New Offenders Draw Hacks For Breeches of Tradition

The thudding paddle of the Order of the 'O' fell down on tradition offenders Wednesday and another batch of miscreants are due for punishment today, Leroy Erickson has announced. Those offenders who should appear on the steps of Fenton Hall at 12:45 p.m. are: Tony Malator, Sam Benevenistie, Al Popic, Al Putnam, Charles Dougherty, Augie Johnson, Art Hatiferen, and Bob Reynolds.

Traditions which the lettermen are enforcing during the "State Fair" week are: no smoking on the campus, no walking on the grass, saying hello on the "Hello Walk" between Fenton and Villard halls. During the campus dinner women and men must not speak to one another and no ties or white shoes should be worn.

All campus living organizations should turn in a list to Erickson at the Phi Delta Theta house of freshmen and sophomores who are to participate in the tug-of-war at 11 a.m. All underclassmen should be entered in this event, Erickson stated. The tug-of-war will be held in the area behind the music building.

Names should also be turned in to Erickson of underclassmen who are to paint the 'O' atop Skinner's butte and clean the Oregon seal in front of Villard hall. Both of these events will take place at 2 p.m. Friday, so names should be turned in immediately.

Underclassmen who are to paint the 'O' should wear old clothes, Erickson warned. Those who are to clean the seal should bring some old rags with them.

Swim Program Slated Tonight

'Under the Big Drip' Chosen By Amphibians

Amphibians will present "Under the Big Drip," a water carnival, tonight at 8 p.m. in the women's pool in Gerlinger. Tonight's performance will be presented especially for students. The same pageant will be given Friday at 3:30 p.m., as a part of the "State Fair" Junior Weekend. It will be held to give visiting mothers the chance to view the swimming carnival.

Due to the small seating capacity at the pool students are asked to come early.

No Oregans Today

Because of shortages of Oregans received from the bindery, the yearbook will not be distributed today as scheduled, but will be distributed Friday from 8 to 12 as previously slated.

Campus Scourers Underway at Noon

A prologue to the 1946 "State Fair" Junior Weekend celebration will roll today from 12 to 4 p.m. during the all-campus clean-up, Anne Scripter, committee chairman announced Wednesday. Prizes for the winner of the annual event will receive prizes of five dollars worth of records which will be presented during the all-campus sing.

Each men's living organization has been paired with a women's living organization to tidy up a designated part of the campus. Judges for the contest will be announced later.

For doing the best job of clean-up last year, Gamma hall and Chi Omega were awarded prizes.

Novelist Haycox, UO Alumnus, To Give Students General Info

Today's assembly speaker

Juniors, Seniors to Hear Author of 'Stage Coach'

Ernest Haycox will speak "extemporaneously on matters of general student interest," according to Doris Hack, alumni secretary, when the Oregon novelist appears before an assembly of junior and senior students in the music school auditorium at 11 today. He will briefly discuss the University of Oregon Alumni association.

Haycox is a graduate of the University school of journalism in the class of '23. While here he was a member of Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Delta Chi. He also filled the position of editor of the Sunday Emerald, the literary edition of the daily.

On Twenty-third Novel

Now working on his twenty-third novel, he also has over 300 short stories and articles to his credit. His first novel was "Free Grass," published in 1929. During the war, a million and a half of his novels, in the Armed Forces edition, were distributed to army and navy personnel.

Three of his novels have formed the plots for motion pictures. They are "Stage Coach," "Union Pacific," and

Red Cross Plans Wives' School

Cooking, Marketing On Instructions Schedule

Campus brides-to-be and veterans wives will be given the opportunity to receive free instructions in cooking and marketing, according to campus Red Cross Chairman Mary Landry.

The national Red Cross has engaged Mrs. Boyer, home economics instructor, to arrange "bride demonstration courses" for University groups during May.

Five Classes Slated

For the wives of campus veterans, five classes of two and one half hours each will be given on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, either in the morning or afternoon, to be arranged by them, starting May 13.

The brides may choose what they wish to study in the cookery field and classes will be held in trailers and also in the Skinners butte kitchen attached to the recreation hall. The purpose in arranging varied instruction places is to

INTERNATIONAL INFLUENCE

Grade students from Eugene's Condon school will entertain visiting school children participating in the final "Let's Sing, America" program in McArthur court today with a Mexican hat dance. Cassie Delia Hyde, University student, instructed the dancer.

'Let's Sing, America' Program Set Today in MacArthur Court

Condon grade school students trained by Cassie Delia Hyde, freshman in liberal arts, will present a Mexican hat dance in one of the highlights of the final broadcast of "Let's Sing, America," in McArthur court today. The broadcast is scheduled for 1:15 over KOAC.

A full program has been arranged for the entertainment of over 800 grade students who will gather on the campus to participate in the last program of Maude Garnett's popular weekly children's show.

End of Three Years

Ending its third year of production, "Let's Sing, America," is put on each week over KOAC by eleven junior public school majors and directed by Miss Garnett, associate professor of public school music. The program is designed to stimulate interest in the songs of America among students in the one- and two-room grade schools throughout the state.

Other numbers on the broadcast will include a country square dance by students from Condon grade school, music by Roosevelt junior high school 80-voice choir, and several selections by the Eugene high school 50-piece band.

Picnic Lunch

Students attending the event will eat a picnic luncheon on Hayward field if the weather permits.

University students who have worked with Miss Garnett this year are Bob Fowells, Estley Schick, Jean Paris, Janet Whitfield, Mary Stapleton, Mary Ingle, Mary Louise Stone, Louise Robson, Frances Schuchard, and Florence Bird Hart, all junior majors in music. Connie Kamm, sophomore in liberal arts, has also aided with the production.
