

Coeds Picture Typical Joe; Joe Not Sure About Betty

The six women finalists for the Betty Co-ed, Joe College contest, sponsored by the sophomore class as part of their annual Whiskerino, generally agree on the qualifications for the typical Joe College. They want him to be an all-around good boy, interested in scholarship, campus activities, athletics, and one who attempts to get the most out of his college career.

Men finalists, on the other hand, had a little more difficulty defining their typical college miss. They definitely do not select the 100 per cent activity girl as typical, but would rather have a good-looking girl with a sparkling personality and good character for their ideal co-ed.

One of the smallest of the finalists, Bev Deichler, wants Joe College to have a sense of humor, to be fairly tall, and a good dancer. Bev is only five-feet, four-inches herself, but she prefers tall men. Bev also has dark, natural curly hair, is 19 years old, and a native of San Francisco.

On the Other Hand

In contrast to Bev is finalist Hazel Roake, five-feet, six-inches, and a "blondish-brownette" from Oregon City. Hazel's personal choice for Joe College would be a blonde, but she quickly added "he wouldn't have to be."

Another dark-haired finalist is Sue Mercer. She has been busy working on radio publicity for the Whiskerino, and she thinks the dance "should be a success and draw a big crowd." A typical Joe College, according to Sue, would be well-liked, interested in campus activities, and a good student.

Carolyn Wright has lived in Eugene all her nineteen years. Carolyn's major is English, but she is for taking background in a career of personnel work or buying. Carolyn thinks of the typical college boy as being intelligent, well-groomed, and friendly.

Choice Unexpected

Fifth finalist is Jeanne Herndon, five-feet, six-inch blond. Jeanne is majoring in psychology, but she definitely doesn't want to be a feminine psychiatrist. Social work interests her at the moment. Jean said her selection as one of the six women finalists was "unexpected," but she was very thrilled.

Sixth of the feminine contingent is Sis Scott, nineteen-year-old brownette. Sis's home is currently in Corvallis, but as the daughter of an army officer, she has lived in several cities in the United States, and also in Hawaii.

Sis is kept quite busy at the moment with the activities of the Webfooters, planning organization for rally squad activities. She is president of the group.

A six-foot, blond, Joe College finalist is John Joachins. John is not particular about the typical Betty Co-ed, as long as she is an "all around good girl." He served two and a half years overseas in an armored division.

Plenty of Variety

The presidency of Skull and Dagger occupies most of the time of Bill Barnum, another finalist. Bill also worked on the Religious Emphasis week committee and has served on several dance committees. The tallest of the lot, six-feet-four, Bill is from Medford, Oregon.

Eldon Foster, third finalist, served in the submarine command for four years, and saw action in the South Pacific and in Japanese waters. He is five-feet six-inches tall and has curly brown hair.

Cross Section Joe

Bob Wallace is a journalism major from Sacramento, California. He is a member of professional journalism fraternity, Sigma Delta Chi. He served in the navy air corps during the war.

Bill Stroud is another finalist who thinks Betty Co-ed should be a good all-around girl. Bill was on the campus in 1943 for one term, then he joined the navy and attended Willamette university under the V-12 program. Bob is six-feet-two and comes from Portland, Oregon.

thinks sh should be not too re-typical college girl, Bruce Hoffine thinks she should be not to reserved, and should be active on the campus. Bruce said he has been "trying to grow a beard" but he felt the cause was hopeless. Bruce is a physical education major, and has blond hair.

Seattle Rally Planned

Tom Hazzard, Oregon's yell king, cordially invites all rally fans to the Duck get-together at Meany hall, on the University of Washington. He expects to see a large delegation of Webfooters there to see the U. of W. get their socks knocked off, and especially wants the group out to yell.

Outing Club Plans Butte Hike Today

Providing good weather holds, the Outing club will hike to Spencer's butte today. Members will meet at the corner of Thirteenth and University at 12:45 and take a bus part way.

As outlined by Lou Ann Morrison, president of the club, hikers should bring their own sack lunch, provide their own drinking water, bus fare and 20c for hot dogs. Hikers are reminded to wear comfortable clothes and shoes.

If it rains today the group will hike to Skinner's butte instead, meeting at Thirteenth and University at 12:45. Hikers will also take sack lunches and the other articles listed if the Skinner's butte hike is taken.

Dr. Cahill to Lecture On Military Government

Political science majors and students in related courses will meet Tuesday, 8 p.m., at the YMCA to form a group to discuss political science problems.

Dr. F. V. Cahill of the political science department will talk informally on military government in Japan and Korea, using his own experiences in the Pacific theater to supplement his discussion.
