

Huskies Ragged in Tapering-off Drill; Duck Gridders Due Today

SEATTLE, Nov. 14—(AP)—There's an old stage saying that a ragged last rehearsal means a hangup opening night. If it applies to football, Coach Ralph "Pest" Welch of the University of Washington will be grateful.

Welch put his charges through a tapering off drill today, but he was still mumbling to himself over the shoddy, fumble-filled showing of his Huskies last night in a two-hour rock-and-sock session—as they prepared for their game with the University of Oregon Webfoots here Saturday.

If any of the gamblers had witnessed the closely guarded display they might have shied back somewhat from the current odds which favor Washington at 12½ points. This margin seemed a little wide, considering the traditional aspects of the game.

Huskies Lead Series

Washington has won 19, Oregon 15 and four were ties in the series which dates back to the mustache and turtleneck sweater days of 1900, and several times in the series the underdog was the winner.

The Oregon squad, playing its last season under Gerald "Tex" Oliver, who resigned some weeks ago, was expected here tomorrow morning. Against the mighty UCLA Bruins last week, the Webfoots showed a strong line with

37 Gridders Entrain

Coach Tex Oliver and the 37-man University of Oregon Webfoot grid team left Eugene last night at 5:55 p. m. Listed as travelers by Coach Tex Oliver were the following:

Ends—Pete Torchia, Dan Garza, Dick Brown, Darrell Robinson, Hymie Harris, Wayne Bartholomy, Art Milne, and George Dugan; Tackles—Chuck Elliott, Howard Frary, Cliff Giffin, Don Stanton, Pete Miller and Curt Deskins; guards—Ted Meland, John Kauffman, Don Ruecker, Bill Murphy, Jim Berwick, Tony Novacic, and Harry Edwards; centers—Brad Ecklund, Lou Busch, and Clark Stokes; backs—Duke Iversen, Bill Abbey, Don Shaffer, Jake Leicht, Bobby Reynolds, Jim Newquist, Sam Ramey, George Bell, Walt Donovan, Roy Erickson, Bob Koch, Bob Sanders, and Bob Oas.

strength evenly distributed, and speedy backs who were handicapped by the gooey going.

Halfback Jake Leicht, the Northern Division's championship sprinter, is back in trim after missing a few early games because of a game leg. A player the Huskies are even more apprehensive about is 180-pound halfback Bobby Reynolds, who raised so much mischief here last year, and who threw a big scare into the Uclans in the dying minute of last week's 14-0 loss by Oregon in Portland. Then there's hard-running Jimmy Newquist of Camas, Wash., who is also quite a kicker. Eugene reports Newquist favoring a bruised leg, however.

Unsung Hero

And not to be overlooked is Duke Iversen, the unsung blocking quarterback, who never packs the mail, but who always gives the mailman a helping shoulder.

Washington is still thin at fullback. First, Arnie Weinmeister of Portland got a knee cracked in the UCLA game and now he'll be out for the rest of the season. He's scheduled for an operation to remove a cartilage during the Christmas vacation.

Then Sam Robinson hurt an ankle against Stanford and has missed practice a week. Trainer

Click Clark says it's "doubtful" Sam will play.

That leaves it up to Dick Ottele, who also can play at half or quarter; Freshman Marshall Dallas, who delivered such a fine performance against Washington State; and Herb Harlowe, of Spokane, light at 175 pounds, but the fastest man on the squad.

It probably will be Freddie Provo and Gordie Hungar at the halves and Alf Hemstad at quarter. The line will be the same that opened against Stanford last week.

Casaba Squad Reduced to 18

Basketball Coach Howard Hobson continued his process of elimination Wednesday when he cut the combined varsity and junior varsity to an 18-man squad. The remainder of the squad was turned over to Ted Schopf who will eventually handle the Jayvees as well as the freshmen. Hobson is expected to make another cut before the regular varsity is named.

