

Luoma to List Positions Open On Old Oregon

Announcement of new opportunities for student activity participation on the staff of the new Old Oregon magazine will be made the first of next week, according to George Luoma, editor-manager.

Fall term student activity participation showed an increase of over 1,000 percent over fall term of the year before. Most of the fall term staff will return to positions on the magazine staff, with several new ones added from applications that have been submitted.

Positions are open in news, advertising, and office departments of the magazine. All students are eligible to apply, and selections are made on the basis of interest, dependability, and ability.

The personnel program of the magazine includes a staff organization that makes it possible for staff members to be promoted within the term. Certificates will be issued for staff members who render meritorious service, and "O" pins are awarded to the most outstanding staff members.

ISA Senate to Meet Candidates January 9

Candidates for ISA representatives on the executive council will be introduced at an ISA senate meeting at 7 p.m., January 9, in 105 Commerce.

The meeting is open to all independent students in order that they may see and hear their candidates speak.

It will be necessary for all groups to send senators or some representatives to this meeting, Catherine Crombie, senate president, said.

The election of the council representatives will take place in the early part of the week of January 14.

Those students who wish to submit their applications early may obtain them from the magazine offices in Friendly hall. A general meeting will be held next week for all old and new members of all departments.

Marie Rogndahl To Sing Saturday

Oregon's Marie Rogndahl, hailed as the "Undiscovered Voice of America" when she won the General Electric company's contest in which she competed with over 10,000 contestants, will sing over the Columbia Broadcasting system tomorrow, January 6.

Miss Rogndahl is currently being starred by the National Concert and Artists corporation and appeared in a number of events in New York during the holidays.

She was recently featured in the NCAC News, a release to radio and concert program managers, as a combination of beauty, brains and talent. In this biographical sketch of Miss Rogndahl, the NCAC News also acknowledged her foresight in returning to the University to earn her degree and receive additional training under Sigurd Nilssen after her first taste of fame and the 13 weeks with the "Hour of Charm."

Vocal Director to Talk To Town, Campus Group

Glenn Griffith, vocal director for the Eugene public school system, will present a lecture, "Deepening Religious Experience Through Hymn Singing," to the Christian young people's Town and Campus group Sunday evening, January 6.

During the past eight years Mr. Griffith has held a position with the Eugene school system in the capacity of a music instructor. He has also taken an active part in the Gleemen and is director of the Women's Choral club in Eugene.

A short devotional service will precede the meeting which will be held in the White Room of the Christian church at 6:15. All students are cordially invited to attend.
