

Annual Music Fete Given in Portland

The annual concert of Phi Beta, national music and speech honorary, was held in the Portland art museum on November 10.

Four representatives from the University chapter of the honorary were featured in the concert. They were: Mary Margaret Lucas, coloratura soprano; Sylvia Killman, piano soloist; Lucille Olson, mezzo-soprano; and Patricia Metcalf Chase, pianist.

Portland artists on the program were Phyllis Havilla Falkoff, violin soloist and member of the Portland chapter, and her accompanist, Geraldine Fleagle, graduate of the University.

Twenty-one girls have recently been pledged to the University chapter of Phi Beta. They are: Irene Bryant, Nancy Peterson, Mary Staddleman, Mary Nash, Nadine Hutchison, Velma Snellstrom, Pat King, Joyce Gordon, Treva Rice, Jane Royle, Irene Burgess, Nancy Gleason, Shirley Peters, Sally Waller, Marjorie Reeves, Shirley Phelps, Pat Maddison, Joan Abbott, and Adele Hart.

Veterans Will Discuss Conscription at Meeting

The campus chapter of the American Veterans Committee will meet tonight at 7:30 in room 107 Commerce building, and will have two five minute talks on the subject, "Should we have compulsory military conscription now?"

Victor C. Hays, journalism major and veteran of over eight years service, will speak for the issue, with Bruce A. Bishop, also a journalism major, speaking against it. Representatives to the next meeting of the AVC Oregon state council in Medford, December 7, will be elected at tonight's meeting, in addition to committee reports being heard.

The termites really have a field day in Corn Valley's kindling pile they call a stadium. After making a few hurried trips under the stands, they should have called Cluny Brown. Also added insult to injury the fifteen pence for alleged peanuts and twenty beans for dinky hotdaws. They made their hay without benefit of sun. The dance afterwards was spread out all over the area... but it was evident that the Spee's had never had it so good. The rally gals pooped out miserably when it started to get wet out. You've gotta pay some small price for wearing those hot shot sweaters... rain, sleet, snow or beeyootiful mum weather. SAE Rod Johnson made the world population count read 2,000,000,001 when a big fat dotter was presented to him yesterday. The mother is the former Alpha Chi from OAC Betty Crain. More social poop from the group: The left side of Bobbie Fullmer's sweater droops a good two meters as a result of the cute AOPi's taking Jim Kroder's Chi Psi badge. Brother Kroder presented her with the King size model, resulting in a gross overload. If she falls down she won't be able to get up! Don Kay of the Spee clan has his pin hung on a DZ from Washington. The Universitas Oreganis grid machine was out en masse at the park Sattiday, and other luminaries included the big Indian from Celilo, Brad Francher and Gammfi Natalie Brown, and the hardy perennial Kermit Smythe and cute Phyl Holdman who also answers the phone 772. Young Geo. Bell has nothing left but a hole in his sweater when he planted his Kappa Sig pin on Jean Merrifield Alphafee. He had been going out with pom-pom waver Marge Reardon, threedelt. The Tau house heaved Raysey Fendall in the tub when it was authoritatively learned that he hung his cross on Pi Phi Joanne Bush. The Kincaid street clan are ringing the bell all over the campus. The University authorities are again breathing easier after the Melchior concert on Sunday, because they were able to seat everyone that showed. It will be interesting to see how the seating arrangements will be handled on the Marian Anderson concert. The Chi Psi stove is probably the most marvelous one of its kind on the campus. The oven is undoubtedly unique, and Friday nite's tasty dishes were superb. The Phi Psi-Chi Psi "Beer Bowl" game Sunday was a corker. The Blue and Gold of Phi Psi came through to a 24-0 win in the annual classic. Don't forget to take it easy on Toikey day.
