

Vets' G.I. Garb Sets Style Pace

Joe College Sports Issue Togs As Civvie Shortage Continues

By JIM LUNN

Most of the fellows seen gadding about campus seem to have been hit hard by the clothing shortage. One may see odd combinations of old G.I. attire and new civilian clothing.

The entire trend, caused by necessity, adds a touch of the cosmopolitan to the scene and may in time become a regular and accepted part of all college clothing.

It Says Here:

Portions of the G.I. uniform have definite advantage over civilian types. Jackets are more comfortable and permit freedom of action to the wearer. G.I. trousers, while having rather unusable pockets, are made of a strong shine-resistant material which holds its press much better than average civilian cloth.

Trends may come and trends may go but the G.I. uniform will probably go on for quite some time to come. With prospects of an even more acute shortage in the future, portions of uniforms will probably be seen for quite some time to come.

Let's Re-enlist

So, all hail the field jacket and make a wild dash for that battle coat you left in the old barracks bag, Mr. Veteran, because khaki is here to stay, well at least until the people back in Ipswich, or wherever they make all this civilian clothing you hear so much about and see so little of, get back into the full swing of production.

of her cello is unique. She places an Idaho potato inside her cello case. "This prevents the seams of the cello from coming unglued and keeps the moisture humidified," she declared. Cellists on the campus will be glad to know that this method has been very satisfactory.

Beautiful to hear and to look at, the harps used by Miss Allen and Mr. Salzedo are superior pieces of craftsmanship. They are hand carved from maple which has been cured for fifty years. The strings are made from cat gut (cat owners take heed). Each string is a different note; all the C strings are green, the F strings are purple and the rest are red. This gives a multi-colored rainbow effect.

Jewelry Out

Jewelry is not worn by any of the ensemble members. It not only interferes with their playing, but appears to add various unmusical sounds.

The ensemble was presented through the auspices of the Eugene Civic Music association which is headed by Mr. G. E. Gaylord. The ECMA is regarded as the outstanding one of its kind in the United States, not only because of the manner in which it is run, but also because of the talented group of artists it is able to present to its members and Oregon students.

The group will go to Santa Cruz, California, next and their tour this winter will take them into Canada before it ends.

Petitions Open

the new organization will be discussed at the first meeting. The entire program is being thrown in the lap of the veteran. A signature on one of the petitions will indicate the signer's approval and plans will carry on from there.

Those who bring joy to others cannot keep it from themselves.

Today's World

THE NATIONWIDE paralysis of telephone communication for today was postponed Thursday night until Monday at the request of Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwelienback.

APPROXIMATELY 1000 GI's demonstrating again against the redeployment slowdown, booed and hissed the name of General Joseph T. McNarnay, American commander in Europe, and chanted "we want Ike."

GENERALISSIMO CHIANG Kai-Shek announced, shortly after a truce had brought about the immediate end to China's civil war, that the government had decided to legalize all political parties.

POLICE CREATED a special squad of picked investigators to track down the sex-fiend who killed 6-year-old Susan Degnan, and immediately arrested a new suspect.
