

Class Movies Now Available

The new audio-visual department of the University library, under the direction of Mr. Don L. Hunter, has issued a list of the materials now available for classroom and research purposes. The list includes the method by which these aids are purchased and the rental procedure.

Available for immediate use are sound and silent motion picture projectors, slide, filmstrip, and opaque projectors, screens, microfilm readers, a public address system, and a motion picture camera. The use of a disc recorder can be arranged. Additional equipment on requisition but not yet available includes a portable electric record and transcription player and a tape sound recorder.

Library Started

A library of films, recordings, etc., is now being started with a view toward collecting and preserving audio-visual documents of permanent instructional and research value. The acquisition, cataloging, and use of audio-visual aids will be integrated in every possible way with book and pamphlet materials. In addition advisory service on the selection and use of audio-visual materials will be available to the faculty and students so that the full educational potentialities of these materials can be realized.

The audio-visual library will be cataloged and cards will be filed in both the general library catalog and a special catalog in the audio-visual department. New acquisitions will be reported in the library's monthly new book list. Special lists or bibliographies will be compiled from time to time for distribution to the faculty. Published catalogs and bibliographies of audio-visual materials from sources throughout the United States will be collected and made available for reference use in the department.

Films Available

Upon request, the audio-visual department will secure on a rental basis any available films or other materials for instructional purposes and will pay all ordinary rental and express charges with library funds. All requisitions for films, slides, recordings, projectors, and other audio-visual materials and equipment will be placed directly with the library and will be charged to the library budget.

Microfilms will continue to be charged to the regular book funds. Requisitions for the raw materials for making slides, recordings, etc., will be placed on the regular purchase requisition form, sent to the business office and charged directly to the departments making the requests.

Storage Maintained

As far as departmental needs permit, all films and recordings acquired by the university will be stored in and loaned by the audio-visual department, where proper storage conditions can be maintained. Collections will be continued or established in the departments and professional schools as required. For the present, at least, the major slide collections will continue to be developed in their present locations. All materials, regardless of location, will be cataloged in the main library.

Viewing and listening facilities for individual use will be provided in the audio-visual department to the extent permitted by the available space and equipment. The department has at present three listening booths and space for the viewing of films, film strips, and slides by small groups of people. Plans for individual student use of these facilities in connection with class assignments may be discussed with Mr. Hunter in advance of the assignments.

Operators Needed

Projectors, record players, and other equipment loaned for classroom use may be operated by faculty members or students who have been trained or whose qualifications have been approved by Mr. Hunter. In view of the increasing use of audio-visual aids in instruction, it would be especially advantageous for graduate assistants to become familiar with the instructional aids in their respective fields and to master the operation of sound film projectors. Mr. Hunter will be glad to instruct interested persons in the operation of projection equipment.

In event there is no qualified operator in a department which wishes service, the audio-visual department will supply a trained operator at the rate of $1.00 per hour. Operator service should be requested on a standard interdepartmental requisition to the audio-visual department.

Note to Army G-1: Try an Abacus, Son

Friday was nose-counting day at the ROTC building. The army, you see, has somehow lost track of its men. Or it has lost faith in its figures.

The chief cause for the confusion has been the army practice of assigning men to one organization or station while attaching them to some other outfit for duty. So the war department ordered an army-wide census.

M-Sgt. E. A. Anderson, sergeant major of the University military science department, reported to the ROTC's Sixth Army bosses that 10 officers and 9 enlisted men are actually physically present here. This count includes the three regular officers enrolled at Oregon.

There, Ike, will that satisfy you?

It is estimated that college enrollments may reach 2,000,000 by 1950.

Student Supper Sunday

The Wesley House sponsored student supper will begin at 5:30, followed by a community sing at 6:30 for all students. At 7 Dave Seamen, Wesley House sponsor, will lead a group discussion on "The Students Place in World Affairs."
