

Tax Refund Money Due UO Students, Veterans

By Bill Yates

Many Oregon students may be unknowingly passing up sizeable sums of money because of failure to file for income tax refunds.

Any person who earned less than $500 last year and whose wages were subject to the government withholding tax is eligible to receive the full amount that was taken from his salary. Although not all employees were subject to the withholding tax, most persons working in factories, shipyards, stores, offices, etc., did have the tax taken from their paychecks.

Must File Forms

Persons whose salaries were subject to the withholding tax should have received a Form W-2 at the time they received their last paycheck. Any one earning more than $500 automatically must file this receipt, or a regular individual income tax return, on or before March 15. Although not compulsory, persons in the less-than-$500 bracket should file the receipt so that the government can refund all the withholding tax that was taken from their wages.

If any person has lost his form W-2, he may secure another from the Office of the Collector of Internal Revenue, Room 207, in the Postoffice building.

Money Due Vets

Many veterans may also unexpectedly have sums due them from the government. Any man who entered the service after 1941, and who paid income tax either for the year of 1941 or 1942, may file at any internal revenue collection office and receive a full refund.

The pay of any man who served in the armed forces as an enlisted man is exempt from income tax and need not file. Men who held ranks as commissioned officers must pay tax on all money earned above $1500. Men coming into this class have six months after their discharges in which to file a return, and three years in which to pay.

E. L. Huber, deputy collector for the Eugene district, has announced that all persons who are in doubt about their income tax status can receive complete advice from his office in the Postoffice building, or from any other internal revenue office.

Strange Oddity Befalls Veteran

By Winston Carl

Every Friday night Bill Stern comes on the radio telling strange stories about famous sports stars. However, since he limits tales to those of world renown, many stories even more amazing than his, go untold.

There is one occurrence that is too interesting to die unheard. It concerns a student who will be back on the campus next term, Willard Christianson. The scene takes place in an army air corps barracks in advanced training school. Chris was talking to one of the boys who had been on the same team with him during pre-flight, basic, and advanced training athletics. During the course of the conversation, Chris discovered that this teammate's home was in Seaside, Oregon. As Chris was from Tillamook, he wondered if they had played against each other during high school athletic competition.

Remembers Event

By coincidence they had, and remembered that each had graduated at about the same time. The Seaside cadet remembered one football game in particular, for it was one of the important tussles of that season, and again because he was injured during the course of it. He recalled being tackled as he ran through the Tillamook high line, then twisting and falling on a line-backer's knee, which in turn fractured this line-plunger's collarbone.

Strangely enough, Chris remembered that game too, for it was his knee that the Seaside player had fallen on. So two men who had fought many a sports battle on opposing teams, found that even though the armed services did manage to separate friends from each other, they did bring adversaries together on new gridirons thousands of miles from home playing on the same team.

Professor: "You'll pass."

POST-WAR STARS

basket broke another tie score, this time 17 to 17, and gave his teammates the game and the championship.

The Emerald sports staff chose the annual all-intramural basketball team at the end of the season. Five teams were represented on the team with one man each on the mythical squad. Eddie Salstrom, Phi Delta Theta, and Les Bult, The Bums, were selected for the forward positions; Bill May-ther, Sigma Hall, center; Kenny Hume, Alpha Tau Omega, and Chuck Taylor, Phi Gamma Delta, guards.

New handball champions were crowned during the earlier part of the term as the Yeomen stopped a title bound Beta Theta Pi team

3 to 0 in the final round of the single elimination tournament. The Yeomen won all three sets from the Betas with little trouble. Rolloff and Dennison each took their single events while Hendrickson and Vossen teamed up to garner the doubles victory.

ABOUT 7,000 miles of coaxial cable will be added to our plant during the next few years. Inside each cable are six or eight copper tubes—each pair a broad communications highway over which two television programs or nearly 500 long distance telephone calls can travel. Giant plow-trains will "plant" much of this cable deep in the ground—safe from storm and fire.

This construction is but a part of our activity in the television field. Now in an advanced experimental stage are plans to link coaxial cables and high frequency radio relay systems to provide a nationwide television network.

Our part in television is the transmission of programs from one station to another. As this new industry develops, the Bell System will be prepared to provide whatever network facilities are needed.
