

State Conference to Draw Throng of Press Notables

Publisher of Chronicle to Deliver Forecast Of Western Journalism's Second Century

The twenty-seventh annual Oregon Press Conference, "The Oregon Newspaper Centennial," will be held on the campus Friday and Saturday, February 8 and 9.

The principal speaker, William D. Chandler, associate editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, will try to forecast the second hundred years of journalism on the Pacific coast for the conference visitors.

H. C. Bernsten, director of the Pacific coast division, A.N.P.A. bureau of advertising, will give an illustrated talk, "Industry and Public Opinion."

Dana to Speak

Marshall N. Dana, editor of the editorial page, Oregon Journal, will speak on the relationship of the Oregon newspapers' code of ethics to the freedom of the press. Opportunities for increasing the state's agricultural income will be discussed by Joseph R. Gerber, head of the Portland advertising agency which bears his name.

Dr. Harry K. Newburn, president of the University, will speak at the annual banquet Saturday evening honoring outstanding journalists of the state, and those with the longest record of service to the profession. George S. Turnbull, acting dean of the school of journalism, and author of "History of Oregon Newspapers," will preside at the banquet.

Professor of law, Major Charles G. Howard, now on terminal leave from his duties with the United States army, will talk on "Unfinished Business" and will recount some of his experiences with the army of occupation in Germany at the Friday luncheon. Robert C. Hall, associate professor of journalism, will preside at the Friday luncheon.

At the Friday morning session of the conference, David Smith, secretary of the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Circulation Managers association, will speak on circulation problems confronting newspapers. Marks Centennial

The dates for the conference were selected to close a week-long observance of the one-hundredth anniversary of the printing of the first newspaper in Oregon and on the Pacific coast. The Oregon Spectator's first issue was printed in Oregon City on February 5, 1846. Lawrence E. Spraker, publisher of the Stayton Mail, and president of the conference, said, "We are arranging a program which will be of interest to every editor and publisher in the state for this first meeting following the war."

Discussions and talks will complete the conference program which is being arranged by Spraker, Acting Dean George Turnbull, and Carl C. Webb, secretary-manager of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association. A round-table discussion of "Free Publicity" will be presented by G. F. Blessing, The Dalles Chronicle; Walter W. R. May, Oregon City Enterprise; and Henry Fowler, Bend Bulletin. Carl Webb will serve as moderator.

Pill Palace List Thirteen Patients

Almost back to normal times the infirmary lists thirteen as of yesterday, which is the average for Monday, since the beginning of the year. This could mean the flu is subsiding or that the students made sure they would not spend the weekend in the pill palace and have to miss the Oregon-OSC upset.

The three patients that were in over the weekend are Margaret Knighten, Jay Matteson, and Robert Parnas, and the new ones are Della Cable, Joan Hickey, Janet Hicks, Mary Rafferty, Carol Pearson, Palmyra Paladine, Elain Coleman, Arbertha Daniels, Allen Putnam, and Thomas Knapp.

Hop Petitions Due

The YWCA cabinet is asking for petitions for the general chairmanship of the Heart Hop, scheduled February 14, and also for the sub-committee chairmanships. The sub-committees are for the King-of-Hearts contest, decorations, publicity, tickets, and coronation. Petitions must be in by Tuesday, January 22.

As an annual girl-date-boy affair, planned as a tea-dance on Valentine's Day, the Heart Hop is usually held as a progressive dance in four campus houses.
