McClure Sees Teacher Need

The need for more and better prepared teachers in American education fields was emphasized by Dr. Worth McClure, executive secretary of the American Association of School Administrators, speaking before the Wednesday morning session of the convention of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools at the University.

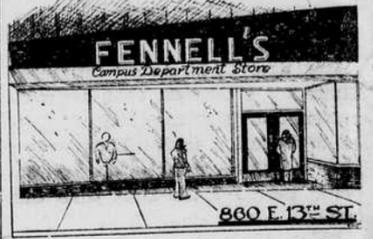

According to Dr. McClure, problems of teacher education and certification have reached the acute stage. Since 1939, he said, more than 350,000 teachers have left the schools for other professions. A survey taken the fall term of 1945 disclosed that only 13,000 men were enrolled in teachers' colleges, a number far below the demand expected. Furthermore, Dr. McClure pointed out, many of these men may never enter the teaching profession.

The predominant factor responsible for this situation is the low salaries currently paid teachers, asserted Dr. McClure. He told the group that California's action in voting a $2400 minimum salary for teachers was being followed by similar plans in other states. This move, he feels, will greatly aid teacher recruitment.
