

Gracious Louise Goodwin Appointed Social Chairman

You've met Oregon's new social chairman before. You've seen her as a poised senior class president, a lovely junior weekend princess, and a blue-sweatered Phi Theta. This as really all quite amazing when one realizes that vivacious, golden-haired Louise Goodwin has only lived in the United States seven and a half years!

Quite thrilled over the prospects of her new position as campus social advisor, gracious Louise began discussing first of all the abominable condition of Oregon's bleachers and declared that if the campus femininity is going to dress up in their best suits or fur coats for a game the least that can be done is a hosing job on the benches! "Why don't we follow California and not dress up for games?" Louise suddenly suggested. She enthusiastically expressed the hope that Oregonians would cooperate with her in upholding social dress and behavior traditions and would offer any suggestions they deemed might help.

Born in China

When first meeting a girl as completely gay and charming as Louise, you may not believe that she has led a life more fascinating and adventuresome than any novelist ever dreamed of in any cloistered tower. Her deep-blue eyes wistful, Louise recalled her birthplace, Hankow, China, during the communistic revolution in the Orient. At the age of two, she and her mother were forced to evacuate on a river boat to Singapore, where Louise attended school. Louise laughingly ventured, "There was a skinny old Chinaman in Singapore who tried to teach me Chinese, but he found it was practically hopeless!"

Likes Eugene

Baguio is a spot hidden midst the Philippine mountain pines along the Benquet road. Here Louise attended her four years of high school while her father was connected with the war shipping administration. She finally moved to Seattle and entered the University of Oregon. "I've never known a person coming to Oregon who didn't love it completely," Louise smilingly declared. She considered Eugene the ideal college town. Her eyes dancing and her pink cheeks aglow, Louise stated, "Eugene people are just about the friendliest bunch I've ever met!"

After Louise finishes her Pacific Basin studies at the University in June, she plans to return to the Orient with her parents. You see, Mr. Goodwin arrived home yesterday after being separated from his family for three and a half years. A five months' leave is in store for him now. That's enough to make any young lady just about the happiest girl in the world—and who wouldn't be if one were Louise Goodwin-sweet!

Campus Clad

By MARY HIBBITT

This is to those who are smartly clad,
To those who may wish to attract a lad,
Still not forgetting those who try,
And the girls who know the best buy.

School is really getting under way or could you tell from the stacks of books added to our favorite campus gals costume. And believe me they certainly add, if not carried in a position that will alter the good posture that really sets off your clothes.

Seen between classes looking especially smart were JoAnne Bush and Janet Davis. Jo had on a prune, white and black checked skirt, topped off with a jet black cashmere . . . looks wonderful on that blonde. While we're in the skirt and sweater department take a look at Janet in that forest green cashmere tucked in the waist of a beige plaid skirt, completed with a brown leather belt. Incidentally leather belts, hand-pounded or decorated with nail-heads are the latest rage . . . Note the variety of those seen on the campus. The proud owner of a very luscious royal purple cashmere is Phyllis Anderson. "O", that we were all lucky enough to find one. Noticed on the way to the Art school was strawberry blonde Marilyn Hill in black and white plaid pedal-pushers and an aqua V-neck cashmere . . .

Not really hoping for rain but all set for it are Mary Lou Hill and Mary Lou Renard. Rather confusing but you couldn't mistake them. Mary Lou Hill is wearing a sky-blue-pink raincoat fashioned after the army or is it the navy? Anyway it looks mighty smooth on her . . . Mary Lou Renard has a deep-purple raincoat, featuring a wide belt and broad shoulders. . . She'll be the bright star amongst the dark clouds . . . As long as we are styling after the armed forces we can't forget the very popular battle-jacket. Barbara Chamberlain has a light green and brown two piece outfit featuring a battle-jacket top.

In a cute "shorty" red coat you'll see Verna Bridgemen. The coat is set off by a bright checked taffeta lining.

Let's take a look at some of the latest accessories we've seen. For instance Jessie Frye's small black corday bag with rounded corners or Jean Swift's small brown corday bag with very square corners. These are both good for dress or school and just the right size for incidentals. Laura Olson has a combination of grey snake-skin and bag which would be the envy of any co-ed.

Stepping into the date-light we see Fran Haffner with a purple and her hair piled high upon her skin and bag which would be the head, very elegant to look at. Along the dressy line we see Joanne Sappenfield in a grey pin-striped suit with the very latest dauphin sleeve. Sue Sullivan in a yummy chocolate brown suit with a high round neck and one button at the waist. Both of these suits give a very slenderizing line, which would appeal to anyone. Really modeling the luxurious fur, and looking simply out of this world was Mary Margaret Ellsworth. The coat is of brown muskrat fur with a very perky hat to match.

As I conclude this column I'd like to leave this thought . . . Choose and wear the clothes most flattering to YOU, and then watch this column for your interview . . .

Ma Tante Est une Femme Or 'Have a Coke, Friend'

Kay Leslie and Selby Frame

Traveling were we between Antelope and Fossil by the John Day River on backs of moving slowly burros. Met we dehydrated man on dry lonely spot of country desert. Climbed he on back of our burro and finding he well enlightened, and cultured glad were we the ride shared we. Discussed we of places remote and far for we ourselves had at motels stayed over world wide.

Remarked our friend of the beauties of cultural remains of Egypt ancient. Of the Theban tomb paintings by Apu the sculptor, of the Sphinx of Giza, and the pyramid great of Cheops and pyramid second of his brother Cephraan. Incapable although to follow his conversation we were the less none able to tell him Cleopatra once established here residence there.

He on moved to the Republic of the Americas South commenting upon the physical regions . . . of its Eastern plateau, Amazon Basin and grass lands of the southern interior. Aghast were we at the man's reservoir of knowledge, but suspected that nothing he knew of that rare old Spanish dance, the Conga.

To Mexico, obnoxiously colorful, went he next. Spoke he of his investments in land wealthy of oil and tobacco, with his wine cellar filled with Mexico's best. The silver filagree glistened on his tan sun hands. Little did he realize that Mexican jumping beans were selling two for a nickel in Eugene.

Began he on the scenic spots of the old Deutschland. Mentioned he castles famous bordering the Rhine storied . . . the Stalzenfels, the Rheinstein medieval, the Pfalz. Of spite in his knowledge we guessed he knew nothing of day present affairs. We said him to, "We hear there has been quite a war over there." From his glances startled we pride with beamed.

The Dear-ear-ie Club will meet next Tuesday.

Stamp Collection Stop

Postage stamp collections for men in army hospitals has been discontinued, Dr. L. S. Cressman announced, and he requests that stamps no longer be sent to his office.
