The Oregon chapter of the National Association of University Dames will hold a pot-luck dinner Friday evening at the Episcopal parish house to which all students and their wives are invited.

ANDERSON SAYS

(Continued from page one) fusing with her government under a four-power council and her national policy directed by them. The country is treated as liberated and there are no strict rules. The American G. I. has been given rigid orders for a "hands off" policy as far as civilians are concerned.

In sections of Austria under the governing of the Russians there is a marked difference in the attitude of the people. Austrians seem to fear them and when a Russian says "snap to" the Austrians do just that, Anderson said.

The lieutenant emphasized that a sense of tolerance is lacking in Europe and the rest of the world. He feels that this quality is essential to lasting world peace and security. He agreed with the general opinion that Russians are hard to understand, but pointed out that they have the same problem of trying to comprehend the American way of doing things.

Anderson urged that news be analyzed and that opinions should be formed only on the basis of sound knowledge.

The assembly was opened with a song entitled "Silence," sung by Janette Williams, a junior in liberal arts, accompanied by Elizabeth Pollock, a junior in music, at the piano.

WOMEN'S CARNIVAL

The line forms to the right at 8 p.m. and both tickets and script will be on sale at the door.

Barbara Wells and Pearl Peterson, co-chairmen, promise a gala time to everyone who comes and believe the event should be an outstanding highlight of Winter term.

SCHOOL BUILDING

(Continued from page one) Oregon's postwar school building program is estimated to cost some $20,000,000, half of which is now available.

The 200 delegates who are expected for the meeting include city superintendents of education, principals of union and larger high schools, county superintendents, and northwest architects. Citizens of communities interested in promoting a postwar school building plan in their districts will also attend.

Mr. D. A. Emerson, assistant state superintendent of public instruction, and Dr. Hugh B. Wood, education professor at the University, attended a meeting in Salem last Friday to help formulate the program for the conference.

Goodspeed, McClintock

(Continued from page one) Polls are to remain open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Date and place of voting will be announced in the Emerald.

As no one may vote by proxy, all freshmen students are urged to take time to go to the polls.

Ed Allen explained the system of the preferential ballot, which is used in voting for class officers. Voting is done for the four nominees in order of the voter's preference, first choice being listed as number one, second choice number two, and so on. In tabulating votes, the number of students who voted is divided by the number of candidates plus one. This quotient plus one, is the least number of votes which will put a nominee into office.

Highest Wins

The two candidates who have the highest number of votes become president and vice president, the highest number of votes deciding the presidency. The number of first and second choice votes for the remaining candidates are added and in a similar manner, the candidate with the highest number of votes becomes secretary and the other candidate is treasurer.

As is customary, the class of 1945 left $200 in the freshman fund. This procedure gives the class enough money to carry on activities until such a time as the money can be easily paid back to the general fund.
