20 miles per hour; and no car may be parked on Eugene streets overnight.

In the past nothing has been done about students' jay-walking, and breaking of traffic regulations, but the police department will patrol the district more closely than ever from now on, and is going to crack down.

Papa's Gonna Spank

In the past these offences have not been strictly dealt with, for said Pittenger: "Thirteenth must be kept open for safety's sake. Before now we have closed our eyes to the students' jaywalking, but these rules in the future are not to be ignored. We'll just have to crack the whip and make them realize papa's gonna spank!"

As 13th street affords one of the main avenues by which cars can get through to the east side of town, it hasn't been practical to close it to traffic. As a matter of fact, the chief may plant a traffic cop who will direct all operations and be able to catch any culprits on the spot.

Rally Tryouts Today

Those who petitioned for positions on the rally squad, or for yell leaders are to appear for tryouts in the basement of Johnson hall this afternoon at 4. Ed Allen, ASUO president, has announced.

Play Tryouts Begin Tonight

Calling for a large cast, the grand opener for the University's dramatic season will get underway with tryouts this evening in Guild hall.

A variety of roles will be available for a gay, spirited 3-act comedy, including several dialect parts. Students who aspire Bernhard or Barrymore way will find special interest in many of the characters.

The tryouts will begin after the meeting of the theater guild in Guild theater in Johnson hall at 7:30 p.m. Positions will also be open for people interested in costuming and make-up.

Oregana Staff Meets Tonight

Students interested in positions on either the editorial or advertising staffs of the Oregana should be at the journalism building tonight at 8 p.m. Previously appointed staff members as well as prospective ones are asked to attend.

Jean Lawrence Yoder, will speak to students interested in the editorial side in room 100, while Roseanne Leckie, business manager, will speak to those interested in advertising work in room 102.

Any students unable to attend tonight's meeting can see the editor in room 100 during the regular office hours of 3-4:30 p.m.

The work includes writing copy, making layouts, soliciting and planning ads, and art work. The Oregana has its annual staff banquet spring term.

the president to the student body. Both he and the president will give previews of the coming year.

A welcome addition to assemblies this year will be a public address system, installed just before spring commencement. Students cannot only hear their new leaders at this assembly, but should be able to hear them as well.

Adding to the gala spirit of this first assembly will be the University band. "Mighty Oregon" will conclude the assembly.

Free Movies Set Tonight

"Conquest of the Air" is the featured film to be shown tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the movie series sponsored by the education activities board in room 207, Chapman. Famous planes, their designers, and aviators will be highlighted, showing particulars concerning the operation and construction of modern planes. As the title indicates, the picture concerns the development of aircraft from the earliest types of gliders through the modern fighters and bombers.

Russia in Spotlight

Soviet Russia takes the spotlight in the second film, "Russia at War," a March of Time feature. The importance of Russia's position in war and peace is brought out in picturing her war efforts and scenes of the fighting ceived by her audience. In the gay "La Vie Parisienne," Mr. Brownlee added to the fun with his comical gestures; and in Gilbert and Sullivan's "Take a Pair of Sparkling Eyes," Mr. Kane's diction was commendable.

Familiar Themes

The selection from "Maytime" by Romberg, as sung by Miss Browning and Mr. Kane, though not always on pitch, contained enjoyable familiar themes. In the Madrigal and Quartet from "The Mikado" the quartet worked together well, bringing out effectively the peculiar style of the music.

Again, in the well-known "Flowers That Bloom in the Spring" the humorous manner of Mr. Brownlee was enjoyed. As an encore to the second the rapidly moving spinning quartet from "Martha" was presented in a professional interpretation.

Romberg's "Desert Song" medley was notable chiefly for the unified expression of the group. Miss Browning's presentation of "The World Is Mine" displayed the richness of her contralto and also contained excellent diction. The medleys from both "One Touch of Venus" and "Oklahoma" were perhaps the most enthusiastically-received numbers on the program, the former containing such favorites as "Speak Low" and "The Trouble With Women." The lifting "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning" and "People Will Say We're In Love" were given refreshing touches by the quartet's arrangements.

The title song, "Oklahoma" provided a rousing climax to the program. Encores included an original arrangement of "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top" and the lovely "My Meadowland," a Russian folk song.

Honoraries To Sponsor Joint Affair

With or without a football victory, Kwama and Scull and Dagger will coordinate to present, "Kick off," the first big dance of fall term on the evening of October 6th, at McArthur court.

Co-chairmen Ann Burgess and Deeane Bond prophesy that the "Kick Off", appropriately titled to represent Oregon's opening football game with Idaho, should be the biggest and most successful dance of the season.

Both organizations met Wednesday evening to discuss plans for the coming event, and the following committee heads were chosen: Robbieburn Warrens and Don White, tickets; Barbara Hawley and John Kroder, orchestra; Joan Merwin, chaperones; Claire Sering, clean up; Janet Hicks and Winston Carl, decorations; Dorothy Habel and Jack Powell, publicity; Sue Schoenfeldt, posters; Kay Snider, lights; and Bob Moran, entertainment.

John Kroder and Barbara Hawley are keeping the name of the orchestra incognito, but they have promised "a well known band and a good one."

Decoration plans are already under way, with football as the main theme. Co-chairmen Janet Hicks and Winston Carl expressed the feeling at the meeting Wednesday night that "with this theme and the return of football and the good old football spirit the 'Kick Off' is a sure thing for success."

Sue Schoenfeldt, acting with publicity and posters, has urged that all students do their part in plugging and supporting Oregon's first dance of the season.

Co-op Lads Repaint 'O'

Campbell Co-op beat the Lettermen to the draw last Thursday night when 14 men, armed with yellow paint and brooms, painted the huge historic "O" atop Skinner's Butte between 9:30 and 10:00 p.m. The Lettermen were planning to send up the "frosh" men of the campus to do the job.

After the painting, the tired, but happy, group piled into three cars and proceeded to serenade the women's living organizations, boasting of their meritorious deed.

Hearing a rumor in the wee hours of the morning, the trio of cars went roaring back up the winding roads to check up on the possibility of intruders and other would-be hero-painters. Finding the "O" quiet and untouched, still guarding the main street of Eugene, they returned to their respective upper and lower bunks.
