

Librarian Expects Many Contestants

Entry Blanks Available For Annual Competition

Expecting greater participation in the Student Library contest this year than ever before, Miss Bernice Rise, circulation librarian, announced that entry blanks may be obtained at the circulation desk or in her office on the main floor of the libe.

Students are encouraged to enter their personal libraries on the basis of quality of subject matter rather than quantity. Cash prizes amounting to $25 will be awarded the three most outstanding collections.

Miss Rise had charge of the first contest, held in 1939 for undergraduate students. In 1941-42 the contests were opened to graduate students as well, but in 1943 the contest was once again limited to undergraduate students, since the aim is to create interest among students who need guidance or who might otherwise neglect personal ownership of books.

The contest is sponsored solely by the Friends and Patrons of the Library, although the Co-op store co-operated in 1943-44. The House Librarians are working actively in stimulating interest among students in living organizations.

Fourteen libraries were entered in 1939, and since then interest has gained momentum with each contest. Last year, 32 personal libraries were entered, and 26 actually displayed. Kenneth Lodewick, senior in arts, was first prize winner. He will display his library again this year. During the contest history, more awards have been given to men than women, Miss Rise reported.

Holbrook To Speak At Matrix Table

Stewart Holbrook, prominent Oregon author, will be guest of honor at Matrix table, annual banquet sponsored by the University of Oregon chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national professional journalism honorary. He will speak on the title of his forthcoming book, "Lost Men of American History."

The banquet will be held May 1 at 6 p.m. in the Eugene hotel. It will honor women in Journalism throughout the state.

Over 300 invitations have been sent to journalists in Oregon, and to senior women in the University majoring in journalism, literature, and the arts.

Mary Margaret Ellsworth, senior in journalism, is president of Theta Sigma Phi. Yvonne Zeek, Bend, is general chairman for Matrix table. Assisting her are Virginia Harris, banquet arrangements; Maryann Howard and Rebecca Tarshis, guests; Nona Bradley, invitations; and Margie McNeel, publicity.

Miss Ellsworth urged that all Theta Sigma Phi alumnae plan to attend the affair.

Police to Enforce Night Parking Ban

All-night parking in the University district is illegal and the long-standing city ordinance which bans it will be enforced as soon as the Eugene police force can relieve officers from other assignments to check on it, Chief L. L. Pettenger announced Friday.

He explained that policemen cover the city by sections in rotation and that they will be working in the University area soon.

Stating that "someone has passed around a rumor that we had said we wouldn't enforce this ordinance," Chief Pettenger declared that the city council is the only body which can order enforcement stopped.

He added that the council has before it a request that the ordinance be revoked, but that the question will not come to a vote until May 13.

100 Committee Solicits For Negro Defense

Harriet Tozier, chairman of the campus committee to aid The Committee of 100, announced Friday the names of University fund-raisers who may be contacted by any persons wishing to aid their campaign. The Committee of 100 is soliciting funds for bail and legal defense for Negroes involved in a riot in Columbia, Tennessee.

Fund-raisers of the campus committee are: Miss Tozier, Alpha hall; Trudi Chernis, Hendricks hall; Bill Force, Sherry Ross hall; Randy Raanes, Highland House; Nadya Ramp, University house; Eloise Williams, Judson house; Alice English, Hilyard house; Sally Jeffcott, Kappa Alpha Theta; and Herb Penny, who may be contacted at the Emerald office.

Two Positions Open For Student Petitions

Princess Luoma

Princess George Luoma, who vigorously campaigned for his opposition immediately after his own nomination, first expressed doubt as to the honor attached to his position, but was later heard to remark that he rather liked it. "After all," he is quoted as saying, "you're an important person to be rated a BWOC on the Oregon campus."

Princess Luoma's normal stature is causing no difficulty for the royal dressing committee, but the royal hair designers are becoming frantic. Luoma, who ordinarily wears his hair combed back in long flowing lines, insists that he will not permit it to be braided for the May 4 occasion.

The controversy was partially solved last night when the hair designers wired Arthur Hay for his opinion. It is expected in time for the festivities.

Art Student Sculps Faces To Launch Nightmares

By Hans Wold

For the sake of those who have been haunted in the past weeks by visions of the "great stone face," a work of sculpture which adorns a stand near the rear entrance of the art school, let me offer the explanations of certain persons who are "in the know" around the campus, among them Florence A. Godfrey, who created the "face."

The "face" is approximately 10 weeks old but looks older. As far as can be discovered she has never been formally christened, and Miss Godfrey informs us that any resemblance to particular persons, living or dead, is purely unintentional.

In spite of her anonymity, no one who has ever known her would accuse the "face" of lacking personality. Actually, she is just bubbling over with character. She seems to gaze out of her big reddish brown eyes with a sort of sardonic humor on the world at large. Sometimes she looks a little cynical.

At first one hardly notices her. But she grows on you.

Some people feel a sort of good natured affection toward her. She irritates some people, perhaps because her head is three times as long as it is high. A few sensitive souls actually bear her a sort of morbid hatred. They avoid her. They would walk blocks out of their way rather than meet her stony stare.

The "face" is also suffering from a cracked spot in the back of her head.

Hagstrom Revisits Campus Friends

Leonard W. Hagstrom, San Francisco, journalism graduate with the class of 1929 and for four years University editor, paid a visit to his old campus haunts Friday.

Hagstrom is assistant sales manager for the Silkin Paper corporation, a Zellerbach affiliate, for the western states. Up to six months ago he had been in the U. S. navy for 38 months and had risen to the rank of lieutenant commander.

Personnel Work

His work was in connection with personnel, information, and public relations, and for a time he had charge of public relations on an aircraft carrier in the Pacific, sending stories of the activities of the men, with their photographers, to their hometown papers.

"So, you see," he said, "my journalistic and photographic training has not come amiss."

Wrote Scripts

Before joining the paper company, in pre-war days, Mr. Hagstrom spent a year as secretary to a script-writer for the movies and lived in Los Angeles. Together they collaborated on "Six Months to Live" and some other screen stories.

The Oregon grad visited several of his old-time associates in the administration and the school of journalism while on the campus Friday.
