Trim Unknown Sweetheart Trims Show Windows Too

By BOB WHITELEY

This week's Unknown Sweetheart is in navy slang, 4.0. We had quite a time finding her, but managed to track her down at the Westgate dress shop where she works at window trimming during odd hours. Her name: Sharon Bustey.

Vital statistics: 5 feet 2 inches, the prettiest natural blonde hair to be seen on the campus; weight around 104; eyes, hazel; year, freshman; major, interior design.

When notified that she had been chosen Oregon's fifth Unknown Sweetheart, Sharon was so overwhelmed she couldn't speak. All she could do was to smooth a wrinkle in the yellow creation she was wearing, and smile. We didn't want to interrupt her work, so we talked to the manager for some current

March of Dimes Drive To Last Through Month

Rasmussen Announces Committee Members

The campus March of Dimes campaign, held in conjunction with the nationwide infantile paralysis battle, opens today and will continue until January 31, Marv Rasmussen, general chairman of the University drive, announced Monday. At the same time, Rasmussen named the recently appointed members of his committees who will assist him in the polio collection.

The funds collected in the drive will go into the polio fight, which was originated by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Named to committee posts were Walt McKinney, freshman in journalism; publicity chairman; Jordis Benke, sophomore in liberal arts, Moe Thomas, sophomore in business administration, and Jack Burris, sophomore in law, special events committee; and Pat Webber junior in journalism distribution and collection. The collections will be made by Phi Theta Upsilon, junior women's honorary, which is represented by Miss Webber.

The special events committee is making arrangements for the events which will be featured during the drive. One of the programs, planned for Friday night at McArthur court before the Oregon-Oregon State basketball game, will feature a short talk by Bill Loud, Eugene chairman, followed by a collection under the auspices of the Order of the "O."

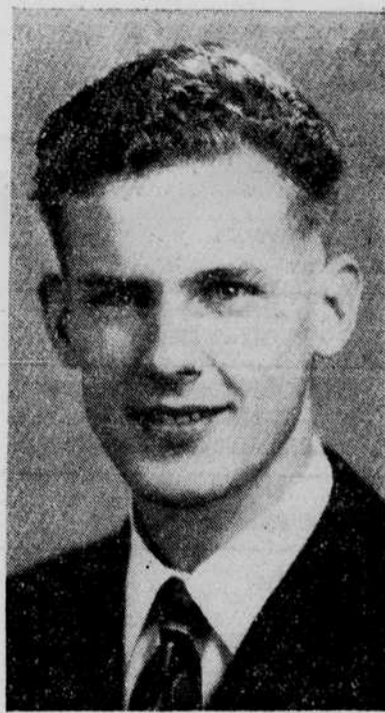

Collection pots will be distributed throughout the campus by the Phi Thetas, and will mark the beginning of the drive, Rasmussen stated.

How Can a Can Opener Open Cans?

The several metaphysical aspects of the simple can opener failed to defy an enterprising lad in Professor O. M. Willard's English comp section, who wrote his weekly theme on the complexities of that gadget. Alas, the professor differed in his interpretation of the useful object, for the student had noted that the cutting edge of the opener was forced into the can, while Mr. Willard insisted that the can was forced against the cutting wheel.

A serious discussion followed, and the finer points of the object were analyzed and categorized, but the period ended without a compromise.

The class met again, with the argument still pending, but Mrs. Willard had contributed her can opener to a worthy cause, and the professor, lecturing on the intricacies of the instrument, proved to the class that at least the Willard opener operated on his basis.

Council Convenes To Replace Pond

A special meeting of the ASUO executive council has been called for 4 this afternoon to select a new Dads' Day chairman to replace Marty Pond, who was declared ineligible for activities after a check of his scholastic record showed that it did not conform to University regulations.

Pond, sophomore in business, was unanimously approved as chairman by the ASUO council last Tuesday.

Petitions were called for as soon as the vacancy was created and the applicants will be considered today. ASUO President Tom Kay did not call for eligibility certificates. He said he would check on each applicant's qualifications personally. The council will also set the dates for freshman and ASUO elections.

The Mechanical Age

Life is so simple, it's really surprising, Even the honor roll's alphabetizing. They make it so easy to find the right name, It's not hard to find that you've no claim to fame. Why be so staid, now let's be original, Crossword, let's say, would be individual.

Go-Ahead Given On Planning For Senior Ball

1947 Formal Event Tops Social Poster

Plans for the 1947 Senior Ball got under way Monday night with the announcement of the appointment of Walt Dickinson as general chairman for the event. Dickinson, who is president of the SAE house and a business major, was appointed last week by the senior class board headed by Jocelyn Fancher, senior class president.

The formal all-campus dance, which is to be presented at McArthur court on January 25, promises to be the highlight of Oregon's winter social calendar. Other seniors who are to act as committee heads are Eston Way, decorations; Doug Eden, publicity; Marge Johnson, programs; Jay Hyde and Natalie Cartier, tickets; Doris Spearow, patrons; and Bob Morrison, clean-up.

Decorations for the affair have not been announced. The decoration committee includes the following persons: Bill Thomas, Jim Dryer, Phyllis Perkins, Janet Barringer, Ann McGillicuddy, and Lois Coleman.

Corsages are to be optional for this first formal of the new year and dark suits will be in order. Tickets will soon be on sale at $2.40 a couple.

Dickinson, who served before the war on freshman and sophomore dance committees, said that no presentations were being planned as yet for the dance.

Drama Tryouts Slated For Wednesday Night

Readings for the second University theater production of the winter term will be held in Guild hall Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Mrs. Ottilie T. Seybolt, associate professor of speech and drama, will direct the play, which calls for a large cast.

Students unable to attend the Wednesday night reading are asked to see the drama studio bulletin board for further information.

Yocom Resigns Zoology Post

Retirement Plans Feature Relaxation

Dr. Harry B. Yocom, professor of zoology at the University and former head of the zoology department, has retired, President Harry K. Newburn has announced. His retirement became official when it was confirmed by the state board of higher education in December. Having served 26 years on the Oregon faculty, Dr. Yocom was head of the zoology department until 1945 when he took a leave of absence for health reasons. He returned to the campus last fall term to await confirmation of his retirement.

The professor was quoted as saying that he would spend his time now, "just resting and raising iris."

In addition to his teaching, Dr. Yocom was acting as curator of the invertebrate collections in the University and associate director of the institute of marine biology.

Graduating from Oberlin college, Ohio in 1912, the veteran professor received his master's and doctor's degrees from the University of California in 1916 and 1918. Before coming to the University, Dr. Yocom taught at Wabash college, Crawfordsville, Ind.; Kansas State Col- (Please turn to page eight)
