

Committee Votes Graduate School

PORTLAND, Oct. 21—(AP)—A committee of the state board of higher education voted today to establish separate graduate schools at the University of Oregon and Oregon State College.

The committee also recommended that many cross-campus directorships, now with few functions, be abolished.

Both recommendations will go before the board tomorrow.

Under the plan the general research council would be eliminated, and its funds transferred to the graduate schools. At present there is a single graduate division.

The plan envisions a graduate dean on each campus. Names suggested included Dr. Willibald Weniger, vice-dean of the graduate division, for Oregon State, and Dr. Howard Taylor, head of the University psychology department, for the University. Dr. Taylor said his appointment would be temporary.

Dr. Olaf Larsell, who was graduate division dean until his recent resignation, would remain as chairman of the graduate council at the medical school, where he is head of the anatomy department.

The cross-campus directorships were set up originally to report directly to the state chancellor. When each institution gained a president, their functions largely ceased to exist.

Of 26 of these, 8 will be retained at least for a while. They are controller, director of information, director of libraries, dean and director of general extension, director of elementary teacher training, dean of education and director of high school teacher training, dean and director of architecture and allied arts, and dean and director of creative writing and publishing.

Those inter-campus positions that would be abolished are: dean and director of medicine and director of health services, dean and director of pharmacy, dean and director of forestry, dean of the college of liberal arts and director of arts and letters and social science, dean of the school of science and director of science, dean and director of engineering and industrial arts, dean and director of law dean and director of music, dean and director of physical education, dean and director of home economics, dean and director of business administration, dean and director of agriculture, dean and director of lower division, dean and director of journalism, director of dormitories, and dean and director of the dental school.

Traffic Barricades In Operation Today

Blockades on Thirteenth go up today. Manned temporarily by the campus crew of the physical plant, barriers will be thrown across Thirteenth at University and Thirteenth at Kincaid during each ten-minute class change.

Culminating a drive by the Emerald, University officials and the city of Eugene to alleviate the dangerous traffic menace on the campus this year, the first blockades will halt traffic at 7:50 this morning.

Granted recently by the Eugene city council, the plan will be under the supervision of the University. The blockades will be used during each ten-minute change from 7:45 a. m. until 5 p. m., Mondays through Fridays, and from 7:45 until 12 noon Saturdays.

The barriers, according to D. L. Lewis, superintendent of the physical plant, will be placed, along with suitable signs, half way across Thirteenth at each of the corners. This will allow vehicles already in the prohibited area when barriers go up, a chance to get out, but will not allow entrance to outside vehicles.

YMCA Official Will Speak At Alumni Hall

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of articles acquainting students with outstanding men who will speak at different groups and living organizations during Religious Emphasis week.)

Mr. William H. Genne, national student secretary of YMCA, serving the Pacific Northwest student YWCA and YMCA regional council, will speak during the 3 p. m. sceptics hour Tuesday, October 29, at Alumni hall, in Gerlinger.

Mr. Genne has attended many camps, conferences and committees, during his youth work, among those being the Christian Youths' Councils of North America, at Lake Geneva in 1934 where he was acting chairman. In 1932 he attended the World's Christian Youth Council in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. He was also present at the World's Christian Youths' conference in Amsterdam, Holland in 1939.

His professional experience includes director of men's work (representing the Baptist, Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian denominations) and secretary of the YMCA, Michigan state college. From 1940 to 1944 he held the position of chaplain, at the Alfred university, Alfred, New York.

Student Committee Plans Religious Emphasis Week

National University Christian Mission Group To Back Similar Week on 17 College Campuses

An enthusiastic, all-out student committee is sponsoring the University of Oregon Religious Emphasis week from October 27 to November 1, backed by the National University Christian Mission Committee.

The purpose of this week is to present in terms intelligible to college men and women, the relevance of religious faith, both to personal life and to the great social issues of this age.

The University of Oregon is one of the 17 colleges and universities throughout America to sponsor Religious Emphasis week this fall. All local arrangements have been made by a student committee assisted by faculty members consisting of Martha Thorsland, student chairman; Mr. Carl C. Webb, faculty chairman; Bjorg Hansen, union meeting; Beverly Pitman, forums and classroom appointments.

