

Duck-Beaver Tilt Tonight

The Hobson-coached Oregon Ducks invade Corvallis tonight for the first game of the 1947 Civil War rivalry with Oregon State. The Ducks will be the underdogs, but favorites mean little in this series. There will be no seats available for Oregon rooters. The game will be broadcast over station KOAC. (See Story On Page 4)

Grades Sink Pond For Dads' Position

Field Again Open for Chairman's Post; Executive Council to Choose New Head

Marty Pond, newly appointed Dads' day chairman, was declared ineligible for activities yesterday when a check of his scholastic record revealed that it did not conform with University regulations.

Tom Kay, ASUO president, stated after being notified of the vacancy in the position that he will call for petitions for the office. They should be turned in to Kay's office in McArthur court before Tuesday, he said.

A special meeting of the ASUO executive council has been called for next Tuesday at 4 p.m. to select a new Dads' day chairman, Kay announced.

Those who have already turned in petitions need not submit another since those applications will be reconsidered, he said, adding that certificates of eligibility need not be attached since he personally will check on it after the selection is made.

Pond was named chairman of Dads' day last Tuesday by a unanimous vote of the ASUO executive council.

YWCA Sets Goal, Invites Members

The YWCA winter term membership drive opens January 13, Bobbie Fullmer, membership drive chairman, announced Friday. Delegates from each women's living organization will be appointed, Miss Fullmer said, and the delegates will contact each girl who is not a member of the Y.

"Our total membership at the close of fall term was 755," Miss Fullmer revealed, "and our goal now is 1,000."

She added that the YWCA offered its members the opportunity to participate in activities such as the forthcoming International Festival and the Heart Hop. Women who join at the beginning of the drive will be able to petition for positions on the various committees of the two events.

Regular committees of the YW such as the International Affairs committee and the Public Affairs committee sponsor events throughout the term which are open to anyone interested.

Fall term saw the re-establishment of the freshman and sophomore commissions. Attention was centered on the freshman commissions in order to bring more freshmen into YW activities.

Dues for membership will be $1. The drive will close January 18.

Hazard to Interview Rally Squad Applicants

There is a position open for one male student on the rally squad, Tom Hazzard, University yell king, announced Friday. Petitions may be obtained from either the dean of men's or the dean of women's office.

The petitions should be presented at a meeting of the rally squad in McArthur court Monday at 4 p.m., at which time the applicants will be interviewed by Hazzard.

'Mama' to Premier In U O Production

Casting for the west coast premier of "I Remember Mama," the next University theater production, is drawing to a close, with part of the cast now in rehearsal under the direction of Horace W. Robinson, assistant professor of speech and drama. Production dates are set for February 7, 8, 11 through 15.

"I Remember Mama" is one of the current stage successes of John van Druten, who wrote "The Voice of the Turtle" and "Old Acquaintance." The Broadway production featured Mady Christians in the title role with Oscar Homolka as Uncle Chris, and just completed a successful run of almost two years at New York's Music Box theater.

This very human comedy, which brings to the stage many real characters and unforgettable moments, was adapted for the stage from Kathryn Forbes' "Mama's Bank Account."

Late Pledge Pix Set

Any student who pledged an honorary after the Oregana pictures were taken at Kennell-Ellis studios, may have his photo included with the organization by signing up and paying a dime at the Oregana offices anytime after 2 p. m.

Pond-erous Problem

Dear Dad: Deplorable situation! Came to light over Christmas vacation. Somehow or other we've incurred a loss, A.S.U.O. pride and joy, Dads' Day boss. Don't worry, Dad, replacement's not tough, Recommendation, I'm sure, is enough.

Eugene Extension Classes Offer Courses in Esperanto, German

By MARYANN THIELEN
"We believe the selection of extension courses this term provides a wide attraction for the community," L. E. Tomlinson, secretary of the general extension system of the Oregon State System of Higher Education, said Friday. With a choice of 18 subjects, students, businessmen, housewives and others interested are urged to register for classes January 13 to 15. Late registrants will be charged 50 cents in addition to the regular fee.

