Bonfire Fodder Sought

All living organizations or private homes having a large quantity of waste paper or other inflammable material that can be used for the Homecoming bonfire are asked to contact George Alexander at the Beta house, and his committee will pick it up. Accumulation of material at the site of the fire will begin next Saturday.

Evening Courses Offered To Vets

Veterans now pursuing a course of education under the GI bill may take additional courses in night classes offered by the Eugene branch of the Oregon general extension division.

To enroll in fall term classes, which began September 30 and will run through December 13, the veteran should secure authorization by sending a letter of application to the Veterans' Administration office on the campus, giving the name of the institution (General Extension Division: state-wide classes), title of the course desired, and a statement that the course is a required part of the student's objective and is not offered at the institution which he is attending.

This letter must be signed by the veteran and a responsible official of the institution he is attending at the present time.

After the veteran has been authorized by the veterans administration and enrolled in the night school, he may purchase books and other supplies required under the provisions of the GI bill.

Veterans receiving on-the-job training and those not enrolled in other schools under the GI bill may also enroll for the night courses after making proper applications through the Eugene extension office.

Dormitory Plans Newest in Design

The plans drawn up for the new "Webfoot women's" dormitory on 14th, between Emerald and Birch, have incorporated the newest in dormitory design, for this campus.

The blueprints include a cafeteria for breakfast use only, with a separate dining room in each wing to be used for the other two meals. The addition of the cafeteria is to encourage more girls to eat breakfast.

Plans include a large living room with a fireplace, a music room for informal gatherings, a library and several small parlors on the main floor. Five or six single rooms will be built on the main floor also, for those who desire single accommodations.

University Players Offer Prizes, Bargains In Promotion Of Season Theater Tickets

Six for Price of Five, Latest Feature Promised Drama Lovers by Thespians

Six shows for the price of five! So goes the slogan for the sale of season tickets, the latest feature on the agenda of the University drama department. Heading the sales campaign is Alan Miller, publicity chairman of the Theater Guild.

A "night" at the University Theater is promised the first campus living organization to make a 75 percent sale of the tickets among its house members. This privilege will entitle each ticket-holder to bring a guest and have choice seats for that one production. A prize will be given the living organization making the greatest percentage of sales.

Amazon Flat Housing May Open Christmas

Officials, Tenants Worried by Drainage; 250 Veteran Families Await Move

Housing for 250 veterans and their families is scheduled to open about Christmas this year on the Amazon flats, between twenty-first and twenty-fourth streets west of Patterson.

The dwellings are all surplus houses, obtained from Bagley-Downs of Vancouver, Washington. Some will be one-floor buildings with four apartments, and others will have two floors, with eight apartments.

University officials and city street department men are concerned about the flood danger however, for in the rainy season the Amazon is the first place to flood. Dr. Will V. Norris, University supervising engineer, said U. S. Engineers had been consulted regarding proposed Amazon flood control plans, but is almost certain that nothing will be done this year to alleviate the condition.

Orators Plan Speech Fest

Details of the forthcoming speech contests in intercollegiate competition in oratory, after dinner speaking, and extemporaneous speaking will be discussed at an informal meeting on Wednesday, October 9, in room 107 Friendly, at 4:00, under the direction of Mr. Montgomery of the speech department.

Any student interested in speech work, whether he has had experience or not, is invited to attend. Those who are interested, but cannot attend the meeting on Wednesday, are urged to see Mr. Montgomery in his office at 107 Friendly sometime during the week.

The University of Oregon is a member of the Intercollegiate Forensic association which also includes Oregon State College, Pacific university, Pacific college, Willamette university, University of Portland and Lewis and Clark college. Each year the I.F.A.O. sponsors the extemporaneous speaking contest with cash prizes awarded for winners.

Columbia Project Topic of Debate

The Lane county "Town Meeting of the Air," will open tonight at 8:15, in the Community center, with a discussion on the proposed Columbia Valley Authority. Louis Wood, professor of economy at Oregon and Paul Kell, former Bonneville attorney, will speak for CVA, with Harris Ellsworth, congressional representative in Washington, and William Tugman, editor of the Register-Guard speaking against it.

Dr. Wood, who is also the democratic candidate for congress from this district, has followed the Bonneville project with interest and wants a larger project developed for the good of the entire state. Congressman Ellsworth believes private enterprise can do a better job and stands against any such development.

Tonight's program will be the fourth in a series of radio broadcasts sponsored by the Eugene chapter of the American Veterans committee and station KUGN. Each broadcast is chosen by the sponsors, on its public interest merit.

Alpha Delta Sigma Men To Meet Pledges at Side

About 15 men eligible to become pledges of Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity, will meet at the Side at 4 p.m. today, according to Douglas Eden, president.

Former members of the fraternity on the campus who have not yet been contacted by the group are urged to attend today's meeting.

Hostesses Meet Fate Wednesday

Candidates for the Homecoming Hostess contest are scheduled to appear before the judges Wednesday night at 8 p.m. in the Alumni hall at Gerlinger, according to Sue Schoenfeldt, contest chairman. Contestants should wear heels and short silks.

Judges are: Les Anderson, alumni secretary; Tom Kay, ASUO president; Benny DiBenedetto, Homecoming chairman; Dick Williams, educational activities manager; and Sue Schoenfeldt.

A candidate omitted in the original list is Katie Dobson, Orides.

Rally Squad Wants Help

According to an announcement by Tom Hazzard, campus yell king, any student interested in working with the behind the scenes forces on the rally squad, should meet at McArthur court at 3 p.m. today.

Oregon Grad Gets ROTC Staff Duty

Just returned from army service in Europe, Captain E. E. Stickels, newly assigned to campus ROTC headquarters, has been named adjutant by Col. J. E. McCannon, head of the department, of military science.

Captain Stickels, a University graduate of 1938, will also instruct freshman classes in the department.

His ROTC training in Eugene earned Stickels a pre-war commission in the regular army infantry.
