

Cage Techniques On Film Schedule

Outstanding basketball coaches will explain their techniques and a picked team will demonstrate them in the showing of "Fundamentals of Basketball" at 207 Chapman at 7:30 tonight. Educational Activities Manager Dick Williams said Monday.

First in the winter term series of movies sponsored by the Educational Activities board, the movie includes seven reels, each devoted to one "sport great."

The coaches and their present positions are: Dave McMillan, University of Minnesota; "Fog" Allen, University of Kansas; Clair Bee, Long Island; Dr. H. C. Carlson, University of Pittsburgh; George Keogan, Notre Dame; John Bunn, Stanford; and "Chuck" Taylor, coach clinic conductor.

W. V. Dixon to Lecture

W. J. Dixon, associate professor of mathematics at the University, will lecture January 13 before the campus chapter of Sigma Xi, national science fraternity, on "You Can Prove Anything by Statistics." The address will be given at 8 p.m. in room 103, Deady hall and is open to the public.

Names of Late Pledges Requested by Oregana

Names of students pledging organizations after pictures for the Oregana were taken at Kennell-Elis should be turned into the Oregana office Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoon after 2 p.m. Warren Miller, associate editor in charge of living organizations, announced Monday.

Pledges must have had their pictures taken fall term while a member of some other organization as no new pictures will be taken this term. Failure to notify the Oregana office of late pledge pictures will mean that individual pictures will be credited to fall term house membership, Miller stressed.

Honorary members pledged after regular Oregana photos were taken may have their pictures included with the honorary by notifying the Oregana office Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday afternoon after 2 p.m. A payment of 10 cents per picture is requested to cover costs of extra prints.

Rocket Puzzle Fizzles

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 7—(AP)—Portland's "rocket missile" mystery fizzled out Tuesday when a spectroscopist said the rocket and chunks of plaster taken from a hole in a decorative artillery shell casing matched.

A three-inch cement-like ice-encrusted cylinder was found on the Hill Military academy campus Saturday by Capt. Leon G. Thompson. The commandant of cadets said it fell in a shower of egg-sized bits of ice over a 15-foot area, from a clear sky.

Reds Want Radio Back

SHANGHAI, Tuesday, Jan. 7—(AP)—Soviet representatives appealed to the Chinese government Wednesday to permit reopening of the Shanghai, Soviet radio station XRVN, which the government closed and sealed Monday under a regulation forbidding operation of foreign transmitters in China.

The appeal was based on a general guarantee of freedom of speech in China's new constitution.

The American station XMHA continued to operate, and its future was not known.

Journal to Use Copter

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 7 (AP)—The Oregon Journal disclosed Tuesday it plans to operate a helicopter from the roof of its new building in news and picture coverage.

houses to be used will be announced later.

Plans Made

At a meeting last night of freshman commission chairmen, vice-chairmen, and advisers at the president's home plans were made for the ensuing term. According to Miss Lois Greenwood, executive secretary of the YWCA, any freshmen wishing to change commissions this term is to attend the first meeting of the old one and then register for the new hour. This should be done within the next week if possible.

Bobbie Fulmer has been appointed chairman of the membership committee and has announced that a membership drive has begun. Any student who was unable to join the Y fall term is urged to do so now.

Cabinet Guests

Members of the Eugene Y and advisers of the campus group are to be guests of the University cabinet on Tuesday, January 14 to become better acquainted. Beryl Howard and Bjorg Hansen, Orgeon delegates to the meeting of the Student Christian association from December 27 to January 2 at the University of Illinois will give their reports at this time. Also Elizabeth DeCou, who attended the World Student Christian association meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, last summer, will tell of her experiences.

The first student faculty tea of the term will be sponsored by Town and Gown January 26. The time and place is to be announced later.

Noted Cellist

most artists in the field, he has been heard as soloist under Toscanini, Bruno Walter, Dimitri Mitropoulos, and Rodzinski. For the past two seasons he has had completely booked tours throughout the country. Last year his record included more than six appearances in New York City.

Although he isn't a composer, Mr. Schuster has transcribed works originally written for other instruments. One of his favorites is "La Follia" by Corelli, originally composed for violin and often performed by Fritz Kreisler.

Two Men Find Octopus

PORTLAND, Jan. 7 (AP)—Rudolph Adolphson and Charles Regula, both Portland, told today of capturing an octopus at low tide at Depoe Bay Sunday. They gave the octopus, which had a five-foot spread of tentacles, to an aquarium.

time ago to make no disclosures of any action taken until the information was officially released.

According to Dr. Pallett, the board is appointed by the president of the University for the purpose of making studies and recommendations to improve or sustain athletic matters. The board has no power to act except to make recommendations to the president, who may accept or reject them.

The AP story, which was broadcast over network stations and which appeared in Tuesday afternoon papers, followed a special meeting of the athletic board Monday night. Members of the board would not reveal the exact nature of business discussed at that time.

President Newburn was in Portland and could not be reached for comment.

Ranulfo Lacaros

liberty ship as steward. A four-day storm between the China sea and the Philippine islands necessitated two weeks of repairs at Guam. Finally on December 8, Lacaros sailed through the Golden Gate of San Francisco.

During the occupation the Japanese confiscated all food and housing, which resulted in a serious shortage for the Filipinos. "We could not even say anything," Lacaros said in an interview Monday.

"We could not use our own cars and we had to hide them," he continued. "Anyone seen using a car was thrown in prison, and anyone refusing to surrender his car was beheaded."

Province Bombed

His province was bombed by both Japanese and American planes during the occupation. "I remember one fight over our town between four American planes and 16 Japanese planes. All the Japanese planes were shot down," Lacaros said.

Describing the people's reception of the American liberation forces, the new student said, "We gave them a 100 per cent greeting." He mentioned the surprise of the Filipinos at the large number and variety of armaments used by Americans in the liberation of their islands.

Lacaros expressed the belief that the Philippines "are not doing as well" since they were given their freedom last July 4. "It may take five or ten years," he estimated.

Liberal Arts

Good-looking and with an engaging grin, the 23-year-old Lacaros is now majoring in liberal arts.

He plans to change his major to pre-medics next term. He is now living and working at the home of President Harry K. Newburn.

He finds the size of the University campus, the American etiquette, and registration the most confusing things about his college life so far. "In the Philippines, we could finish registration in two or three hours," he commented.

With the exception of the cold weather, Lacaros can find no fault with the United States and looks forward to his years of schooling here.
