ATO Registers Dual Intramural Victories

RAMBUNCTIOUS ROCHA RAMBLES

The Hawaiian lad, 6 ft. 9 in. Ephraim "Red" Rocha, more than gave the Ducks a personal share of trouble during the first three of the four game mutual enmity clashes. Last Saturday night, the lanky pivot man waxed hot in the second half, tossing in 21 net-swishings for the visiting quintet from Corvallis.

game by the Barometer staff. This offer opens the way for the renewal of an old rivalry. Last time the two sets of writers met, the OSC pencil-and-paper boys signed up a gang of "ringers" and walloped our local scribblers. But we are cheered by the thought that perhaps Priscilla will play in the game, too.

Hume Paces Greek Team In Easy Win

It was strictly an Alpha Tau Omega show last night in the men's gymnasium as the Tau boys from out 18th street way came home with a double win in intramural play. The ATO "B" club had little trouble disposing of the Campbell Club "B" 37 to 18 in the opener but their bigger brothers on the "A" squad found the Omega Hall lads a little tougher and had to fight hard for three quarters before they were insured of their 28 to 17 victory.

Hume Hits 29

Kenny Hume was the big gun as he calmly slipped in 29 points for the Bees in the contest with Campbell Club. The big Portlander wasn't content with carrying the scoring load for the Greeks and did a masterful job of controlling the backboard. So completely did Hume dominate the game only three opponents managed to toss in counters. Krause garnered 16 of his team's total to pace the losers.

ATO Fast

Omega Hall kept on the heels of the ATO "A" boys right up until the final quarter. But fast action and snappy ball handling proved too much for the dorm boys and the frat kids walked off the floor with their first victory of the season.

Elvert "Little Ox" Wilson notched 12 points for individual honors while his teammate, Thomas, swished 7 through the hemp.

Duck Tracks

By FRED BECKWITH
CO-SPORTS EDITOR

Our up-and-down Ducks garnered a split out of last weekend's basketfare, tripping the OSC Beavers on their home court and bowing to the Orangemen under the local Igloo lights. The win and loss gives the Hobsonmen a record of two victories against three defeats, and still a mathematical chance for the Northern division title. While the varsity was getting an even break against the Staters, Idaho and Washington divided their two game series evenly. As a result, Oregon State remains at the top of the heap in the league standings.

POOR PASSING

Oregon was again outclassed Saturday night, but the funny thing about the loss was that Oregon State wasn't particularly impressive in winning. The locals' passing game was poor. The Ducks were robbed out of a number of potential baskets by Dame Fate. More than once Wilkins, Berg or Williamson would cast off and groan when the unpredictable ball would spin tantalizingly out of the hoop.

Red Rocha enjoyed a big night in the Igloo, quite a contrast to his last outing in these parts. Besides pumping home 21 points for his club, Rocha's passing and defensive games were exceptionally good. The Hobsonmen were just cold. They have a tough schedule ahead of them and it will take a lot of breaks to keep them in the thick of the ND race.

BULL PLAYS HOST

Leonard Turnbull, our side-kick, played host to a group of scribes from the Barometer (OSC) sports staff Saturday night. On hand were the female boss, Priscilla and her star reporter, Russ Sackett. Russ, who used to be co-sports editor on the Barometer when your informant was at Oregon in 1942-43, just got out of the army. He's the lad who has been exchanging column quips with Bull lately. Bull responded to the occasion by setting up the house with cokes, meanwhile patching up relations with Priscilla. Meanwhile our ace cartoonist was doodling instead of drawing.

Dick Wilkins was the only cager to actually get tossed out of Saturday night's melon fracas on the accumulation of five personal fouls, but there were about three or four other men on both clubs that were on the danger line. Oregon's "boo-tiful" rooters kept up their weekly practice of heckling the refs on every decision that did not favor the Webfoots. Oregon State may not have had a very large delegation of followers present, but at least the Orange-and-Black fans did not display any poor taste by remaining silent when the officials singled out Beaver men for personal fouls.

It's pretty tough to call a game with 100 percent accuracy. The referee calls 'em as he sees 'em. He's down on the floor, not up in the bleachers, and he has the best vantage spot from which to make his decisions. Some of these grandstand experts would look pretty pathetic if they ever changed shoes with a referee and had to call a ball game by themselves.

FRESHMEN SHINE

This even-stephen stuff seems to be pretty contagious. Earlier Saturday afternoon, John Warren's mysterious freshmen five split a doubleheader in the Igloo, trouncing Reedsport High in the opening fray, and dropping the nod to Grant High School of Portland in the nightcap. Especially impressive for the yearlings were Johnny Neally, George Huggins and Del Milne. Neally is a scrappy little kid and really moves up and down the court with a world of speed. Huggins set a number of scoring plays up with accurate passes, and Milne perhaps had the best scoring eye of the three men.

News of the return of Gail Bishop to Washington State College may be welcomed by all Northern division spectators. Bishop, who led all scorers in the ND in the 1942-43 season, will be a big help to the Cougars, currently floundering around in the basement position of the league race.
