

Harry Reiton Valuable Link in Forward Wall

By DALE TYLER

Hailing from the fair City of Roses comes dark-eyed Harry Reiton to join the throng of freshmen donning the traditional lemon and green for the first time this year.

Unable to resist his favorite pastime, Harry responded to Coach Tex Oliver's call for more pigskin players and thanks to his unlimited ability in the well known classic he fitted perfectly in Oliver's forward wall.

Rejects Husky Offer

Sounds almost unbelievable but Harry turned thumbs down on a grand scholarship offered by University of Washington after a two week trial, because he was lonesome for a few ordinary Oregonians. However, each and every football fan can be thankful that he made such a decision because without a doubt this 242 pound guard proves very beneficial in strengthening the Webfoot line, and those broad-shoulders are a repeated threat to any opposing back who tries to gain yardage by consistent line plunges.

A graduate of Franklin High school, where he played four years of varsity football, Harry entered

University of Oregon as a major in physical education with a firm desire to follow sports as a career.

Mr. Five by Five

When confronted about the girls on the campus he emphatically remarked, "They're all right to look at but football and studies keep my mind occupied so I don't think about them very much." However statements from several good sources class him as an artist and indeed one to watch and follow when it comes to making with the feet in accordance with the music.

In order to keep in condition this 19-year old guard spends most of his time during the summer working in a cannery, checking and arranging boxes of fruit, and although this requires an abundance of energy, Harry solves the problem by indulging in his favorite fountain treat—that of several assorted milkshakes per day, the larger the better.

Every football lover can observe the future possibilities of our gridiron squad with a confident feeling as far as guard position is concerned because of the three more years Harry has to play.

Pi Lambda Announces Committees at Meeting

Pi Lambda Theta, national education honorary for women, held its first meeting of the year recently at the University YWCA. Lovina Wilson, president, presided at the meeting of the group, which will meet the second Wednesday of every month.

Because of the registration of Dorothea Moore as keeper of records, Shirley Anderson was appointed to fill this vacancy. Following the business meeting, Mrs. Alice Carkin, instructor in the school of education, presented a talk on a study of the social interests of freshman girls.

Committee appointments were announced and the committee chairmen are as follows: Thelma Nelson, initiation; Marie Tinker, program; Abby Adams, social; Lois Zimmerman, news letter; and Alice Gerrot, publicity.

Refreshments were served by the social committee after a brief visiting session.

It was just for the past week-end. It was also sweet tiding to hear the good word that the Portland gal will be back with us again comes next spring term.

Pome:

Little boy blue
Come blow your horn
I was on a toot last night.
End of pome.

Did any of you kiddies meet Mary Lu Hermer's newest flame by the monicker of Elmin Grimes who may be just a Milton Free-water high school kiddie, but never you mind for the lad really knows his way around, right Mary Lu?

Pome:

'Twas the night before Xmas
And all through the house
Not a creature was stirring
Not even a mouse.
The stockings were hung
By the chimney with care
For they'd been worn all week
And they needed the air.

It is understood that Peggy "where's my Tommy Drugas?" Finnell can now run the distance between the Pi Phi and Hanson House in two and one-half minutes flat. We heard she was fast, but when did she take up track? No offense. Ha!

Pome:

Little Bo Peep
Lost her sheep
So she took it on the lamb.
End of pome.

Now for the boy and gal of the week and all that sort of stuff. This week we'd like to send a pretty group of petunias 'n such to a gal who spends the greater share of her time helping our school paper in readable form. We mean none other than Jeanne Simmonds, news editor. If every person did as much for their alma mammy as this eager beaver this would be quite a place, yes indeed.

As for the male half of our short story we pick Dean Bond who is more than active as a mighty football star, but also carries the load of prey of Skull and Dagger. Soooooo—flowers to these kiddies and congrats from Archabau Florists and Ho Hum.

Pome:

Little Jack Horner
Sat in the corner
Eating his Xmas pie
He put in his thumb
And pulled out a plumb
And got so G—D— mad he changed bakeries cause he ordered strawberry.
End of pome.

Notes and Stuff

Looks like Eugene's Rod Woodworth, former Beta, is back on the campus and is doing his best to show Averil Foster a big time. Glad to have ya back, Rod.

Lil story comes our way that says a fella by the name of Lefty Cone is doing his best to avoid, or sumthin, a lassie called Sue Mercer who kind of likes the idea of their going together. Looks like a good show coming up, eh?

Robbie Bowman of Gamma Phi is all smiles while her man George Dugan is spending the week hereabouts. We don't blame you for being a happy chick, Robbie, cause we sort of like the guy too.

As the national housing shortage controversies continue "American Forum of the Air" plans to discuss the question "Should the Federal Government Support the Federal Housing Projects?" on KORE at 6:30 tonight. Senator Robert A. Taft will be among the participants. This is especially timely for Oregon students who may lose one of their star pigskin carriers because of the lack of proper housing.

"Full-color, longer frequency television is no higher a theory, but a fact," according to testimony submitted to the FCC by Paul W. Kesten, executive vice president of CBS.

Full-color television pictures have actually been successfully transmitted through the air across the New York skyline from one building to another many blocks away, where they were received with superb clarity.

In view of the imminence of moving television into the high frequencies with pictures in color, Mr. Kesten deplored the need for issuing regulations for the lower frequencies, saying it was like "speaking the lines and rehearsing the parts for a play that will never really open, or will close down almost as soon as it opens."

When seven year old Patrick Conlon made top score on a recent broadcast of Quiz Kids, Joel Kupperman, nine-year-old superman of math, sagely commented: "Not bad for a stripling."

the program always knows the right answers, but, as he is first to admit, it's because the answers are written on cards tightly held in his right hand.

No bulging-browed pundit, Kelly freely confesses that the only time he ever trod a campus was back in 1927 when he took a short cut through what he thought was a little park surrounded by Gothic buildings. Joe's formal education ended at the fourth grade.
