

Air Corps ROTC Opens

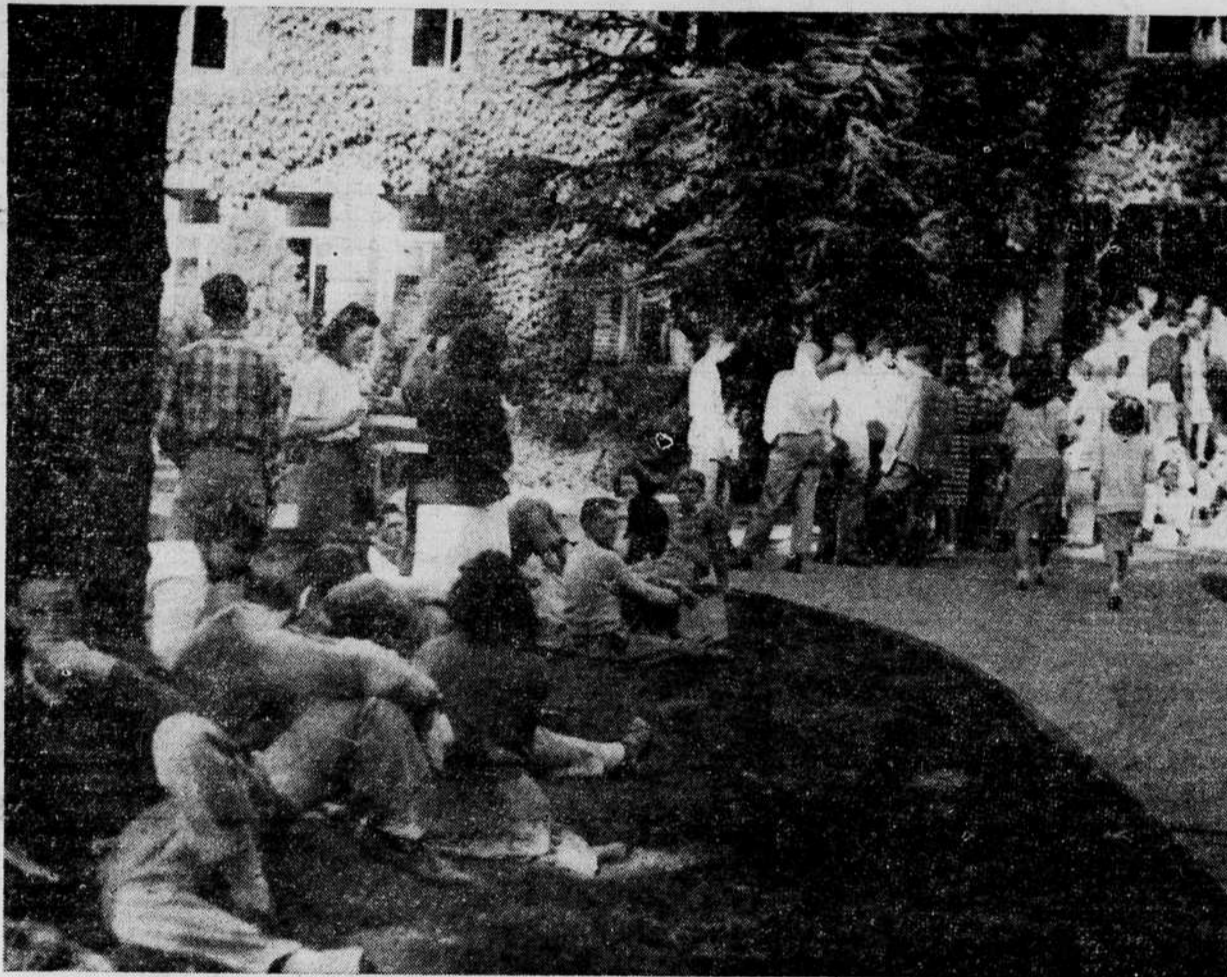

DAILY OREGON EMERALD

VOLUME XLVIII

Number 4

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1946

NO CHOW LINE THIS . . .

As students line up outside Friendly hall to enroll in English composition courses. This scene is typical of situations brought on by this year's heavy registration. (EMERALD photo by Don Jones)

Enrollment Tops 5400

Oregon enrollment will reach and may exceed the 5500 mark according to Mr. C. V. Avery, registrar. Through Tuesday night, materials have been issued to more than 5400 applicants and even more are expected with the late registration deadline extending until October 5.

A breakdown as to the number of men and women students is impossible as yet. The number of graduate students attending classes is approximately 250 which makes this the largest graduate enrollment the school has seen thus far.

Registrar Needs Help

People who have had experience with IBM machines are needed for University employment, C. V. Avery, registrar, said Tuesday. With the installation of the new machines, the presence of experienced personnel is urgently requested. Mr. Avery's office is located on the main floor of Johnson hall. Anyone interested in such a position is requested to contact him at the earliest opportunity.