The present squad working under Hobby includes 11 lettermen, one former squad man, and six freshmen. Lettermen include Sam Crowell, Al Popick, Dick Wilkins, Marv Rasmussen, Ed Dick, Ken Hays, Roy Seeborg, Bob Wren, Reedy Berg, Roger Wiley, and Stan Williamson.

Walt Kirsch is the only holdover reserve and freshmen still on the top 18 are Dan Ducich, Bob Amacher, Bob Don, Bob Sowers, Bob Lavey, and Lynn Hamilton.

No Definite Squads

Since the start of the season October 21, Hobson has worked the squad on offensive and defensive drill with daily scrimmages. There have been no definite squads named, and virtually every combination has been used.

The lettermen are making the strongest bids for starting nods, but some of the freshmen are showing exceptionally well in practice. Stan Williamson has shown well at the driving guard position, but freshman Bob Lavey and holdover reserve Walt Kirsch are also looking good. Lettermen Sam Crowell and Al Popick cannot be overlooked, however.

Wiley Recovering

Six-foot nine-inch Roger Wiley appears to have the center position intact, and he is expected to lead the field when he recovers from a pulled leg muscle that has kept him out of scrimmage this week.

All positions are still wide open, though, and it will be difficult to name a static varsity squad until the pre-season games are well underway.

The season opens November 27 against Bobby Anet's "Firs" that are loaded with such stars as Archie Marshik, Ted Sarpola, and Ed Dowdy. Anet has said that Dowdy is one of the finest players he has ever seen on a basketball court.

Don't miss the Oregon-Oregon State Jayvee game on Hayward field at 2:00 p.m. Saturday. The Ducklings will be all out for revenge and the battle of the year is guaranteed.

Jayvees to Use 15 Varsity Men Against OSC Babes Tomorrow

Ray Segale, assistant Jayvee coach, paced the Ducklings through a light dummy and signal workout Thursday in preparation for the last game of the season against the Oregon State Jayvees Saturday on Hayward field.

The Ducklings received 15 varsity players Wednesday and Segale had them working as a separate squad, giving some indication that they may be used in that fashion Saturday.

Among the 15 players received were Ken Maine, fullback; Bill Behrens, and Norm Van Brocklin, halfback; and Bob Warren and Chuck Johnson, quarterbacks.

Maine a Plunger

Maine operating from fullback, is well known around Hayward field for his line plunging ability. Van Brocklin and Behrens are both fine passers as well as good broken field runners.

The Jayvees, with the newly added talent, plus a trio of their own fine backs—Paul Pierson, Bob Wilson and Bill Hutchinson can now boast of a backfield that has plenty of power and deception, and Warren can be counted upon to utilize this asset to the fullest.

Among the linemen received were Bill Huskey and Larry Stoven, ends; Bob Roberts, Pug Mayer, and Rodinriek, tackles; Jack Schneiderman, Dick Belguns and Steve Mezera, guards; and Jack Bunnett and Rudy Sherych, centers.

JV Line OK

With the exception of Chuck Corbett and Walt Van Orden, the Jayvee line is without injuries and ready to go on the opening kickoff.

According to the latest OSC releases, the Little Beavers are set to go in all respects. Dick Vaillancour, Don Ditz and Tag McFadden, all regular backfield men, had not been working out for the past week due to injuries but all three will make the trip to Eugene and are slated to start.

The passing combination of Ditz to Vaillancour can be counted upon to give the Ducklings no end of trouble. Ditz is probably one of the best passers to be seen in action Saturday.

The Ducklings have not forgotten the 48-6 beating they took at the hands of the Orange Jayvees and are conducting their practices accordingly.

Before the October 18 game, Oregon had one week to develop an offense. By game time their ball handling was ragged and their players were none the better. For the second encounter the Jayvees have had two weeks of practice, and have developed an offense geared for the OSC game.

Oregon State Jayvee coach, Al Cox, plans on bringing his entire squad along, which numbers somewhere in the vicinity of 98.