Esperanto will be offered to Eugene extension classes for the first time this term, after its successful inclusion in the Portland and Corvallis curricula. A study of the only prominent universal language of the present times, Esperanto will be taught by J. M. Clifford, instructor from Oregon State college. The class will meet Thursday from 7:15 to 8:55 in 105 Commerce hall.

PROBLEM SOLVERS ...

UO Student Heads to Attend College-Problems Confab

To discuss common problems of Oregon colleges and universities in hopes of gaining solutions, the Oregon Federation of Collegiate Leaders will meet at Portland university February 7 and 8. Representing this University will be Tom Kay, ASUO president; Dave Fortmiller, ASUO secretary-treasurer; Harry Glickman, Old Oregon editor; and Beverly Carroll, campus social chairman.

At the first convention eight years ago, Bob Walker, Oregon State college student body president, who founded the organization said it was "promoted for the purpose of creating a means for the exchange of ideas pertinent to student government in colleges and universities in the state of Oregon."

The seventh convention, held at the University of Oregon, included representatives from 14 institutions of higher education. At that time former ASUO President Ed Allen acted as secretary-treasurer of OFCL.

Discussion groups led by the representatives themselves will include such topics as publications, athletics and awards, and problem of returning veterans.

Officers will also be elected. This year's officers are Harold Malde, Willamette, president; Paul Koch, Linfield, vice-president; Jack Goetze, Portland, secretary treasurer.

Novel Class Gets Novel Background

Dr. John C. McCloskey, English department, in the midst of a Villard lecture on the American novel, was interrupted by the plaintive notes of an ill-practiced clarinet issuing from the dormitory on the second deck.

Turning, with a resigned smile, to his amused class he instructed the members to overlook it since "he probably pays his board and room regularly. It could be worse. Last term he could play only one tune—Dixie!"

The remainder of the lecture was presented with a musical background.

YWCA Requests Heart Hop Bids

Sophomore women who wish to petition for the Heart Hop committee chairmanships must turn in petitions to Miss Lois Greenwood, YWCA executive director, at the Y bungalow by January 14.

Pat Ebert, chairman of the YW sophomore commission, made the announcement Thursday. Miss Ebert said the deadline had been extended to enable more women to petition. Freshman women may petition to work on committees.

Women who wish to have their house chosen as one of the places where the Heart Hop will be held, are asked to turn petitions into Miss Greenwood by January 21, so that the houses may be considered as to central locations.

Senior Pix Scheduled

Graduating seniors may have their pictures taken for the Oregana at the Kennell-Ellis studios on Saturday morning. This will be the last opportunity for such pictures to be taken.

Rasmussen Chosen 'March' Chairman

Marvin Rasmussen, sophomore in physical education, was appointed Wednesday by Tom Kay, ASUO prexy, as chairman of the March of Dimes drive, which will be held on the Oregon campus from February 14 to 31.

Rasmussen, who was chairman of traditions for the recent Homecoming event, also served last year as chairman in the Junior Weekend festivities. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Plans for the March of Dimes event, which annually celebrates the birthday of Franklin D. Roosevelt, have not been formulated as yet. However, committee heads are to be appointed next week, Rasmussen announced.

Red Cross Groups Plan Conference

Plans for a conference of student representatives from Pacific coast Red Cross campus units to be held at the University February 22-23, will get under way when Mrs. Waunda Marzola, director of Red Cross units serving colleges and universities in seven states in the Pacific coast area, arrives January 16 to advise campus chapter officials in planning preparations for the meet.

Delegates from 18 schools will attend the conference, according to Geneva Davis, student chairman of the conference committee.

Miss Davis and Mrs. Nathalie T. Means, campus Red Cross adviser, will confer with Mrs. Marzola concerning the arrangement of the campus program.

Students interested in serving on the conference committee are advised to contact Miss Davis.

Med Aptitude Tests Scheduled Saturday

The professional aptitude test for those planning to enter medical school in the fall will be given Saturday morning and afternoon in room 207, Chapman hall.

Registrations are still being accepted at the graduate record office in Johnson hall. Those intending to take the examination are asked to report at Chapman hall at 8:45 a.m. Candidates are not required to be enrolled in the University.
