

JVs Slip by Pirates

Oregon's junior varsity hoopster secured their first place position in the city league last night when they knocked off the Coos Bay Pirates, 60-58. A late rally started by the Pirates fell short when time ran out. Despite the closeness of the score the game was pretty much the Jayvees'. The starting team for the junior Ducks showed more fire than it has for some time, as it hit for eight shots out of the first ten attempts, to lead the Pirates 16-6 with only six minutes gone.

The second squad found the going plenty rough, however, and after taking over with a 20-8 lead at the nine minute mark, saw the whole margin dissolve.

With the No. 2 squad taking the reins for the Jayvees, the Pirates really got hot. They scored nine straight points before Darrell Robinson of the JVs managed to break the ice by potting a one-handed swisher. But this slowed the Pirates, but momentarily, as Ken Hume hit for two field goals from the side, and Dave Waite dropped in a long one.

The collegians finally managed to find the range themselves, after Ken Hume and Chuck Stamper had caged two more goals to give the Pirates a four point lead. Little Walt Kirsch sank a one-hander from way out, and then intercepted a pass and cut loose on the run for another. Just before the bell Luke Baccelleri put up a lay-in, and this gave the Jayvees a halftime lead of 30-28.

Starters Take Over

After the rest period the starters took over again. This squad composed of Fred Wilson and Ken Seeborg at guards, Jerry Switzer at center, and Ed Devaney and Bob Don at forwards, took up where it had left off, and racked up nine points in a row before the Pirates could slow them down. A tip-in by Stamper, who together with Ken Hume scored 41 of the Pirates' 58 points, was all the Pirates could get through the net in five minutes of the second stanza.

After eight minutes of the last half had gone by, the local stars, displaying a clicking fast-break and smooth ball-handling, had run the count up to 48-34. In came the second squad, and the Pirates again proceeded to knock them down.

The Pirates decided to run with the Jayvees and did it so well that within five minutes they got within seven points of the locals, at 58-51.

Rally Too Late

Hume through with a field goal and a gift toss to further narrow the margin, and after Bob Amacher had registered his only basket of the evening for the Ducks, Stamper collected another. But the gap had been too big, and when Don Gassaway put up a lay-in to make it 58, the Jayvees got the ball and stalled the last few seconds out.

Webfoot Cagers Drill For Aggieville Battle

By DON FAIR

Following a day's layoff, Howard Hobson's Webfoot cagers took to the maples yesterday afternoon in a session devoted particularly to defense, in preparation for the Oregon State fracas at Corvallis tomorrow night.

Divided into the usual Whites and Greens, the two squads proceeded to whip the ball around, polishing up rough edges. Comprising the first string which will probably open against the Beavers were Ed Dick, Dick Wilkins, Ken Hays, Reddy Berg, and Stan Williamson with Jim Bartelt as alternate.

Pitted against this five were Roy Seeborg, Bob Wren, Rog Wiley, Bob Bray, Al Popick, and George Bray.

OSC Leads ND

Though Oregon State is perched atop the Northern Division, Hobson is conceding nothing when game time tomorrow night rolls around. In comparing the two teams, the Oregon mentor feels that the Beavers successful record to date is due to their ability to win the close ones, while the Webfoots have dropped four games by failing in the final seconds.

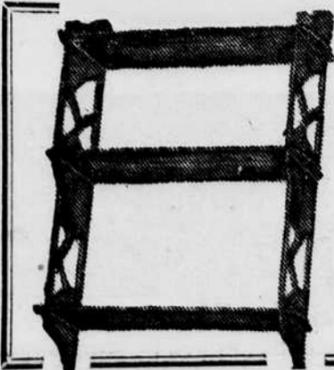

Despite the fact that the tilt is to be played on the Corvallis floor, it must be remembered that the Ducks played the better of their two games with the Beavers this season away from home. It took an overtime period to sink them 73-69.

Another reason for Hobson's brighter outlook was the much better shooting and defensive play displayed by Oregon's quint in the Washington series earlier this week. The Webfoots came through the Husky frays with no serious setbacks and figure to be at full strength.

Because of Slats Gill's strategy of throwing a zone at Oregon in their first meeting this year, Hobson has his men drilling both against that defense and the man-to-man.

