

YWCA To Survey Coeds' Problems

A survey to find out what the campus women are really like is being conducted at the University of Oregon and a number of other selected colleges and universities in the United States by the National Student Council and by USO Campus Services of the YWCA.

The results, which will be published in the "Women's Press," Y.W.C.A. magazine, will be used in the development of the program for student councils and the USO Campus services.

Directed by Anne Scripser and Margery Skordahl, co-chairmen of the Y.W.C.A. membership committee, the survey seeks to discover certain facts about campus women, their problems and concerns, what proportion of them have made hasty marriages, and what difficulties they see in their own future.

The project is under the direction of Miss Lois Greenwood, executive director of the campus Y.W.C.A.

"Much has appeared in newspapers and magazines about college women," wrote Fern Babcock of the National Student Council and Louise Pfeutze of the USO Campus services. "Some of it has been good, but all of it has been speculation. We are attempting to discover some facts."

The results of the poll will be sent east, but the campus Y.W.C.A. plans to incorporate the results into its future programs, according to Miss Greenwood.

Dreaming . . .

(Continued from Page Nine)
coat to his mouth. I presumed that it was oxygen.

I hurried home, towing a yule log behind me, to help mother put cheese on the crackers. Mother had asked me to set the table out on the terrace; it was such a beautiful snow fall. We were having a family reunion; 265 relatives were coming in on the noon plane.

Joan Farmer, Delta Gamma, models the newest in dressy black and black skirt combination from Kaufman Bros.

Later, as I was trimming the Christmas tree with a pair of shears, I was deeply touched to find a string of beads (I just love beads) which my 265 relatives had chipped in to buy me. I was so happy that I flew to the window and threw up the sash and shouted to the world, "Seasons Greetings."

Coed of the Week . . .

(Continued from Page Nine)
the reason for the attachment was simply that she lost Ed Allen's pin last summer, and this was a method for insuring against further loss.

Professor Slated For Brazil Visit

Appointment of Dr. A. R. Moore, research professor of general physiology, as visiting professor to the Biophysical Institute of the medical school in the University of Brazil at Rio de Janeiro, was announced recently by the state department at Washington D.C.

Dr. Moore's two month appointment is on invitation of the director of the South American institute, Dr. Carlos Chagas. The state departments division of cultural co-operation is subsidizing the visiting professorship.

During his stay at the South American university, Dr. Moore will give lectures on the excitation of nerves. His lectures will include the results of studies made at the University on the chemistry and biophysics of nerve function.

"This is a very welcome opportunity to become acquainted with and to work with the leading physiologists of Brazil," Dr. Moore said, "It will be very interesting to me to learn something about animals of that region, and the appointment will enable me to carry on comparative studies, especially of the nervous system, in which I have been interested for a long time."

LET THERE BE BEAUTY!

You'll be the belle of the holiday season if your hair is alive and sparkling with our expert styling.

Campus Beauty Salon

On 13th on the Campus

IN EUGENE IT'S THE BROADWAY

- Ladies Ready-to-wear
- Accessories
- Lingerie
- Linens
- Piece Goods
- Housewares and Draperies
- Infant's and Children's Wear

THE Broadway
20-30 EAST BROADWAY