

Vet Aid Center Has Information

Veterans with problems dealing with educational benefits should apply for help in room 114 of the PE building, the Veteran's Aid service announced yesterday.

Many veterans, according to the center, are writing directly to the Portland office which simply refers such correspondence to the guidance center on campus.

The agency also announced that veterans, 21 years of age, may register at the Lane County courthouse before 8 p.m. Saturday, October 5.

Petitions Open By ISA President

Howard Lemons, president of the Independent Students' association, announced Thursday that petitions for positions on the freshman guidance committee, will be heard by him next week. His findings and recommendations will be passed on to the ISA executive committee.

Lemons urged that all freshmen, who feel qualified to be of help on this guidance committee, see either the dean of men or women, get permission to file a petition and come up to the ISA offices in McArthur court, where they can fill these papers out. He stated that persons who are interested should apply between the hours of 1 and 4 p.m., from Monday through Thursday.

Freshmen will have to be cleared by the deans' offices, before they can petition. The general qualifications are, a GPA of 2.00 for second term freshmen and the deans' okay for first termers.

Speech Course to Aid Defective Speakers

Individual conferences will be given by Dr. K. S. Wood, associate professor of speech and dramatic arts, for all students interested in overcoming particular speech defects.

Exercises will follow a psychological program for individual differences. Students hard of hearing, with foreign accents, or lisps will be considered.

California Prof. To Lecture Here

Dr. Ralph W. Chaney, professor of paleontology at the University of California, will give two campus lectures on the ancient forests of Oregon on November 19 and 21. According to Dr. L. S. Cressman, head of the department of anthropology, this is the first talk on the Oregon state board of higher education's Condon lectureship this year.

The first lecture by the noted paleontologist will be on "Oregon Forests—Two Hundred Years in Retrospect," and the second will take up the subject of "Oregon—Crossroads of Forest Migration." Dr. Chaney plans to use colored slides to illustrate his talk.

"Dr. Chaney has done considerable research in Central and North America, Asia, Alaska and Oregon," Dr. Cressman, head of the lectureship committee for the state board, said.

First of the series of lectures by Dr. Chaney will be in Corvallis, November 5 and 7, and in Portland on November 12 and 14.
