Planning Afoot For Dad's Day Registration

Heads Meet to Draw Blueprints for Event

Registration planning for Dads' day, February 15, began this week under the direction of Bob Wallace, general chairman of the event.

Wallace appointed committee heads last week and met with them Tuesday to plan a general schedule for the occasion. Those appointed are Les Fahey and Bob Matteson, housing; Nat Adams, decoration; Al Pietschman and Barbara Borrevik, publicity; Bill Barnum, luncheon; Pat Webber, awards; Gloria Grenfell, registration; Marv Rasmussen, basketball game; Dedo Misely, hospitality; Dale Harlan, promotion; Nila Desinger, queen contest; Ann Burgess, invitations.

Editorials featuring "The Typical Oregon Dad" should be given to Dale Harlan, promotion chairman of Dad's day, at Sierry Ross hall as soon as possible. The contest which began yesterday is sponsored by the Dad's day commission and the winning editorial will be sent to all Oregon Dads as an urge to attend the February 15 event.

Prizes for the winning editorial will be a $5 merchandise order at Miller's for men or a free merchandise order from the Butik if the winner is a girl. A free family-group dinner will be given to the winner by the Eugene hotel in addition to other prizes.

The program for Saturday, February 15, will include open-house of school departments, a luncheon meeting, a general business meeting, the Idaho-Oregon basketball game which will include pre-game entertainment, dinner at living organizations, and open-houses in the evenings.

Dads' day, an annual event on the Webfoot campus, will give dad a splendid opportunity to discover just how his money is being spent.

Seniors Plan 'Best Formal'

Today is the deadline to purchase tickets from committee chairmen for the 1947 Senior Ball, Walt Dickinson, Ball chairman, declared Thursday. However, tickets will continue to be on sale at McArthur court Saturday and will be available at the door of the dance.

Featuring the music of Art Holman and his orchestra, the dance Saturday is hoped by the senior class to be "the best formal of the school year," Dickinson said. "Everything is being done to keep it in line with the traditions set by the previous senior classes."

The price of admission to the annual dance is $1.20 per couple. Mary Lou Welch has been added to the patron and patronesses committee to assist Doris Spearow.

Tuxedos and dark suits will both be in order. Corsages are optional. All ticket salesmen in living organizations are asked to turn their tickets in to the ticket chairman Friday evening.

Donna Gericke Named For Freshman Office

By JUNE GOETZE

Art Johnson and Donna Gericke, both freshmen in business administration, were nominated to represent the Independent party in the freshman class elections in Thursday's class nominating assembly.

Johnson was nominated for president by Larry Davidson. He has gained experience as a leader in student affairs having served as student body president in junior high school and as class president at Eugene high.

A letterman in football, he was also president of the Axemen's council and secretary of the Hi-Y club. When the University YMCA re-organized recently, he was elected secretary of that organization.

Pat Lane nominated Donna Gericke for the number two position, emphasizing that her pleasing personality gave her the ability to cooperate successfully with people. Affiliated with Orides, Miss Gericke represented them in the recent Christmas seal drive and is in charge of their entry in the forthcoming WAA carnival.

Other activities in her organization include taking charge of entertainment and music and planning their house dances. Her experience in student government was gained while serving as a representative on the student council at Eugene high school. She was also editor of a state-wide paper for art students — the Pallett Prattle.

Jeannine Macauley Runs for Number 2

By LARRY LAU

Speaking vigorously before an enthusiastic audience for the right of class officers to administer all class functions, ex-sailor Jim Bocchi, curly-headed junior varsity regular, threw his hat into the campus political ring when he accepted a nomination for the No. 1 position in the Freshman class.

Bocchi was nominated by Walt McKinney, assistant managing editor of the Emerald, who said that Bocchi's previous experience in administrative positions "qualify him in every way." In his acceptance speech, Bocchi pointed out that at the present time, the chairmanship of class functions is given to petitioners by the ASUO Executive council.

Bocchi attended Klamath Falls union high school where he was successively president of the sophomore class, and first vice-president of the student body. He is president of the Phi Kappa Psi pledge class and is being supported by the Affiliated Students association.

Eighteen year old, blue-eyed Jeannine Macauley, Emerald reporter, and member of the Frosh Y. W. commission, accepted a nomination for the No. 2 position made by Marguerite Reardon. Miss Macauley, in her acceptance speech, made a plea for cooperation and friendly spirit among members of the freshman class.

Car's Alibi Sound, Zoologist Asserts

"But my car wouldn't go 900 miles!" Dr. R. R. Huestis, professor of zoology, declared, when asked if his car could have been the one used by the kidnapers of Alice Dean Devine, of Lodi, California.

Dr. Huestis' 1936 Ford became a suspect when the kidnapper recorded its license plate on the California motel records where he took the girl.

Dr. Huestis received four phone calls, three from Portland, asking whether his car had that license plate, and if it had been stolen. It must have been a case of mistaken identity, however, for neither his car nor his plates had left Eugene recently.

Dime Marathon Starts at 6:30 p.m.

The Dime Hop sponsored by the campus March of Dimes committee will get under way at 6:30 this evening and will last until 7:30. All the women's living organizations will take part with the exception of the Alpha Phi house which will be unable to entertain as they are having a reception for their district governor.

Immediately following the Hop, each house has been requested to send the money it has collected to the Pi Beta Phi house and turn it over to Jordis Benke who is in charge of the Hop. The proceeds will be counted there and the winner of the cup, presented by the committee, will be determined.

'If at First You Don't ...' Says Horace Robinson

Hammerstein, Rodgers Okay 'Mama' Play

By LeJEUNE GRIFFITH

A story of "try, try again" was told recently by Horace W. Robinson, director of the University theater, when he described the struggle he had in obtaining permission to play the Broadway stage success, "I Remember Mama," at the University of Oregon.

"Interested in the play when he read it for the first time shortly after it was published, Robinson was further convinced of its appeal when he saw the New York production last spring with Mady Christians as Mama and Oscar Homolka as Uncle Chris. He believes that it was the best drama he saw on the entire trip east.

Robinson Refused

Robinson's first request for permission to play "I Remember Mama" was refused, as the producers were considering sending the New York company to the Pacific Coast on tour. He was told the play would not be available until next year.

In the meantime permission to play "Dark of the Moon" was obtained. When Robinson was getting ready to select the first play of the winter term, he decided to take one last try. He corresponded with Barrett Clark, representative of a New York play service, and asked him to intercede and try to get a special concession to allow the University of Oregon to present the West Coast amateur premier of "I Remember Mama."

Writers O.K. Show

Clark called producers Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, and they were finally persuaded to make an exception to their blanket amateur refusal of permission.

When the "go ahead" was received from Clark, the cast was selected and rehearsals were started
