

Campus Red Cross Unit To Help County Chapter

The University Red Cross unit, headed by Mary Landry, junior sociology major, held its first meeting this week to outline activities for the coming year.

Meeting with the group was Mrs. Alice Prall, Red Cross college representative from the Pacific area Red Cross office in San Francisco, who helped the unit outline 1946 unit activities. The campus chapter will continue the knitting of afghans, a successful project held over from last year.

Among new projects for the coming year are having senior sociology students help the Lane County Red Cross chapter with interviewing for home service work, writing the history of the county chapter, obtaining art students to help make Christmas cards for servicemen in hospitals to send home next year, more emphasis on nutrition courses, and canteen work when the need arises.

Gather Gifts

Contributions of the college unit last term included the gathering of over 200 Christmas gifts and 200 records for servicemen at the Camp Adair hospital. Money was also added to the phone fund, through which service men entering the hospital are able to phone home. Strings of Christmas tree lights were collected from campus houses and sent to the hospital.

stop advancing," Bailey said. However, he believed that these advancements were not so much for territorial acquisition but rather for the scarcity of her boundaries, which he considered "justifiable."

Bailey admitted that Russia had a prime interest in the Balkan section but that the US had an important job in an advisory capacity there. He advocated international, rather than Russian, control of the Dardanelles because it has consistently proved itself to be one of the principal trouble spots of the world."

He considered that Russia "must continue to secure her boundaries so she can carry on her internal advancement which has made her one of the leading nations of the world."

Ladd Second

Earl Ladd, sophomore in liberal arts from the University of Oregon, speaking on "Why USSR-USA Distrust?" received second prize. Third prize was awarded to Roy Dancer, Linfield college for his speech, "USSR-USA, Standard of Living."

Other participants in this division were Lester Scott, Pacific university; Harold Fowler, Pacific college; and Marion Edwards, Willamette university. The men were introduced by Carolyn Jacobs, junior in journalism.

Cash Prizes

First prize consisted of $15; second prize, $7.50, and third prize was $5.00

Judges were K. E. Montgomery, University of Oregon; A. C. Hengston, Pacific university; Helen Willcott, Pacific college; R. D. Mahaffey, Linfield college; C. R. Winger, Oregon State college; and H. E. Rahe, Willamette university.

Contestants were given one hour to prepare their speeches prior to their presentation. This is the first contest of its kind to be given on the campus this year. Three similar contests will be held at member institutions during January, February, and March.

Ale & Tale Sodality Elects, Conspires

New officers, ambitious projects, and the renewal of vicious traditions held the spotlight at last night's foamy session of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalistic fraternity.

Perennial President Charles Politz, shrewdly avoiding the topic of his own reelection, railroaded the following men into office: John J. Mathews, secretary; Mark Howard, treasurer; and Bernie Engel, commissioner of special project Baker Roger One. Leonard "Bud" Jermain, instructor in journalism, was unanimously chosen chapter advisor. A tirade on the evils of drink by Ens. Bluenose Nelson was promptly quashed, and Ensign Nelson threatened with expulsion.

In order that pressing matters, such as the forthcoming SDX dance sensation and a pilgrimage to Olympia, may be fully thrashed out in the near future, it is urged that all legitimate members of the fraternity currently skulking in the precincts of Skinner's butte join the next huddle of the Ale & Tale club, to be held in Robinson's chapter room at 1600 hours of Thursday next.
