

Phi Delt's Win IM Golf Crown

The Phi Delta Theta golf team captured the 1946 intra-mural golf title when they edged a determined foursome from Alpha Tau Omega in a match last Tuesday.

The Phi Delt's were impressive throughout the spring as they trounced Sigma Hall 12-0 in the opening round, tripped Chi Psi 9-3 in the quarter finals, and bested Sigma Chi 7-5 in the semis to gain the finals.

The ATO route included wins over Sherry Ross, Campbell Club, and Sigma Phi Epsilon to gain the finals.

Coach Bert LaBrucherie have attracted the cream of Los Angeles high school talent, several PCC stars from other conference schools who have transferred to UCLA, and perhaps the celebrated colored sprinter-halfback Buddy Young.

Prospects at Stanford and California have not as yet placed them in as respected a position as their southern sisters. The Indians are returning to the football wars for the first time since 1942, while the Bears are attempting a rally under their new mentor Frank Wickhorst.

Backfield talent at the University of Oregon has fans, and experts alike in a high state of expectation with strength expected at least three deep at all positions.

Heading the 1946 parade is the Webfoot All-American Jake Leicht. Jake did not show in spring practice as he was working out on the track squad.

Jimmy Newquist, smooth runner from the 1941 squad, will also aid the Webfoot running attack. Newquist also played ball for St. Mary's pre-flight in 1942. Completing the top trio for the tailback spot is two-year letterman Bobby Reynolds, slippery-hipped triple-threatener from last year's eleven.

Also in the running at the left-half post are passing experts Norm Van Brocklin and Bill Behrens and punting ace George Redden.

The fullback turnout is equally imposing. Bob Koch, 1941 veteran and teammate to Newquist on the 1942 St. Mary's pre-flight team, is expected to come through in great style. Walt Donovan, light but fast, is back from last year's team on which he starred as leading scorer in the PCC. Glen Wilson, transfer from Sacramento J. C. and Bob Oas may also break the top bracket.

Included in those expected to return is Bill Davis, Webfoot fullback in 1942.

The righthalf post appears the weakest in the backfield at present. The spring season found Sam Ramey, George Bell, and Corky Van Loo in a three-way struggle for top billing. Of the three only Van Loo boasts previous experience having played at Pacific university in 1942 and briefly for the El Toro Marines last year.

Help may be obtained at this position from Leroy Erickson, 1942 letterwinner and San Diego Navy star, who was unable to turn out during the spring season.

The quarterback post is settled with Duke Iverson back in the slot he occupied in pre-war years. The Big Duke should be among the top blocking backs in the nation this year. Under Iverson are 1945 regular Bill Abbey, Long Beach college transfer Don Shaffer, and 1945 reserve Andy Bodner.

Spring training revealed a lack of strength at the end posts, but this may be remedied by fall with the expected return of several proven performers. Tony Crish is firmly entrenched at left end and leaves no cause for concern. The fall returnees may plug the right end hole as Hymie Harris, Pete Torchia and Joe Dugan are all expected back. Also fighting for wing berths during the spring program were Wayne Bartholemy, Pug Mayer, Duane Potter, Lou Robinson and a host of others, several of whom are expected to develop into top contenders this fall.

The tackle turnout is headed by three returning lettermen—Chuck Elliott, Harry Edwards, and Curt Deskins—and an equally impressive array of new candidates—Colorado State transfer Howie Frary, Bob Roberts, and Pete Miller.

Another pair of top contenders are expected out in the fall—Don Stanton and Ray Blatchley, both of whom played frosh ball at Oregon several years back.

John Kauffman, all-coast candidate last year, leads the list of guard aspirants. He is the only letterman at the guard spots, but may be hard-pressed to beat out the efforts of Ted Meland, Bill Murphy, and Tony Novacic, all of whom looked very impressive during spring season.

Top man at the pivot post is Brad Ecklund, frosh numeral winner several seasons back, who may team up with quarterback Duke Iverson to give the Webfoots one of the best linebacking duos in the conference.

Jim Berwick, originally a guard, has been tried out at center and may work out very well. Under Berwick are several other possibilities including Bill Sempert, Jack Bunnett, Don Martin, and perhaps a pre-war frosh standout Clark Stokes.

The 1946 football season opens Sept. 28 for the Webfoots when they square off with the College of Pacific on Hayward field and continues uninterrupted for nine contests closing Nov. 23 with the Oregon State finale at Corvallis.

The complete 1946 schedule is as follows:
Sept. 28 College of Pacific at Eugene.
Oct. 5 California at Berkley.
Oct. 12 Montana at Eugene.
Oct. 19 Washington State at Eugene.
Oct. 26 Idaho at Moscow.
Nov. 2 Southern California at Los Angeles.
Nov. 9 UCLA at Portland.
Nov. 16 Washington at Seattle.
Nov. 23 Oregon State at Corvallis.
