Paying Bills . . .

"Oh, Father and Mother pay all the bills, and we have all the fun . . ."

So it says in a favorite Oregon tune. However it's a well known fact that a large portion of Oregon students are partially or entirely self-supporting.

During the war years it wasn't hard; parents were making more, and high-paying jobs were easy for students to find during the summer. Now with the return of servicemen, and probable decline in available jobs, working your way through college will press the need for both work and scholarships. With his Bill of Rights, the ex-G. I. isn't affected; students who are just out of high school and who haven't worked will be at particular disadvantage.

The University employment secretary offers jobs, but the matter of getting scholarships is not so easy. Most students don't know whom to see, what scholarships are offered or whether or not they are eligible. Although some scholarships are publicized, most of them are merely listed in the catalog.

Other universities, Wisconsin and Michigan for example, have information bureaus, and clearing houses for scholarships. The University has committees on tuition scholarships and foreign scholarships but no committee to deal with the general run of endowment scholarships and those given by activity groups on the campus.

The past year the Associated Women's Students, under Signe Ecklund, has been campaigning for a central scholarship office with a permanent secretary. They feel that this would encourage scholarship donations, as well as help the students. When a student fails to get one scholarship, his application would be kept on file until the time for selection of more scholarship winners. Fellowship, graduate study and foreign scholarship information and aid might also be included in this office.

The AWS has also encouraged campus groups to give scholarships, rather than donate their money to other causes, and the association itself now gives three $75 scholarships each year.

Money available on the campus for scholarship is limited, however, and perhaps the greatest value of a central scholarship office would be securing endowments from outside.

Such a responsibility couldn't be loaded on the dean of men, dean of women or dean of personnel administration; now does a group such as AWS have the power for such an undertaking? Is there room for such an office in the administration set-up of the University?

Blue Ribbon Show . . .

Resolved: That the students of the University of Oregon hereby voice their approval of the activities of Junior Weekend and extend their thanks to the students who made it a success.

No such formal resolution is needed to register campus approval of the junior class's "State Fair." That approval was clearly shown at each event. And spontaneous praise of the weekend expressed that pleasure and approval much better than any formal declaration ever could.

The appreciation of the campus goes to the co-chairmen, down the line of sub-chairmen and committee workers, and on to each student who worked on a float or helped make the weekend enjoyable for the University's guests.

For the atmosphere most essential to the weekend, each student will have to give thanks in his own way. But the Emerald wants to lead the list with a hymn of praise to old Jupe, who took Buchwach's editorial advice as beautifully as he has in earlier years.

For Friday night's impromptu performer, condolences and applause. What the Fiji dog lacked in decoration discrimination, he made up for in enthusiasm and canine loyalty.

Recollections of incidents and details could go on indefinitely, but they would all add up to one thing—Junior Weekend was a right combination of the University's most colorful and entertaining features.

Fred Beckwith and Tommy Hazzard's Ducktation

Bouquets are in order for a lot of people who insured the success of Junior Weekend. Lots of thought and work went into the planning and construction of the entire program and it's too bad all the organizations couldn't win prizes for their respective efforts.

Jam for Breakfast

By Ted Hallock

Error: Spike Jones is slated for this Wednesday, May 15, in Portland, and will not play for dancing. McElroy has put the outfit in the Civic auditorium for a concert affair. It must be the eight-piece cow-bell routine.

Something about Jones, known by few, is that all of the men playing the terrifically technical corn with Spike are great studio musicians. Santo Pecora, old-time New Orleans trombonist, has been recording with them, and may appear up north. Both Perry Botkins (ex-J. Scott Trotter-Bing Crosby guitarists) and Dick Morgan (Alvino Rey-Ray Noble) have played banjo at various times. Morgan most likely will appear this time because of his ability as a comic singer. With paper hats and stuff, that is.

Both Manny Klein and Chuck Peterson have trumpeted their way through "Hotcha Cornia," etc., with the Slickers. Tenor instructor Mickey Gillette and Peanuts Hucko have saxophoned many's the sky sforzando. In effect, it has taken much work and great musical skill to create the often apparently sloppy hick stuff.

Dorsey-FM-Records

Paul Hudepohl, who wouldn't advertise the Second Coming if Jantzen Beach had exclusive staying rights, didn't, as usual, say a great deal publicly about Tom Dorsey, who appeared there Saturday night. Ziggy has returned. The book featured much Sy Oliver stuff. The band should have been worthwhile seeing. If anyone evaded the "gestapo" and got off the campus.

Guess you read about KGW-FM. Oregonian has the second FM station on the coast. Of course no one can hear anything yet, but when you can afford a $700 Scott receiver, chances are you'll hear good music. The AFM (Petrillo's group) has ruled that no music programs can be carried simultaneously on AM and FM. The FCC has said a few words to that effect also. So look for the jazz, mac, if and when you get the scratch. An also: KUGN will commence ops around June 15. Anticipated local fire-works.

The Appliance Center has answered our and everyone's prayers. In about a month they'll begin stocking most of the 115-odd labels now on the market. Have been talking to the ex-GI owner who is anxious to find out what, in the way of good small band jazz, would be acceptable. Perhaps we'll start polling.