Although the starting positions are just about secured for the game, shifting of men as in the Washington games will not be unprobable. Much of the success of the Ducks in those two games was due to the constant substituting as possible as many "hot" men in as possible.

Excuses in physical ed courses are a "must."

Beavers Swim Here Saturday

The first taste of intercollegiate competition will be given local swimming fans Saturday afternoon when Oregon's heavily-favored Ducks match strokes with the squad from Oregon State, in a clash set for 2 p. m. in the men's pool.

Ralph Huestis, Pacific coast breaststroke champ, will display the form that gave him the title honors in 1941 as he attempts to outdistance his Corvallis competitors. Huestis had little difficulty in dunking the Beavers in the opening meet of the season at Corvallis.

Tom Corbett and Benny Holcomb will display their diving skill at the halfway mark in the meet, and Ray Saunders of Oregon State is expected to press the pair for top places. Corbett, a former ND titlist, copped first place in the fracas with Washington last week and Holcomb is again rounding into the form that he exhibited in the first state meet.

Bob Hiatt, who churned a sterling performance against the Huskies will be on hand in an attempt to duplicate his clockings Saturday, with Don Rush as his running mate.

Frosh Leave On KF Jaunt

Ted Schopf and his undefeated Ducklings travel to Klamath Falls today for two weekend games, one against the Klamath Falls Pelicans tonight, and another Saturday night against Ashley Chevrolet, an independent five, the proceeds of which go to the polio fund.

Earlier this week the Frosh won games on two double headers on consecutive days to run their winning streak to 19 games without defeat. The Ducklings have faced a rugged schedule each week with this one sporting a total of six.

Schopf Doubtful

Considering this fact, Schopf, not underestimating his boys and their prodigious 19 straight victories, is not over-confident about the weekend contests.

Having seen Klamath Falls in action the Frosh coach has tabbed the Pelicans as a team likely to win a top berth in the state basketball scramble this year. He believes the 60-50 showing Klamath Falls made Monday against the Ducklings is an indication that tonight's game will be no cinch.

Guards Score Often

The Pelicans rely heavily on their tall center, Thorn, who chalked up nine points against the Frosh, and LeRoy Coleman and Gene Hover, the two driving guards, who lobbed in 13 tallies apiece.

The Frosh are up against it on practice information for the Saturday night game, having never seen the Ashley Chevrolet squad in play.

Co-eds Swim, Too!

One of 'Cody Kids,' Maryanne Hansen, Will Swim for Oregon in National Wire Meet

By VIRGINIA FLETCHER

A comely University of Oregon co-ed, Maryanne Hansen has earned national recognition for her swimming prowess. A member of the famed "Cody Kids" of the Portland Multnomah Athletic club, Maryanne will represent the University in the forthcoming National Intercollegiate Telegraphic Swimming meet.

This meet is held annually among colleges throughout the nation with the co-eds competing with their teammates and all times recorded. All times are then submitted to the national organization and the results compiled.

Maryanne will swim the 40-yard and 100-yard freestyle and the 60-yard individual medley events in the meet to be held here February 26 and March 5. She holds the regional records for all three events.

Active on Campus

A junior pre-med student, the 5-foot 7-inch blonde co-ed is a graduate of Portland's Grant high school. She is a member of Alpha Phi sorority; Phi Theta, junior women's honorary, and Gamma Alpha Chi, women's advertising honorary. She is also active on the WAA, Red Cross, and YWCA cabinets and the Oregona. But swimming still heads her activity list in importance.

A workout for the energetic aquatic queen consists of swimming 30 laps, kicking 20 laps, swimming another 20, swimming a fast 10, and doing from two to four sprints of several pool lengths each. This is repeated four times a week.

"I am very appreciative that I am able to train as much as I can," said Maryanne, when speaking of the facilities for training at the University of Oregon.

In addition to being a contestant in the national intercollegiate swimming meet, Maryanne has been chosen the national student director for the meet. The University of Oregon has been named this year's national headquarters, and the times of regional winners will be sent here for compilation to determine the national winners.

"Swimming with Jack Cody's championship teams is a wonderful experience," commented Maryanne, who has been a member of the Portland teams since she was 12 years old. Among honors held by the Multnomah team are the 1943-1944 national championship title and the national 400-yard freestyle relay record.
