UO, C. of C. Co-Sponsor Drive For Private Veteran Housing

Eugene Three O'Clock Club Sets Goal of 500 Rooms; Need for Spring Term Accommodations

By Chuck de Ganahl

So that veterans returning to the University next term will not have to be turned away disappointed because there is no place to house them, the University and the Eugene chamber of commerce are sponsoring a drive to open Eugene's houses to accommodate 500 more veterans seeking an education.

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce Ten O'Clock club Friday afternoon, Chairman Frank Senn outlined the housing drive, which started Sunday, to get living quarters to handle the expected increase in returning GI's spring term.

The opening gun of the campaign was an interview over radio station KORE with Dr. Harry K. Newburn, president of the University, and H. J. Cox, president of the Eugene chamber. Dr. Newburn pointed out that the University is at a very critical point because of the housing shortage, and that the response to this drive might well determine whether the school will grow as Oregon grows in the future.

Student Poetry Prose Sought

New Magazine Feature Added to Annual Odeon

With a magazine being published in conjunction with Odeon this year for the first time, there is a much greater need for short stories, essays, and poetry than ever before.

Short stories and essays may run from 1000 to 2000 words, with verse running any length. Approximately 10 short stories and essays will be published, depending upon the quality of the material submitted.

Use Box

To facilitate submission of material, a box will be placed at the student Co-op this week, and all work may be left there. If more convenient, essays and short stories may be turned in to Dr. Robert Horn, and poetry to Mrs. Alice Ernst.

The short stories, essays, and poetry will be selected for publication and presentation at Odeon by a faculty and student committee of judges.

In conjunction with a program of original dance and music, the poetry that is best adapted for oral presentation will be read at the Odeon performance, Sunday evening, April 28, by readers trained by Professor R. D. Clark of the speech department. Other longer verse will be published in the magazine.

Deadline Set

The deadline for all material to be entered in Odeon is March 22, (Please turn to page eight)

The aid of over 50 Eugene merchants is being enlisted in the drive to collect applications for the veterans' rooms. Posters and application blanks are being distributed to business houses all over Eugene. Persons wishing to sign up to house a GI may sign up at any of these stores or may call Mrs. Alice B. MacDuff, University housing secretary, 3300 extension 331 and sign up.

A similar campaign for winter term residences early this year directly made 437 rooms and apartments available to veterans and eased the situation for many others.

Remodeling Necessary

In a talk to the Ten O'Clock club Friday, President Cox told the gathering, "We're starting this campaign early, and we have a definite reason. Last January we discovered that many Eugeneans would have provided rooms for the boys if there had been time to get ready. Some of the rooms needed a little remodeling and furnishings like beds, desks, or chairs. By starting this effort early, we plan

New Guinea's Shangri-la Viewed by UO Graduate

By Maryann Thielen

New Guinea's famous Shangri-la is an actuality for Carl Huffaker, Jr., who flew over the valley and prepared photographs of the region for mapping purposes while he was with the 2nd photo charting squadron, a mapping unit of the air corps.

Huffaker, anthropology graduate student, was attached to one of the five air corps units used for aeronautical charting, specializing in little known regions. His job was to coordinate the work of the photographic units with the mapping units. While his unit was stationed in Hollandia photographing the New Guinea area, Huffaker had an opportunity to fly over Shangri-la which had been rediscovered in 1941 by men from the air transport command working out an air route.

Discovered In 1939

"A party of 90 from the American Museum of Natural History had previously discovered the valley in 1939," Huffaker said, "but they had not published their information. The ATC boys were disappointed when they found out that they weren't the original discoverers."

"The flat valley floor is about 5000 feet in elevation surrounded by numerous ridges 10,000 feet or more in height. The impassable gorge through which the river leaves the valley completes an isolation as perfect as that of its (Please Turn to Page Eight)
