

Business Posts Filled by Board

George Pegg, junior in journalism, was appointed business manager of the Emerald and Robbier Warrens, sophomore in music, was named business manager of the Oregonian by the educational activities board Monday. The appointments are subject to the approval of the ASUO executive council.

Pegg, a veteran, is advertising manager of the Emerald this term and worked on the layout staff fall and winter terms.

Miss Warrens has served as executive secretary of the Oregonian and was night editor of the Emerald fall term. She is a member of Chi Omega, Phi Beta, Kwama, and Amphibians.

The board also appointed Miss Warrens to replace Fred Samain as business manager of the Oregonian for the rest of this year. Samain was declared ineligible for activities spring term. He replaced Roseann Leckie, who withdrew from school winter term.

Pegg will take over his duties as Emerald business manager next fall.

Other petitioners for the offices were Bob Chapman and Gloria Grenfell.

Women to Choose Court Candidates

With Junior Weekend less than a month away, the time is approaching to select the queen and her court to reign over the "State Fair" festivities. Virginia Harris, chairman of the queen selection committee, announced that all organized women's houses must submit the names of their candidates to her at the Delta Gamma house before 7 p.m. Wednesday.

To be eligible, candidates must be juniors with a 2.00 cumulative grade point, as well as scholastic junior standing.

"The first eliminations will be held Thursday when the beauty and personality of each candidate will be judged. The final selection of the finalists will be made at an all-campus election on Friday," Miss Harris said.

The queen and her court will be presented at the Junior Prom on May 11. They will also lead the float parade from Willamette street to the campus and preside at the all-campus picnic on Saturday.

Joann Holstad reigned over the 1945 Junior Weekend court. Her princesses were Janet Roberts, Louise Goodwin, Signe Eklund, and Lois McConkey.

Students to Debate Results of Congress

A panel discussion on the results of the recent Pacific Northwest College Congress will be the topic for the Thursday ASUO assembly. Assisting the four students on the panel will be Charles Howard, law professor, acting as moderator, and Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration, as resource man.

Students are urged to interrupt the panel at any time to ask questions or give opinions. Names of the panel members will be published later.

'Giant-like giant' of the keyboard, according to the New York World Telegram, Artur Rubinstein, concert pianist, will play in McArthur court at 8:15 Wednesday night. Mr. Rubinstein is sponsored by the Eugene Civic Music association.

Worm Turns as Men Multiply Ranks

By the time registration closed officially at noon last Saturday, 3778 students had entered the University, including 2046 men, almost four times as many as last year, and 1732 women. This new figure brings the ratio of women to men to approximately 8½ to 10.

Of the 1690 veterans now attending the University, 1407 are taking advantage of the GI Bill of Rights, 190 the federal rehabilitation bill, and 13 are receiving state aid.

Included in the new total are 178 special students and auditors, 1171 freshmen, 1484 sophomores, 195 juniors, 514 seniors and 236 graduate students.

Old and New

Registering at the University for the first time were 326 men and 48 women, nearly seven times as many matriculates as last year. In addition, nearly twice as many old students registered this year as last.

Of the 1472 enrolled in the college of liberal arts, 1161 are lower division students. Totals for the others are: general arts and letters, 4; general science, 3; general social science, 8; anthropology, 5; biology, 31; chemistry, 19; classics, 1; economics, 9; English, 66; geology and geography, 7; Germanic languages, 1; history, 33; mathematics, 12; physics, 4; political science, 10; psychology, 18; Romance languages, 15; and sociology, 45.

More Figures

Totals for other schools of the University are: architecture and allied arts, 451; business administration, 828; education, 141; journalism, 284; law, 265; music, 158; physical education, 159; general studies, 3; auditor, 17.

There are 11 seniors in the school of law this year as compared to only one last year. In addition, there are 204 pre-professional law students, 32 first-year, and 18 second-year.

AWS Tea Today At 3

The first Associated Women students tea of spring term will be held today at 3 o'clock in Gerlinger hall, Bea King, president-elect of the AWS, announced Monday. Mrs. Esther Lloyd-Jones, of the personnel education division of Columbia university, will speak. All women students are invited.

