

Author Tells of 'Lost Men' At Matrix Table Meeting

By Barbara Gilbert
 Discussing several of the many men and women who greatly influence the lives of the American people but who are seldom mentioned in history books, Stewart Holbrook, noted Oregon writer, spoke to guests of the annual matrix Table banquet on "Lost Men of American History," Wednesday evening at the Eugene hotel.
 Included in the "lost men," which is the subject of Holbrook's latest book, were Sam Adams, who actually made the ride for which Paul Revere is credited; Dorothea Dix, who fought for better care of the mentally ill in 1840; Ephrim Bull, who developed the Concord grape after 30 years of experimentation; Asher Benjamin, who was responsible for the well-designed farm houses of New England; Frederick Tudor, Joseph Priestly, and Townshend Speakman, who, through their combined developments of the commercial ice cream business, carbonic acid gas, and soda pop, were responsible for the ice cream soda.

Taylor of Portland, author of "Address Unknown," Other men and women connected with journalism were guests.

New Officers
 Miss Ellsworth introduced new officers of the journalism honorary who are: president, Marilyn Sage; vice-president, Virginia Harris; secretary, Mary Ann Howard; treasurer, Winifred Romtvedt; keeper of the archives, Yvonne Zeek.

June Goetze and Jeanne Simmonds were introduced as the outstanding freshman and sophomore women in journalism.

Soloist for the occasion was Lucile Olson, contralto of the University school of music, who sang "When I Have Sung My Songs," by Charles and "My Heart Is A Silent Violin," by Fox. Emily Rhodes Parker played her accompaniment.

Free Movie Series To Run Wednesday

Of special interest to students of literature and Shakespeare, will be the English film "England's Shakespeare," to be featured at the Wednesday night movie series by the Educational Activities board.

This picture is an effort to contrast what the commentary calls the peaceful humanistic age of Shakespeare with our own coldly mechanical era, in terms of typical travelogue shots of the Shakespeare memorabilia at Stratford-on-Avon. All of the buildings and monuments connected with the poet are shown, and there are also glimpses of the interior of the Memorial Theater and of the actors in costume for some of his famous plays.

Two Japanese-American films will be shown, entitled "Go For Broke" and "Challenge to Democracy."

Also included in the program is a March of Time edition on the "Nation's Capitol."

There will be two continuous showings of these films in 207 Chapman hall Wednesday evening from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Students, faculty members, and townspeople are invited to attend.
