

Autograph Party Set

An autograph party for Major George L. Hall's newly published book, "Sometime Again," has been arranged by G. W. Gill Publishing Co. for 3 p.m. Friday in the Co-op.

Major Hall was a graduate with the class of '39, a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity and was awarded the Failing-Beekman prize in his senior year for original oration.

Captures Alaska

"Sometime Again" is a book that captures the mood of Alaska to be read in the evening by a cozy fireplace. The book is written in such a way that one can almost hear the ravens scream and the wolves howl to their mates in the frozen interior, reviews say. "If you have ever been to Alaska the book will be especially interesting to you; if you have not, you will immediately catch its haunting appeal," according to Gill's.

Not a War Book

"Although it is definitely not a war book, there are thrilling stories of the submarine scare that interrupted a poker game; of the rumor over the ship that the skipper had lost his way in the fog."

Everyone is invited to meet Major Hall and receive his autograph on this new book on Friday.

Letter Received From Ex-Webfoot in Germany

Former Webfoot Jack Boone, law student who left the campus in 1942, recently wrote a letter to Dean Karl W. Onthank telling of his experiences in Germany. Boone, a member of ATO fraternity, is now with a paratroop division stationed in Frankfurt, Germany, guarding USFET headquarters.

One of the highlights of his duty there has been his visit to General Eisenhower's impressive office. While on a seven-day leave in London, Boone noticed that the damage to the city was not too obvious now. Although he will be stationed in Frankfurt indefinitely, Boone expressed his wish to come back to the University of Oregon when he leaves the army.

A recent survey has shown that fifty per cent of all married couples in Denver are women.

turn to the University as soon as possible.

Another name on the growing list of students discharged from the service is S-Sgt. Walter Van Orden. He was stationed overseas for 37 months in the India-Australia theatre and was awarded the Bronze Star medal and four battle stars.

A graduate of the University of Oregon medical school, Lt. Glen C. Rice, has been awarded the Silver Star medal for "conspicuous gallantry" on D-day, February 19, at Iwo Jima. The citation commended Lieutenant Rice for performing "many feats of surgical skill despite the constant necessity to expose himself."

He landed on Iwo with an assault battalion of the 23rd marine regiment and organized an evacuation service from the battalion medical section.

Wally Adams, Emerald sports editor last year, spent a furlough in Portland recently before reporting to officers' candidate school. He entered the army last spring term.

Former Pi Kap president, Lt. Jim Harrison, is at the general hospital center at Fort Lewis convalescing from wounds received last winter in France. He was with the ROTC unit on the campus in 1943-44.

Marine Major Warren T. Smith, former University student and son of Oregon's W. D. Smith, head of the geology and geography department, is in Piedmont, Calif., with his wife, the former Irene Cresham, Tri Delt. They plan to return to the campus spring term.

Another Oregon graduate, Margaret Brinkley, has joined the Red Cross recreation corps and is taking training now at American University in Washington, D. C.

Cpl. Don Ness is with a B-25 squadron in India. He was on the campus in 1943-44 with the air corps meteorology program.

Latest reports say Ray Schrick, Emerald editor in 1942-43, is in Maine. Ray and his wife (Betty Jane Biggs Schrick, Emerald business manager that same year) spent part of his furlough last summer in Portland. He expects to be assigned to duty in the Western hemisphere since he served over a year in Italy.

Another former shackrat, Buck Buchwach, has won one of those coveted positions on the army newspaper Stars and Stripes.

He—"Say, who is that dumb looking bozo that drives your car around and works in the garden? He always gives me a nasty look when I drop around."
She—"Oh, don't mind him. That's only father."

Maj. Godfrey Now Editor of Army Publication in Germany

Stars and Stripes, and Der Sturmer, Julius Streicher's violently anti-Jewish newspaper, are both being published in the same plant, according to a letter recently received by George S. Turnbull, acting dean of journalism, from Maj. George H. Godfrey, formerly head of the University News bureau. Major Godfrey has been gone nearly four years on war leave and now is officer in charge of the southern Germany edition of Stars and Stripes.

His letter reads, in part:

"The interesting thing is that we are now publishing Stars and Stripes in the same plant, on the same presses, and with many of the same workmen. I am sure you will agree it is quite a contrast, especially since at least three members of my editorial staff are Jewish!

In Charge

"You probably have heard by this time that I am now in charge of the southern Germany edition of Stars and Stripes. It is no trifling job, since we have a circulation of more than 250,000, and when demobilization is complete we will be the official and only newspaper for our troops over here.

"I have a splendid editorial staff of about 15, and have charge of some 150 other GI's. We also employ 200 civilians in the plant, and another 200 doing construction work here.

Good Plant

"The plant itself is really marvellous. It has a huge press, capable of a press run of 16-page papers, capacity more than 50,000 per hour, and if we need it, we can run color also. We have nine American Linotypes, our own engraving department—just about everything you can imagine in a first-rate plant."

"Baby dumpling, say hello to auntie."

"I hate choo, I hate choo."

"Darling."

"I hate choo, I hate choo."

"Listen, ugly, say hello to your aunt before mamma knocks whatever teeth you've got down your throat."

"Why auntie, dear, when did you arrive?"