Igloo Concert Wednesday Features Famous Pianist

Artur Rubinstein Scheduled Here In Opening Concert of Spring Term

Sponsored by the Eugene Civic Music association, Artur Rubinstein will present the first concert of the spring term Wednesday night. Rubinstein will appear in McArthur court at 8:15 p.m. Students and Eugene townfolk will be admitted to the concert free by showing their ASUO or ECMA membership cards.

Alum to Address Journalism Groups

Paul F. Ewing, staff writer for The Oregonian and 1934 graduate of the University school of journalism, will arrive on the campus today to visit old faculty acquaintances and to speak to journalism classes.

A former Emerald worker, Ewing was a captain in army intelligence during the war, and served in the Panama Canal zone in connection with military censorship. He was affiliated with the Associated Press before the war, and was attached to the bureaus in Seattle and Portland. He has worked in Turlock, California, and Spokane as a newspaperman.

If he arrives on the campus in time, Ewing will speak to journalism classes today; tomorrow he will address Dean George Turnbull's Editing class at 9, a combination of Leonard Jermain's and Turnbull's Reporting classes at 11, and Warren Price's Public opinion class at 1.

Ewing, who is covering an assignment for The Oregonian while in Eugene, will be taken to lunch Wednesday by members of the journalism faculty and Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity.

Victor P. Morris To Interview Duo

Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration, is interviewing Lois McConkey and Lloyd Frese about their part in the Student Congress held recently in Portland, on station KOAC from 4 to 4:15 today.

The 15 minutes of the campus recital beginning at 4:15 will feature Virginia Lindley, pianist. Miss Lindley is playing "Guirlandes" by Godard, "Danse de Puck" by Debussy, "At the Convent" by Borodine and "Danse Negro" by Scott. From 4:30 to 4:45 Jeanette Williams, contralto accompanied by Elizabeth Trump Pollock will sing "Connais tu le pays?" by Ghomas, "Bonjour Suzon" by Delibe, "Think of Me" by Scott, and "Come and Dance," by Pennington.

The preceding portions of the University hour are being produced by Gorden Halstead. Betty Jean Miller is producer of the "Neighborhood News" program featuring the school of journalism from 4:45 to 5.

Float Announcement

Dick Savinar, chairman of the float committee, announced Monday a limit of $15 per house may be spent on Junior Weekend floats, which means a total of $30 may be spent on each float.

Rubintsein's remarkable career may be catalogued by the following events:

Joseph Joachim made Rubinstein his protege at the age of eight. The pianist acquired a following in Europe by the time he was fifteen. As a youth of sixteen he makes his American debut in 1906, and is considered a specialist in Beethoven, Liszt and Brahms.

Traveler

Since his debut in 1906 he has journeyed more than a million miles, playing everywhere in the world except Tibet.

Recently an anonymous music-lover rather dourly complained in a New York newspaper that the critics writing for the metropolitan dailies had run out of superlatives in reviewing the several annual appearances of Rubinstein in the city's concert halls, and were beginning to repeat themselves.

He pointed out that Olin Downes of the Times had used the words "masterly" and "master pianist" in writing of two successive Carnegie hall concerts by the Polish pianist; that Louis Biancolli the World-Telegram had referred once to Rubinstein's "Giant technique" and the next time had called him one of the "giant technicians of the keyboard."

Perfection

Henry Simon expressed this verbal exhaustion in PM, confessing "About one pianist in every 10,000 or more reached a state of perfection in his playing where the critics can only sit back and admire and, perhaps, offer a few mild differences of opinion. Artur Rubinstein has reached that populated state."

Nevertheless the briefest research reveals that far from exhausting the critical fraternity, Mr. Rubinstein's powerful playing inspires them to ever greater heights of eloquence. The Sun reports on his "sheer pianistic sorcery." Mr. Biancolli writes: "Mr. Rubinstein made the whole concerto sound like something heard in a dream," and on another occasion, that the pianist "entertained regally."

PM refers to the "magical name of Artur Rubinstein," and Olin Downes exclaims, "Mr. Rubinstein was a host in himself."

Variety climaxes with characteristic terseness: "Rubinstein Socko In Recital."

Lack of 'Name' Band Cancels SDX Dance

Members of the University chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity, voted to withdraw plans for an all-campus spring term dance, Charles Politz, president, announced Monday.

Original plans were made with the condition that a "big-name" band could be signed for the occasion.

"No nationally famous band was available on the nights suggested, Politz declared, "so the plan was dropped."
