Jose is ordered to take her into custody. He does but subsequently unfastens the cords that bind her hands and she escapes at the foot of the bridge.

Act two occurs in the Inn of Lellas Pastia. Carmen is with friends at a table where they sing and dance. Escamillo, a victorious bullfighter from Granada, arrives. The soldiers and gypsies welcome him, but he devotes himself to Carmen. When Escamillo and the soldiers depart, two smugglers who have booty in view seek Carmen's assistance. They persuade her to induce Jose, who has deserted his regiment to follow the gypsy girl, to join their band.

Mountain Scene

The action of act three takes place in a rocky pass in the mountains. Don Jose and Carmen are seen in a haunt of the smugglers. Escamillo appears and arouses the jealous Don Jose.

They rush together, but the smugglers separate them. Escamillo then invites everyone to the bull fight at Seville. While Don Jose is upbraiding Carmen, the faithful Micaela enters and begs him to accompany her to his mother, who is dying. Don Jose goes with Micaela.

Carmen Dies
