

By Dave Goss

Before writing any material for today's column I would like to save face for the merry mix-up in my column of last week. I stand corrected by not less than 500 careful watchers for my error in calling the University of Washington the Cougars and the Washington State team the Huskies. Hereafter I shall try to keep one jump ahead of the scalp hunters that abound around the Oregon campus.

Tonight the travelling squad left for Los Angeles to face the Bruins in a battle that is more than likely to be a closer game than dopsters predict. In the last regular season the lads from Eugene dropped UCLA 14-7. But with both squads having more material to use this year to develop into a higher powered combinations of running and passing. This year both teams will send the most publicized backs on the coast against each other, Cal Rossi and Jake Leicht. The Uclans were fortunate in having Rossi for this game. Next week Cal is inducted into the navy and the Bears will face the Trojans without his highly valued services and the odds will be against them.

Tornados Terrific

Medford's Black Tornado broke lose last Friday to crumple K-Falls 51-0 in a grudge fight. This was the fifth consecutive victory for the Terrific squad of southern Oregon. Showing sensational scoring power the Medford High team has amassed 249 points in its games this season. This is an average of almost 50 markers in each tilt. In all probability the Tornado is headed for its second straight championship. Next season some of these very same fellows will be playing for Webfoot teams. This is a fact for other college coaches to note because these boys have been making some really fine showings the last two years and would be a welcome addition to any football eleven.

Volleyball Reporter Needed

Oregon's coeds have started their volleyball season with the different coaches entering teams in an all-campus league. The sports editors would like to have any girl interested in keeping the write-ups of the games to see either Bill Walkenshaw or Dave Goss at the Journalism building.

Art Open House At Patio Tonight

The annual open house of the school of architecture and allied arts will be held tonight at the Murray Warner art museum from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., it was announced by Robert W. Springer, president of the art club. The purpose of this affair is to organize the art department and to acquaint the art majors, their friends and the faculty with the museum and its many attractions, Springer said.

As a special feature the seldom-opened Campbell Memorial court will be on display and the pool illuminated with colored lights. This court, located in the eastern end of the museum, was built in memory of Prince Lucien Campbell who was president of the University for 23 years.

Patients at Infirmary

Monday was a lean day in the infirmary with three patients on record. All three were men: Kenneth Braymen, Ray Johnson and John Frick.

Five more joined them Tuesday. They are Betty Lombard, Susan Campbell, Francis Mettler, 1370 Emerald, Marilyn Bauman, Hendricks Hall, Rosemary Wiebe, and Joseph Crew.

Visitors are always welcome between 2 and 4 in the afternoon and 7 and 8 in the evening.

As long as the people of the world do not understand or have an interest in each other, no elaborate world organization can work. Such understanding and interest can come only by presenting these people with the truth about each other—through their newspapers.—Syracuse Daily Orange.

Campus Hazards Revealed

Fire Marshall Inspects Quarters; Cites Improvements

Inspection of University residences and buildings is being carried on by M. J. Gilson, deputy state fire marshal, and the work should be completed next week, Lester Barker, city fire marshal, said today.

In commenting on conditions in the University residences Barker said that, in general, the inspection revealed poor housekeeping in the basements. The most prevalent fire hazards were accumulations of cartons, ashes, paint and decorations in cellars, he declared. Another common fault is in fire escapes, Barker said. "Most of the fire escapes are about 14 feet off the ground which is too far for most people to jump." Also high on the list of delinquencies were fuse plugs in excess of 150 amperes.

The residences inspected averaged around eleven orders or recommendations for improvement which is considerably higher than last year, the fire marshal declared. "Perhaps we are just looking closer this year," he said.

In regard to fire drills, Barker advocated having them at least every thirty days which is the regulation in city schools. He also recommended using the fire escapes in practice, with the exception of the final jump.

Additions to ISA Council Proposed

A proposal that each class have two representatives, one a man and one a woman, to the ISA executive council was brought before the ISA senate meeting last night. This proposal, which may become an amendment to the organization's constitution if the members so vote, would eliminate a recurrence of this year's situation, in that the executive council is composed entirely of women. Dick Tretheway, Liar Mitchell, and Martha Mold were appointed as a committee to work on the proposed amendment.

Various committee heads gave reports on campus activities and a proposal for an advisory committee was defeated.

The meeting, held in 105 Commerce hall, was presided over by Cathie Crombie, senate president.

Petitions for freshmen representative to the Independent Students' Association must be turned in to Anne Van Valzeh, Hendrick hall, or Catherine Crombie, Gamma hall, on or before Friday, October 26. All independent freshmen are eligible.

Ski Club Being Formed

An Oregon ski club is being organized on the campus by a student committee that has been working on tentative plans for the club since the beginning of the school term. The students composing the organizing committee are: Marg Cowlin, Virginia Scholl, and Jack Hessel.

All interested students are urged to contact members of the committee, so that an estimate may be made as to the size of the planned club. There will be a meeting sometime later in the term, when all interested students may sign up for membership.

"There is in this squadron a certain amount of insubordination up with which I will not put."

Ducks Photographed

Photographing UO students for the rotogravure section of the Chicago Tribune over the past weekend were Eleanor Nangle, beauty editor of the paper, and Andrew Pavlin, staff photographer. Scheduled to run in the feature section of the Tribune some time in December or January, the series of articles, showing various American colleges, are called "Youth on the Campus."

Landlords Must Register Tenants

Clinton M. Birdwell, area rent director of Lane county, has announced that all landlords renting sleeping rooms or other accommodations to University students must register such rentals with the OPA rent control office.

Mr. Bidwell said there was an element of doubt in the community concerning the need of such registration, as many landlords believe they are free from OPA rule because the tenant is a student. He requested that students themselves become acquainted with the maximum legal rent for their housing facilities and exactly what services the landlord furnishes.

"For his own monetary protection and livability, a student should see to it that he knows 'what he's gettin' for what he's spendin'," he concluded.
