UO Geologist Writes For Science Journal

Dr. Lloyd W. Staples, assistant professor of geology at the University, is the author of an article which appeared in "The American Mineralogist," the journal of the Mineralogical Society of America. The title of the article was "Origin of Spheroidal Clusters of Analcine from Benton County, Oregon."

The author explained that the article is a summary of the reasearch work he did last year on ways minerals crystalize and factors that control their form of crystalization.

Pill Palace Agrees With Abe Lincoln

If you can't find time to do your studies elsewhere, the infirmary can always find a place for you.

Tuesday in the infirmary a patient was spotted buried behind the "Life and Writings of Abraham Lincoln," which is the current English composition assignment. The patient, E. J. Krieger, freshman in business administration, was quite indignant because he said that he felt fine, and wanted his release.

However, he did have a good word or two to say about the infirmary, since he thinks that the food is "pretty good" and the hospital definitely better than some army ones he has seen. But he moaned tearfully that he wants more coffee.

Others listed at the infirmary were Ann Meistrup, Patricia Ann Gardner, Barbara Cleary, Patricia McLean, Paula Drenkel, Lowell A. Noble, Victor Doherty, Bill O'Hearn, Don Knapp, Lloyd Dwigans, Charles Wealbridge, and Harry Keith.

Juniors and Ditto; Waiven Demanded

By BOB WHITELEY

When is a junior not a junior? This little legal question will have to be ironed out by the Heart Hop committee, as the law school, under the able guidance of President Ray Kooler, hopes to enter Brad Fancher as their institution's choice for the coveted honor of King of Hearts.

Being apart from the undergraduate school, the majority of lawyers agree that a junior in law school has the right to partake of all activities with the class. (Carmichael v. Carmichael, 76 Mich. 187 (1876).

Fancher, who received local fame prior to hostilities of the recent war when he was crowned "King of the Salmon" at Celilo Falls, could not be reached for a statement, but it is known that he was deeply grieved for being disqualified for being over-age.

Generally speaking the younger girls on the campus tend to believe the average age of the law students is hovering on the shady side of thirty.

"That is an outrage," President Kooler vehemently denied, "and our Brad will run or we shall take our case to higher jurisdiction. As a junior in law school, he's entitled to compete, as the Alpha Cholera chapter at Celilo is solidly behind him."

The Hop committee is busily studying the interpretation of the rules whether a participant can be dinged on account of age.

University Dames Schedule Meetings

To promote friendship and organize activities of interest to married couples on the campus, the Oregon chapter of the University Dames is holding meetings on the second and fourth Tuesday each month, in the YMCA building at 8 p.m.

One of the projects planned for the near future is a day nursery for mothers of small children on the campus, Mrs. Jerry Taylor, president, explained. The meetings are very informal, she said.

The Dames club, as a national organization is more than 50 years old with a chapter on nearly every university campus. The local chapter was installed on this campus last April.

Oregon officers are Mrs. Taylor, president; Mrs. Ray Stofer, vice-president; Mrs. Maurice Green, secretary, and Mrs. Allen Johnston, treasurer. The group is sponsored on this campus by Mrs. Harry K. Newburn, Mrs. Orlando J. Hollis, Mrs. V. D. Earl, Mrs. P. E. Means, and Mrs. Alice B. Macduff.

Egyptian Student

Not So Cold in Egypt

"In Egypt," he said, "it is not so cold as Oregon, although it does rain, especially in Alexandria. Forty degrees is the lowest there, and here it feels more like four."

When asked what he missed most, Sidky answered in his soft-spoken manner, "My mother." He called his parents Tuesday because he had not heard from them for two months and had become worried. Sidky's father is a physician and formerly was inspector general of the hospitals of Egypt. He now has a hospital of his own.

As to the future, Sidky plans to say in the United States five years, one year at Oregon to acquire his master's degree and two years at Harvard for a Ph.D. in architectural design. The remaining two years he has reserved for experience and viewing the American educational system in various colleges and universities. After that? Well, five years is a long time.