Old-Time Thrillers Will Run Tonight

Three old-time silent thrillers will be shown at 207 Chapman hall tonight in two continuous showings, at 7:30 and 9 in the first of the regular Wednesday movie nights sponsored by the educational activities board.

"The Great Train Robbery" by Edwin S. Raber was produced in 1903. "The Last Card," made in 1915, stars William S. Hart in one of his cowboy roles. James Cruze produced "The Covered Wagon" in 1923.

According to Dick Williams, educational activities manager, the films are being released by the Museum of Modern Art in New York in a series showing the contrast between early movies and those currently being produced.

Students, faculty, and townspeople are invited to attend the movies. There is no admission charge.

Dorm Rooms Open

Students desiring space in either the men's or women's dormitories are asked to contact Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed immediately. Some rooms are now made available by students who did not claim their reservations.

Frosh to Meet YWCA Cabinet

Tonight and Thursday night during after-hour firesides, members of the YWCA cabinet will visit all living women's organizations to explain to all freshman girls about Freshman Commissions offered by the "Y."

By joining one of the many commissions a girl is given a chance to know some one with whom they do not live. It also supplies an opportunity to talk of campus events with small groups and it gives a chance for girls to learn about the campus and college life.

If a girl does not wish to join a commission she may sign up for activities in the "Y" when the activities cards are passed out during the meeting.

Today is the beginning of the YWCA membership drive under the direction of Bobbie Fulmer, membership chairmen, and these firesides are in conjunction with the drive.

Co-op Buying Textbooks

The University Co-op is offering full refunds on undamaged text books returned before October 5.

If you have somehow acquired a text which you will not be able to use the Co-op urges you to resell it and help relieve the existing shortage of text books.

Advanced Military Men May Earn Commissions

Commissions in the air corps will now be available through a new ROTC course open to advanced students in military science and tactics, it was announced Tuesday by Colonel John E. McCammon, head of the university military department.

The new program will be handled by an air corps unit of three officers and three enlisted technicians to be added to the University's regular infantry staff. Major R. V. Archuleta, scheduled to arrive soon, has been named to head the program.

Registration Photos Ready Thursday

Health photos for all new students who have not already secured them should be taken tomorrow at the infirmary from 1:30 to 5 p.m. These photos are required for all new students and registration cannot be completed without them.

Hazzard Names New Yell Men

Rally squad male members were announced Tuesday by Tom Hazzard, yell king, after they were interviewed by the executive committee of the ASUO. New assistants to Hazzard are Hal Schick, sophomore in pre-dentistry, and Bob Lewis, freshman in political science.

Schick was yell assistant in 1944 at the University. Here as a freshman in 1942, Lewis went into the army after one term.

There were 139 applicants for women's positions on the rally squad, Hazzard said. He will interview them at McArthur court at 3 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday.

Those whose names are from A to M will be interviewed Wednesday and those from N to Z Thursday. If any of the applicants have classes which conflict with either of those days they may come the other day.

The organization behind the rally squad will be set up next week, Hazzard said.

Oregana Space Set For Mens' Houses

Oregana Editor Roy Paul Nelson has announced the schedule to be followed for pictures to be taken by Kennel-Ellis studios beginning September 30 for the 1947 edition of the University Yearbook. No unaffiliated group pictures will be used. Space will be made available for fraternities, sororities, co-ops, dorms and halls, and Yeomen only.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate all of the University men before the Sophomore Whiskerino. Men living in dorms but retaining membership in fraternities are cautioned to check with their fraternities.

The first of the weekly announcements of appointments will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Students electing the air corps courses may earn a commission in any one of eight categories, including transportation, personnel management, communications, ordnance, administration, supply, maintenance engineering, and statistical control.

Generous allowances are contemplated for the entire period of the student's training. Advanced air corps enrollees will undergo orientation flight of 25 hours, Col. McCammon said, with additional compensation for those students who participate in flying.

Selected students desiring to become pilots, bombardiers, or navigators will be accepted for training at a regular army flying school. Honor students will be considered for commission in the regular army, air forces.

Vets Must Report Outside Earnings

All veterans attending the University under the GI Bill are reminded to report their August, September, and October earnings to the veterans administration by November 5, Earl E. Boushey, acting chief, University Guidance center announced yesterday.

Failure to report by the deadline will result in stoppage of subsistence checks until the necessary information has been received, Boushey said.

Forms are not yet available at the Guidance center for making this report but Boushey announced that further instructions will be published when forms are received at his office.

Recent legislation passed by the last session of Congress places a ceiling of $200 per month on combined earnings and subsistence for veterans with dependents and $175 for veterans without dependents. These ceilings include board, room, and laundry, when furnished in connection with employment.

Kwama Initiates

Kwama, sophomore girls' honorary, will hold their meetings every other Tuesday evening at 7:30. Newly initiated into the organization was Renee Cowell who was not at the University spring term for her formal initiation.