Hazzard Heads Dinners

Tom Hazzard, living organizations dinners and firesides; Don McNeal, publicity; Dorothy Rasmussen, programs and room arrangements; Bill Barnum and Joan Williams, hospitality and pages; Barbara Johns, arrangements; Ellen Sutherland, book exhibit; Margery Skordahl, personal conference; and Dr. Wesley Ballaine, faculty participation.

These committee chairmen have called upon the following honoraries to help with the details of the week: Kwama, women's sophomore service honorary; Skull and Dagger, men's sophomore service honorary; Phi Theta Upsilon, women's junior service honorary; Druids, men's junior service honorary; and Alpha Delta Sigma, Gamma Alpha Chi, national advertising honoraries, and Sigma Delta Chi, men's national professional journalistic fraternity.

Newburn, Pallett Meet With Board

President Harry K. Newburn left the campus Sunday to attend the meeting of the state board of higher education in Portland today. He was accompanied by E. M. Pallett, assistant to the president.

Dr. Newburn will also speak at a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club this noon, and will complete a busy day by conferring degrees at the dental school commencement tonight.

Wednesday afternoon the president will attend the freshman mother's tea sponsored by the Portland Mothers of freshman students. He will return to the campus Thursday morning.

MR. W. H. GENNE . . . National student secretary of Y. M. C. A., who will speak Tuesday (See story column 5 also.)

Senior Students Tapped By Friars

Tapping of students for Friars, senior men's honorary society, was conducted during intermission of the Homecoming dance Saturday night. Those selected were Benny DiBenedetto, chairman of the Homecoming committee; Harry Glickman, editor of Old Oregon; Bob Reynolds, Oregon halfback and secretary treasurer of the Order of the "O"; and Roy Paul Nelson, editor of the Oregana.

Druids, junior men's honorary, did not tap new members during Homecoming week as was previously announced, according to Marty Pond, Druid secretary. Tapping of students for Druids will not be conducted until the Whiskerino contest gets under way in November, Pond stated.

Sigma hall, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Theta Chi have been announced as receiving honorable mention in the sign contest, according to Don Dole, co-chairman of the contest.

Friars tap new pledges twice a year. First tapping is at Junior Weekend, gala celebration spring term.

Pygmalion Players Agree That Dialogue Sparkles

Bill Wood, Don Moss Tell Stage Background; New York Heaven for Visiting Drama Majors

By JOAN LOCHEAD

"Pygmalion" is sparkling with witty dialogue, agree Bill Wood and Don Moss, male leads in the George Bernard Shaw play, to be presented by the Guild Hall players Friday, Oct. 25.

Wood is a junior in drama and comes from Portland. His blond hair accents his blue eyes, his 5 feet 8 inch height, and his outstanding personality. During the summer he spent his vacation in New York, which to a drama major is heaven and even more so when you are able to see your favorite plays on the stage. This was not Wood's first visit to New York. During his three years in the navy he spent 16 months in the metropolis of stage wonders.

Asking Wood more about his summer he leaned forward to explain with pride that he had been offered the job of casting director with Richard Aldrich and Gertrude Lawrence while working in Dennis, Massachusetts, in the summer players group but, thinking longingly of Oregon, he decided to return and continue his studies. Wood has high hopes for a reoffer of this job for next summer.

He has been active on the campus in different drama groups. Recent plays he has been in are "My Sister Eileen" and "Arsenic and Old Lace." His show work goes back to his navy career when he did show work with the Red Cross. He is hoping for more plays in the future.

Don Moss, senior in psychology, will graduate in March. He is happiest, he confides, when he is slapping on grease paint or mixing a ginger bread cake. (Eds. note: This is not for publication.) Moss took time out this summer to mingle with stage people in Greenwich Village and see his favorite stage plays, one of which was "Annie Get Your Gun." On his return trip he visited the drama department of Northwestern and the University of Michigan.

During four years of army life Ex.-Sgt. Moss saw much of Europe and in spite of the war managed to keep fairly close to the stage through the Army special services.

After graduation from Oregon Moss is planning on taking a job with the state department and return to Europe in the spring. "Pygmalion" is full of George Bernard Shaw's own ideals and expressive thoughts and I know we will both enjoy our parts," Moss said.

Quiz Forum Planned

An open forum on questions presented at previous meetings will be held at the Newman club meeting at the YMCA tonight. Father Albert Rodakowski will preside at the discussion.

BILL WOOD . . . Mr. Doolittle of Pygmalion.
