Vandals Ruin Hayward Field

Despite deliberate destruction to Hayward field by an unidentified car of vandals last Sunday night, the Oregon-O.S.C. homecoming game will still be played there December 1.

According to Mike Steddom, supervisor of athletic fields, repair of the field as it should be done will cost $1000. "We will be able to get the field playable by the game," he said, "but it will not be in good condition."

The vandals were forced to pull up posts and drive through a space 79 inches wide to get onto the field. They drove a car up and down the field at break-neck speed, virtually tearing the field to pieces.

On the same evening the same car drove across the campus between Villard and the Art school causing considerable damage there.

The local and state police have

Fun Night Tonight At Gerlinger Hall

Volleyball, swimming, and folk and square dancing will be featured tonight from 7 to 9 in Gerlinger when the Women's Athletic association sponsors another of its Friday night fun nights. "All University women, including members and non-members of WAA, are invited," Gay Edwards, president of the organization, stated.

The dancing, of which Pearl Petersen, sophomore in liberal arts is in charge, will be held from 7:45 to 8:45, but the pool will be open all evening, Miss Edwards said.

The number of students participating in the event, and the number of women in the pool will determine whether the pool can be opened for evening swimming for the rest of the year, the president added.

Thelma Chaney, sophomore in liberal arts, is in charge of the volleyball, and Beverly Bennett, sophomore in physical education, will head the swimming program.

Hollywood Trip Offered To Queen of War Loan

Screen Test and Date with Van Johnson Await Winner of Lane Victory Loan Queen Contest

A trip to Hollywood, a date with Van Johnson and a screen test may be in store for a University coed. University women have been requested by the Lane county queen committee to enter the queen contest with the support of the campus. Sponsorship of individual entrants will come from Eugene service clubs, women's clubs, and fraternal organizations.

Each house on the campus may enter one candidate. She is to be chosen on the basis of general personality and over-all screen possibilities. Pictures of queen contestants should be turned in before Saturday, Nov. 11, to Barbara Wells at the Sigma Kappa house or to the Emerald news office.

Contest Preliminaries

One ballot will then be given with each purchase of an $18.75 series E bond. The buyer may vote for the contestant of his choice. This preliminary contest will end Monday, Nov. 20.

Two finalists, chosen on the basis of amount of bonds purchased in their names and queen-like personality, will be chosen from this contest to compete in the Lane county contest. The winner of the Lane county contest will then compete in the state finals at Portland. This state contest will determine the winner—Oregon's victory queen.

University Finalists

The two University finalists will receive the votes previously given other University contestants.

These votes will count 75 per cent in the county finals; the other 25 per cent will be based on queenly qualities; namely charm, poise, personality and natural beauty.

Petitions for committee heads of the 8th Victory Loan may be turned in to Barbara Wells at the Sigma Kappa house before Saturday, Nov. 11. Chairmen are needed for publicity, judges, and balloting committees.

Atomic Control Not Feasible Says Speaker

The three great words of our age are opportunity, power and responsibility, asserted Dr. Perry E. Gresham, pastor of the University Christian church in Seattle, in an assembly sponsored by the Student Religious council yesterday at McArthur court.

"The war has broken up old traditions and ideas, and remote places are now familiar names," said Dr. Gresham. "Now is a time of great opportunity to do something significant."

Atomic Age

He explained that old habits and customs of control have broken down and that people can "expect anything."

Comparing the atom bomb to a genie in a bottle Dr. Gresham stated, "We have enough power to pull the cork out, but we can't control it."

The responsibility for guiding the world now is in the hands of the college students, Dr. Gresham declared. "We have a part in it, a part we cannot evade," he said.

Chamber Music Scores Bought By University Music Department

Susie Fennel Pipes Library Included in Collection Of String Chamber Music Valued at $1000

The Susie Fennel Pipes musical library, consisting of string quartets and other string chamber music scores, has been purchased by the University school of music, Acting Dean John Stehn announced yesterday.

The collection contains practically all of the standard works for string quartets and string chamber music and a good many modern compositions, according to Dr. Arnold Elston, assistant professor of music, who first examined it. Although it was purchased for $1000, the original and intrinsic value was much more.

Foreign Plates

Many of the foreign plates were destroyed during the war, and they may never again be replaced. A number of the Leipzig publishing houses are represented in the libe, and, as their plates were almost totally destroyed, it is doubtful if many of them will be reprinted.

Included in the list, which Mrs. Pipes collected over many years of active work in Portland as director of the Neahkahn string quartet, is ensemble music, sonatas for violin and piano, violin solos, all of the standard works on violin techniques and exercises, and a large collection of scores of chamber music. Mrs. Pipes played first violin in the quartet which she directed, and she was a lifelong enthusiast for string chamber music.

Chamber Collection

"The library is an excellent one," according to Dean Stehn. "It fits in with the plans Dean Kraft has for building up chamber music in the school. And it is opportune because we now have our own string quartet which will appear publicly several times during the year. Some of the music will also be used for student classes. The scores will be extremely valuable to student of the composition and analysis classes."

The Carnegie room at the music school has been selected as the location for the quartet and en-
