

Ducks Smash Vandals

Stan Williamson . . . Little "Salmon" maintained his hot pace at the guard post for the Ducks last night dropping in 10 counters for the evening.

MOSCOW, Idaho, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Oregon Ducks crushed Idaho's defending Northern Division basketball champions 66 to 46 before 3500 fans here tonight after trailing the Vandals through most of the first half.

Idaho started strong with big Fred Quinn sparking the scoring attack with long set shots over the tight Oregon zone. The Vandals moved into a 19 to 15 advantage after the first 15 minutes of play before Oregon switched to a man to man defense that stopped the Vandal pace.

Then Al Popick, Dick Wilkins and Roger Wiley combined talents to run up eight points in a minute Vandals were shut out and Idaho and a half for Oregon while the never again threatened the sharp-shooting Webfoots.

the division of scoring punch. The Frosh are now the only unbeaten cage team at the University, and have a chance of sharing the same fate as the JVs when they journey to Corvallis, as the Junior Varsity suffered their lone loss at the hands of an Aggie team.

Dick Wilkins . . . Oregon's sharpshooting forward who finally found his range to pot 20 points against Idaho last night in a brilliant exhibition of accuracy which completely stumped the baffled Vandals.

Frosh Still Unbeaten Ready for 'Civil War'

By virtue of being able to pull games out of the coals in the final minutes, the Frosh basketball squad kept their unbeaten season's record last week, and now are beginning extensive preparations for the first game of their traditional "Little Civil War" with the Oregon State Rooks at Corvallis Friday evening.

The Rooks too boast a clean slate but have played only two games in comparison with 11 for the Frosh. First victim of the Oregon State squad was Battle Ground, Washington by a 36-25 count.

skimmed by Salem 55-49 and Grants Pass 38-37, but haven't seemed to regain their early season potency. Nevertheless they have always had just enough at the finish to win the games which is the deciding factor.

Still running out front in individual scoring are the two Duckling forwards Don Kimball and Bill Green with 76 and 73 points respectively. Other team counters are distributed pretty evenly among the other 10 men.

Following the Rook tilt, the Frosh journey to Monmouth where the Schopmen will square off with the OCE frosh, and Monmouth high in a twin bill. It will be the third time this season that the Frosh have attempted the feat of two games in one day.

Earlier in the season, the Little Ducks trimmed this same Battle Ground quint 65-29. However, the Rooks came back solidly last Saturday to trounce a highly-regarded Newberg team 64-43.

Stiff Workouts Due Natators

Beaver-fed Oregon swimmers resumed their daily training schedule Monday, and according to Coach John Warren the boys are in for some intensive workouts throughout the coming weeks.

Warren declared that although the squad soundly trounced OSC, many of the times in the events were far from satisfactory. The aqua-men must concentrate on both speed and stamina in their nightly grinds as they prime for a Washington invasion in two weeks.

Sigma Phi Epsilon Wins

Sigma Phi Epsilon moved ahead in intramural handball on a forfeit when the Stan Ray BB hall team failed to appear for a match.

Swimming Review . . . George Moorehead

By AL PIETSCHMAN

Oregon finally defeated Oregon State in one sport this year. That was the decisive victory posted by our swimmers. George Moorehead, one of the free style sprinters, helped the Ducks paste the Aggies: he won the 50 and 100-yard free-style to take two firsts for the Oregon tankmen.

Moorehead isn't a novice at that aqua sport. Since he was three years old, he has been splashing in the water. His uncle, a life guard at Long Beach, was the one responsible for George's early start in swimming.

Since the youthful start, he has been swimming in nearly all of his spare moments. In high school he was a member of the school team. He enrolled at Oregon last year, turned out for the sport, won himself a berth on the squad, and proceeded to bring home the bacon.

Oregon State's attitude at the recent meet in Corvallis didn't please Moorehead. He claimed that although the student spectators and team members were hospitable, the officials and the Beaver swim coach went out of their way to make the Duck stay an unpleasant one.

"First of all," George said, "they barred us from warming up in their pool. According to swimming sportsmanship codes, the visiting team is allowed to use the pool so they can warm up, but they closed the doors on us. In fact they wouldn't let us in until just before the meet began."

"We weren't the only ones that were disgusted," he continued, "even the OSC students were disgruntled at their officials. It looked to me as if the officials were ex-OSC students with a real grudge against Oregon."

He gives the State team credit for trying hard to take us but attributes their miserable showing to improper conditioning. "We weren't in top shape ourselves," George said, "until Coach John Warren started putting the pressure on. Now, thanks to him, we are just about in top condition."

One or one and a half hours a day are spent in the water by Moorehead in his practice routine.

What does a swimmer do in his off time? George is interested in painting and splatters the canvas with colors in a Salvador Dali style. Anyone wanting a gaudy hand-painted ties might contact him. He didn't say if he would accept such work, but most artists are always glad to have their work on exhibition.

A graduate of Salem high school, George is 6 feet even and weighs 155 pounds, almost an ideal build for a speedy swimmer.

Besides swimming, this splasher also enjoys football, and noted that he would have turned out for the team except that it didn't do his swimming any good, so he stuck by his first love.
