HISTORIAN STIRS

(Continued from page four) pute over payment of a bill. The woman's son, a 19-year-old navy veteran, physically intervened. The Negroes were beaten, arrested and jailed. When an armed mob gathered near the jail, the prisoners were furnished bail and hidden out of town by friends.

"The mob, after losing their lynch victims, invaded the terror-ridden Negro business section that evening. There was gunfire and several policemen were wounded by buckshot. The mob then withdrew and a cordon of state militia and highway patrolmen was thrown about the section.

"At dawn militia and patrolmen with tommy-guns blazing invaded the Negro business section wrecking and looting every store. More than 70 arrests of Negroes were made that day and more than 110 to date (9 April, 1946). No warrants were issued nor was any sanction of law invoked.

"Brute force and blind hatred was the sole authority. Negro men, women and children were beaten mercilessly as they were herded to jail. Two Negro prisoners were shot dead and a third wounded by officers in a cell under pretext that one had attempted to seize and load a rifle.

"... We must raise $50,000 immediately to enable the N.A.A.C.P. (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) legal staff, retained by every defendant, to provide bail and legal defense."

Spring Fever Gives Bohemians New and Interesting Inspirations

By HANS WOHL

Several unsuspecting art student dashed madly through the hallway door at the art school one evening last week to find themselves standing just to the right of a model and surrounded by a group of the art school faculty in their semi-secret weekly sketching classes. It seems that the instructors have elected to take a "post-man's holiday" one night a week to keep the "old eye" sharpened up.

Elsewhere around the art school, things are moving along in a spring-like fashion.

G.I.s in a passing army convoy found something whistleable about the freshman drawing class which arranged itself comfortably on the lawns outside the art school Wednesday.

In the weaving department, sweater girls are knitting their own these days. Judging from the dazzling array of colored yarn around the looms it looks as if this season's sweaters will be rivaling the glaring spring neckties which seemed to blossom out with the sun last week. —Wonder, could they whip up some goods for a new spring suit?

It seems that the pet peeve of the sculpture class is none other than the lowly door knob. Downright inconvenient, they say. They're designing new ones with finger holds, like a bowling ball. Ingenious, isn't it!

One of the lads in the sculpture department is casting a life size head of his wife. He says he'll get great satisfaction out of getting in the last word, if only with her likeness.

Pill Palace Admits Thirteenth Patient

"Is it measles?" a ZTA said quizzically.

"No, just infectious mononucleosis," replied the nurse. With a relieved expression, Ruth Allen, freshman in English, answered, "Thank goodness, I thought I had something contagious." Not feeling well for several days, Miss Allen entered yesterday morning and is quite content to know it is only glandular trouble and not measles.

Ward 3 wishes us to remind readers that visiting hours are from 2 to 4 and 7 to 8.

There are an unusually large number in the pill palace with the advent of a holiday. Among these are Eileen Brenneman, Selma Syme, Mary "Kit" Wilhelm, Pat Jordon, Dorothy White, Barbara Wood, Ed Burr, Julius Fleenor, Bernard McCudden, Bob Melim, Aleen Amacher, Mary Patton and Ruth Allen.
